Common Council Adopts Budget

Vote Is 9 to 3, With Majority Praise for Slash in Tax Rate

Common Council split along party lines last night at city hall in adopting Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk's 1953 budget of $1,571,953.-09 by a vote of nine to three.

The budget, which calls for a tax rate of $49.92 per thousand of property valuation, elicited critical expressions from the Council's three Democratic members and sharp defense and praise from several Republican aldermen.

David Schecter, Third ward Republican alderman, congratulated Mayor Newkirk in the budget, stating that the people of the city "should be proud that when everything is spiralling our Republican administration can cut taxes and yet give the same efficient service." The new tax rate of $49.92 is $1.84 under the 1952 rate.

Democratic Alderman Thomas Coughlin of the Seventh ward, in casting a negative vote, stated that he had been a member of Council for nine years and that it had "always been customary" to provide each member with a copy of the budget. He charged, however, that he had not received a copy of the budget as had been the custom in past years and that he had not, therefore, had an opportunity to examine it carefully.

"I cannot vote in favor of the budget," he said, "because I cannot say that I am familiar with it."

Hits Vote Without Knowledge

Alderman Martin W. Golden, Republican, of the Ninth ward, took sharp issue with Coughlin on the availability of the budget. He pointed out that on December 27 a notice was published in the newspaper that copies of the budget were available at police headquarters and that at the hearing December 29 "several citizens asked me where they could obtain copies" and secured them at police headquarters in the city hall.

Golden scored the Democratic alderman heavily for having failed to obtain a copy of the budget and acquaint himself with its contents.

"It sounds unreasonable for a man to cast a ballot yes or no if he hasn't even read the budget," Golden asserted.

Makes Minor Criticism

James K. Ryan of the 10th ward, Democrat, said that he had requested a copy of the budget at police headquarters and had received a "more or less secondhand copy which the boys had for their own use." He also criticised the budget in certain details, charging that several items appeared to overlap unnecessarily.

Also voting against the budget was Alderman Edwin Radell, Democrat, of the Third ward. Robert C. Cullum of the 12th ward was unable to attend last night.

The tax rate, reduced despite new provisions including the cost of a 40-hour work-week schedule for the police department, was made possible for several reasons. County charges this year are $66,000 less than in 1952, city department heads stayed within their budgets during 1952 and a surplus of $44,000 was accumulated.

Will Raise Less

The amount of the budget this year to be raised by taxation is $53,186.16 less than 1952. The 1953 assessed valuation for tax levy is $31,489,455, whereas for 1952 it was $31,397,590.

A communication from the board of managers of the City of Kingston Laboratory called attention to the fact that the budget provided all city employes with a cost-of-loving adjustment except Lab employes, pointing out that the "singling out of a small group of civil servants for exclusion from a city-wide policy would seem to constitute an undeserved reflection on loyal service. If it is the feeling of the Common Council that it is necessary to make an adjustment in the wages of municipal employes, we respectfully request that equal treatment be accorded to all.

"In terms of dollars and cents" the letter said "the inclusion in the budget of a $240 cost-of-living adjustment for laboratory employes receiving less than $5,500 annually would involve an increase in the amount to be raised by taxation of only $2,280. This would alter the published tax rate of $49.92 to a new tax rate of $49.99. Such a negligible effect on the tax rate appears more than justified under the circumstances."

The communication was signed

Democrats Favor Tax Anticipation Notes, Then Ballot Against Money to Pay for Them

The Common Council's three Democratic members found themselves in the peculiar position last night of having voted in favor of tax anticipation notes in the sum of $100,000 and against the collection of money to pay for them.

Issuance of tax anticipation notes to enable the city to meet current expenses until the collection of taxes for the present fiscal year were voted unanimously by council, 12 to 0.

The council then voted nine to three in favor of the budget by means of which the tax notes must be paid.

Voting against the budget and, consequently, against the method of collecting money to pay for the tax notes, were James K. Ryan of the 10th Ward, a member of the finance committee; Edwin Radell of the Third Ward and Thomas Coughlin of the Seventh Ward.

'Godspeed' To Ike Part Of Message

President Truman Says Hope Is Held Russians Might Quit Cold War They Began

Warns of A-Bombs

Says Atom Power Could Ruin Stalin Regime and Homeland

Washington, Jan. 7 (AP)—President Truman coupled a "Godspeed" to Dwight D. Eisenhower today with a word of hope that growing western strength may force Soviet rulers to "become more realistic and less implacable, and recede from the cold war they began."

If the effort fails, he said, the resulting atomic war would be one in which man "could extinguish millions of lives at one blow."

In his final "State of the Union" message to Congress, Truman warned Soviet Premier Stalin that if such a war comes between East and West it can bring only "ruin for your regime and its homeland."

And he gravely told those at home: "War today between the Soviet empire and the free nations might dig the grave not only of our Stalinist opponents, but of our own society, our world as well as theirs."

Says West's Might Grows

Truman drew a picture of swelling might in the West and said that as it continues, "then inevitably there will come a time of change within the Communist world." Saying he did not know how such a change will come about, Truman continued:

"But if the Communist rulers understand they cannot win by war, and if we frustrate their attempts to win by subversion, it is not too much to expect their world to change its character, moderate its aims, become more realistic and less implacable, and recede from the cold war they began."

New Era of Destruction

The President said the recent atomic tests at Eniwetok made it clear that from now on "man moves into a new era of destructive power, capable of creating explosions of a new order of magnitude, dwarfing the mushroom clouds of Hiroshima and Nagasaki."

He spoke of "thermonuclear tests," employing the scientists' language for the hydrogen bomb.

Truman pledged his backing for his Republican successor, against whom he stumped the country in last fall's bitter election campaign. He concluded his 10,000-word message with this reference to Eisenhower:

"To him, to you, to all my fellow citizens, I say, Godspeed.

"May God bless our country and our cause."

Gravity Unprecedented

The President's farewell to Congress, before whom he previously has delivered such messages in person, was left for the reading of others. Truman plans a similar message to the union in a broadcast Jan. 15. The one to Congress today was of almost unprecedented gravity.

The President submitted no legislative recommendations, saying

Brakes Put on Okays

By JACK BELL

Washington, Jan. 7 (AP)—President-elect Eisenhower has suggested inauguration day confirmation by the Senate of his cabinet but Democrats are balking at such rapid-fire action.

Sen. Taft of Ohio, the Republican leader, confirmed that a move is underway to gain Senate approval without any committee investigation of the cabinet nominees.

But the Ohioan told this reporter he fears the Democrats may raise objections or resort to lengthy talk which would ball up the inaugural day schedule, so far as the Senate is concerned.

In this connection, Sen. Byrd (D-Va.), who helped Eisenhower in the election campaign by saying he couldn't support the Democratic ticket, said in a separate interview he believes it would be unwise to confirm even cabinet officials without committee inquiries.

Smooth Transition Forecast by Lodge For Capital Regime

Eisenhower, He Says, Holds Control in All Ways —General to Meet Churchill

New York, Jan. 7 (AP)—President-elect Eisenhower's liaison man with the outgoing Truman administration today predicted a "very smooth transition" from the Democratic to the Republican regime on Jan. 20.

Former Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge, of Massachusetts, conferred with Eisenhower for about an hour at the general's Commodore Hotel headquarters. Lodge said he gave the President-elect a report on his activities as Eisenhower's representative in the expiring administration.

Thinks It Will Be Smooth

"I think the transition will be very smooth," Lodge said. "Gen. Eisenhower is on top of the job in every way. He has a full grasp of the problems he is going to have to face."

Dewey Predicts Easing Inflation, Orders Economy

Bridges Asks Desertion Be Probed Soon

Washington, Jan. 7 (AP)—Sen. Bridges (R.-N. H.) called today for "an immediate investigation" of reports that many young men are deserting from the armed services to avoid Korean combat duty.

The Pentagon discounted the seriousness of the situation.

Any probe should be by the Senate Armed Services Committee or its preparedness subgroup, Bridges told a reporter.

Bridges soon may be chairman of the subcommittee.

Pentagon officials said the current count of deserters who had not been picked up, or had not returned voluntarily, ran about 13,-790. Under service regulations, a man normally is not counted as a deserter unless he has been absent at least 30 days. The total of those absent without official leave (AWOL) would be much higher.

Would Mean 36,000

The Pentagon figures were given in comment on a copyrighted article in the Louisville, Ky., Times, which said yesterday that on any given day "enough able-bodied men to make up two complete

Would Have Vehicle Inspection, Mandatory Liability Coverage for All Cars

Asks Court Probe

Governor Also Speaks for Single Director of Civil Service

Albany, Jan. 7 (AP)—Gov. Dewey today submitted to the 1953 Legislature a "hold-the-line program to avoid tax boosts and predicted an easing of inflation under the Eisenhower administration.

In his 11th annual message to New York's lawmakers, the governor said he had ordered all state agencies to clamp down on spending except that "necessary to the health and welfare of the people * * * or mandated by state law."

Program Urged

He urged the 176th regular session of the state Senate and Assembly to enact legislation to:

1. Require twice-a-year state inspection of automobiles and mandatory liability coverage for all cars.

2. Revise downward the formula under which the state now joins with the federal government to pay 80 per cent of certain local welfare costs.

3. Begin a statewide probe of the judicial system to recommend steps to end trial delays and cut court costs.

4. Reorganize the State Civil Service Department by replacing the present three-member commission with a single administrative director.

No Spectacular Spending

The Republican governor said his program included "no vast, spectacular plans for new expenditures" but "rather the steady program of maintaining and advancing the services of the state to its people without added financial burdens."

Dewey said his work on the state's 1953-54 budget, which he will send to the Legislature by Feb. 1, "indicates that state finances are entering a period of greater stringency." He added:

"We cannot again expect an increase in tax receipts, as in past years, to offset the rising costs of government and to meet unfulfilled capital needs.

"We have reason to believe, however, that the continued inflationary policies of the national government, which caused much of our rising costs, are at an end."

Tells Mayor to Get Busy

Commenting on New York city's puzzling financial situation, Dewey urged Mayor Vincent R. Impellitteri's administration to enforce "rigid economy" and pointedly noted that the metropolis could "raise additional moneys by way of taxation, special assessments, license fees and other city charges."

The governor said he had received a legislative program for the city from Impellitteri "within the past 24 hours and after this message had been printed." He said "it will, of course, receive the most careful study."

The mayor's program, announced yesterday, called for a 13-million-dollar increase in the city's budget, more state financial aid, and adoption of state legislation to permit an increase in real estate taxes and a new levy on business to finance a proposed transit authority.

Praises Crime Group

Dewey said his State Crime Commission had "rendered a brilliant and notable public service in uncovering organized criminal activities."

He made no recommendations about crime-busting in the message, but promised he would send "one or more special messages" to the legislature later "with a series of major proposals for the improvement and strengthening of criminal justice."

In his 9,300-word message, Dewey emphasized a proposed new program designed to cut highway accident and deaths. It would include compulsory, twice-a-year inspection of all autos at state-operated check stations, mandatory liability insurance coverage of motorists, a "fix-proof" system of tickets for traffic violations, mandatory minimum fines for more serious violators, an increase in the number of state police from the current 900 to 1,200. For highway patrol work, and a new re-examination program for errant drivers.

Urges License Boost

The governor advocated that the cost of regular driving licenses be increased from 50 cents a year to $1 a year, and that chauffeur licenses be boosted from $1.33 to $2. Additional income would help finance the cost of the extra state police and the ex-examination program.

Dewey proposed new welfare-

Backers, However, Battle Onward; Vote May Be Put Aside

Washington, Jan. 7 (AP)—Senators hoping to break the back of future filibusters fought on today for an immediate change in Senate rules despite talk by Republican leaders they would do better to wait.

Although almost certainly foredoomed to failure by the opposition of southern Democrats and a big majority of Republican senators, the filibuster foes contended their only chance lay in getting action before the Senate settles down to work under existing rules.

Sen. Douglas (D.-Ill.) said that if it is decided the rules of the preceding Senate automatically apply to the new Senate, "we may as well say farewell to any chance for Civil Rights legislation or needed changes in Senate procedure."

"In slang parlance, we may kiss such a possibility good-bye," said Douglas in a speech prepared for the resumption of the debate which opened yesterday after the Senate joined with the House in counting the Presidential electoral vote.

Although Sen. Taft of Ohio, majority leader in the new GOP-controlled Senate, said he would like to bring the rules scrap to an end late today, there were signs a vote might be put off until tomorrow to allow more time for debate.

Bulletin

New York, Jan. 7 (AP)—The New York State Crime Commission will resume its probe of crime and racketeering on the New York waterfront Jan. 19, it announced today.

A commission spokesman declined to say what phase the probe will take up next. The hearings were recessed before Christmas for the holidays.

Council Postpones Action on Streets And Equipment

Finance Chairman Seeks Delay to Permit More Time to Study Program

Action on a request by Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk and the Board of Public Works for $100,000 for street improvements and $67,-410.56 for purchase of equipment and machinery was postponed last night by Common Council until January 20.

Alderman David Schecter of the Sixth Ward, chairman of the finance committee, asked for the extension in order to give the committee time to study the request.

A communication from BPW Superintendent Ernest A. Steuding listed streets included in the program and estimated the cost of proposed reconstruction.

Steuding pointed out that estimated cost included such contingencies as "uncertainty of market, materials, labor, unknown subbase conditions and unforeseen obstacles." All streets reconstructed under the program, he stated, would include the use of newly quarried stone aggregate and bituminous asphalt "which gives a permanent type of pavement."

Asks No Restriction

"Due to the contingency costs being included in the calculations of total cost," Steuding said, "the streets listed will undoubtedly be reconstructed for less than indicated, if we are fortunate, and unforeseen obstacles do not present themselves. With this in mind, therefore, it is further re-

37 Soldiers Are Missing in Plane

Rotation Group Arrived Tuesday From Service in Far East

Seattle, Jan. 7 (AP) — A plane carrying 37 soldiers who arrived only yesterday from service in Korea and Japan was reported missing today over south Idaho.

Fort Lawton authorities said it was one of several chartered planes that left here during the night to speed rotated soldiers toward their homes.

The plane's destination was Fort Jackson, Miss.

The two-engined C-46 carried a crew of four.

Since home-bound rotation troops are taken by train or plane to a military base nearest their homes, the Fort Jackson destination indicated most of those aboard probably were from the south.

No names of any aboard were available immediately.

Over Rugged Country

The big nonscheduled transport's route lay over rugged and isolated mountains of southeastern Idaho and western Wyoming. The Weather Bureau here reported flying conditions were not severe in that area.

In Cheyenne, George Nelson, Wyoming aeronautics director, said an aerial search has been started. He said the plane was flying on instruments.

Property Is Reclassified To Permit New Market

Grand Union Company Can Construct Building on Albany Avenue Near Roosevelt Park —Title Clearance Expected Next Month

Common Council cleared the way last night for the proposed construction of a Grand Union supermarket near Roosevelt Park when it reclassified certain property in the area from residential to business.

Major properties involved in present negotiations are the Martin-Moran, Inc., parcel fronting on Albany avenue and located between Albany and Madison avenues and the Harold Halwick and John W. Evans property fronting on Albany avenue.

N. Jansen Fowler, attorney for the Grand Union Co., said today that title to the property was expected to be closed on or before February 19.

Meet With Opposition

First applications by Martin-Moran, Inc., and Halwick-Evans in November for a change in zoning met with firm opposition and was refused by Council. The applicants resubmitted their bids with buffer zone provisions precluding any business along Madison and Wilson avenues and Manor Place. Residents of the Roosevelt Park area, represented by Attorney Fred Stang, found the compromise more acceptable and withdrew their opposition to the proposed changes.

The Martin-Moran property was rezoned last night from residential to business with the exception of a five-foot strip running along Madison avenue for a distance of 25 feet. The Halwick-Evans property was reclassified to business with the exception of a five-foot strip of land on Manor Place.

Four Others Rezoned

Four other applications of area property owners were also rezoned from residential to business as follows: Earl Sickler, 497 Albany avenue; Jennie Silverman, 567-569 Albany avenue; Mildred F. and J. Elmer Cates, 451 Albany avenue, and James E. Snead, 455 Albany avenue.

1,500 Trees Burn; Pageant to Go On

Twelfth Night Program Is to Be Held Despite Local Pranksters

A mild wave of local vandalism, which began this week with the theft of Christmas tree bulbs, reached a new peak last night with the apparent mischievous burning of trees piled in the Athletic Field for a Twelfth Night pageant Friday night.

The local Junior Chamber of Commerce, sponsor, of the ceremony, estimated that 1,500 trees were burned.

Meanwhile, local police received more reports of the theft of bulbs from Christmas trees, including 56 taken from the tree on the grounds of the Fair Street Reformed Church.

Taken From Two Places

Others were reported taken from the Frank Thompson property, 256 West Chestnut street, and from that of John Cleveland, 75 Emmerick street.

Police were notified Monday that bulbs had been taken from the West Chestnut street property of Police Lt. James P. Martin and from the trimmings on the L. J. Helmbold property, 22 Shufeldt street. Also Monday night, it was reported that air had been let out of eight or 10 cars parked near

Man Found Dead In Snow Alongside Dock in Rondout

Thomas J. Kelly Victim of Heart Attack, Is Coroner Kelly's Verdict

Thomas Joseph Kelly, 56, of Saugerties, who recently had been living here on Murray street, was found dead on the west bank of the Rondout creek at the foot of Canal street this morning.

Coroner Ernest Kelly said death was due to coronary occlusion.

Police were notified at 9:48 a. m., that the man was apparently dead and Sgt. Lemuel Howard dispatched Officers Carl Janasiewicz, Leonard Ellsworth and Earl Schoonmaker to investigate. It was reported that Edward Peck, of Post street, was the first to see the man lying on the ground.

Dead Several Hours

Authorities said Kelly had apparently been dead for several hours before his snow-covered body was found.

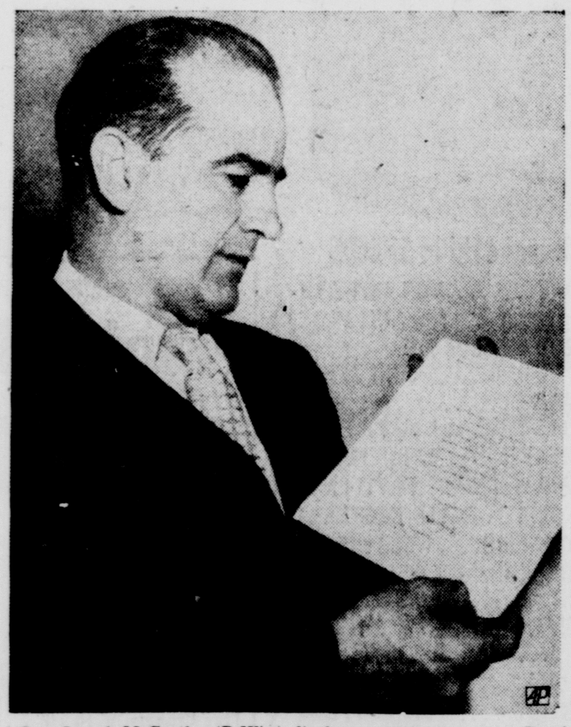

Coroner Kelly turned the body over to the W. N. Conner Funeral Home, here for transportation to Saugerties, where funeral arrangements are to be made by Keenan & Son.

Kelly is survived by three brothers, William F., Michael, and Hugh, and a sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Myers, all of Saugerties. Funeral arrangements will be announced.

Earth Shock Reported

San Jose, Costa Rica, Jan. 7 (AP)—A strong earth shock was felt here at 5 a. m. EST today. It lasted approximately 18 to 20 seconds. There were no immediate reports on damage.

Sabre Jets Down MIG in Two Fights South of Yalu River

Seoul, Jan. 7 (AP) — American Sabre jets, flying a shield for fighter-bombers striking at the twisted North Korean rail system, shot down one Communist MIG-15 and damaged two others today, the Fifth Air Force reported.

The swept-wing Sabres and Red jet fighters tangled in two running dogfights just south of the winding Yalu river boundary between North Korea and Manchuria. Eight Sabres and 10 MIGs were involved.

Credited with shooting down a MIG in flames was Capt. Charles C. Carr of Las Vegas, Nev. Both damage credits went to Lt. Edmund G. Hepner, Selman, Okla.

The fighter-bombers, including Australian Meteor jets and U. S. Marine Corsairs, ranged widely over northwest Korea. Pilots reported cutting rail lines in 56 places near Pyongyang, the Korean Communist capital, Chinnampo, Kangdong, Haeju, Sinchon and Sariwon.

The navy announced in Tokyo that the U. S. battleship Missouri returned to the Yellow Sea Tuesday and joined British warships in blasting Communist targets along the Korean west coast.

It was the Mighty Mo's third appearance in those waters since Sept. 21, 1950, when she supported the assault against Seoul after the Inchon landings.

The heaviest Chinese thrust on the ground was against allied positions on Sniper Ridge on the central front. The Reds opened up with a blasting artillery screen and sent about 80 soldiers charging through sub-freezing temperatures at Pinpoint Hill atop the ridge. The two-wave attack was hurled back after an hour-long battle. An estimated 13 Chinese were wounded and seven counted killed.

On the southern slopes of nearby Jane Russell Hill, allied infantry battled in the light of sputtering flares to beat off another 30-minute attack by about 40 Chinese.

Arthur H. Wicks Continues As Leader of State Senate

Albany, Jan. 7 (AP)—Assemblyman Eugene F. Bannigan of Brooklyn and Sen. Francis J. Mahoney of Manhattan today mapped strategy to lead their outnumbered Democratic colleagues against the Republicans in the Legislature.

The two New York city lawmakers were elected minority leaders last night at pre-session caucuses. Their plans to battle the GOP were complicated by heavy Republican majorities in both the Senate and Assembly.

At separate sessions, the GOP delegations elected Oswald D. Heck of Schenectady to a record-breaking 17th term as Assembly speaker, and Arthur H. Wicks of Kingston as Senate majority leader. Lee B. Mailler of Cornwall was re-named assembly majority leader.

The party caucuses completed top-level organization for today's opening of the 176th regular session of New York's Legislature.

At a meeting of Democratic lawmakers after last night's caucuses, Richard H. Balch of Utica, the party's new state chairman, said "we cannot expect the people of the state to entrust us with the reins of government in 1954" unless the party presses "a constructive, progressive program for the betterment of all of the peoples."

Bannigan, an assemblyman since 1941 from Brooklyn's 11th District is a lieutenant of Kenneth F. Sutherland, who was elected Kings county leader Dec. 29 to succeed Francis J. Sinnott.

Bannigan succeeds the late Irwin F. Steingut as minority leader in the larger house.

Mahoney, from Manhattan's 19th District, was elected the Democrats' Senate leader last Sept. 12 to succeed the late Elmer F. Quinn. Both Steingut and Quinn died last September.

Adlai Undermines Press, Alf Thinks

Says New Marxian Line Shifts From Wall Street to Papers

Topeka, Kan., Jan. 7 (AP)—Alf M. Landon said today that Adlai E. Stevenson "has participated since the election in a subtle * * * misrepresentation of the fairness and truthfulness of the American newspapers in reporting political events."

"There is a steady campaign underway to destroy the confidence of the American people in the objective reporting of American newspapers—big and little," Landon said in a speech prepared for a meeting here of the "Hi-Twelve Club," a masonic luncheon group.

Landon, former Kansas governor and unsuccessful Republican candidate in 1936, did not elaborate on his statement concerning Stevenson, the defeated Democratic presidential candidate last November.

See New Marxian Line

"The new Marxian line of propaganda is already manifesting itself," Landon said. "No longer is it centering on Wall Streeters but the American press.

"* * * if the American people's confidence in the disinterested and unselfish reporting of their newspapers is ever undermined, a crisis in the life of our great American Republic would be at hand."

Gravity Unprecedented

The President's farewell to Congress, before whom he previously has delivered such messages in person, was left for the reading of others. Truman plans a similar message to the union in a broadcast Jan. 15. The one to Congress today was of almost unprecedented gravity.

The President submitted no legislative recommendations, saying

Brakes Put on Okays

By JACK BELL

Washington, Jan. 7 (AP)—President-elect Eisenhower has suggested inauguration day confirmation by the Senate of his cabinet but Democrats are balking at such rapid-fire action.

Sen. Taft of Ohio, the Republican leader, confirmed that a move is underway to gain Senate approval without any committee investigation of the cabinet nominees.

But the Ohioan told this reporter he fears the Democrats may raise objections or resort to lengthy talk which would ball up the inaugural day schedule, so far as the Senate is concerned.

In this connection, Sen. Byrd (D-Va.), who helped Eisenhower in the election campaign by saying he couldn't support the Democratic ticket, said in a separate interview he believes it would be unwise to confirm even cabinet officials without committee inquiries.

Smooth Transition Forecast by Lodge For Capital Regime

Eisenhower, He Says, Holds Control in All Ways —General to Meet Churchill

New York, Jan. 7 (AP)—President-elect Eisenhower's liaison man with the outgoing Truman administration today predicted a "very smooth transition" from the Democratic to the Republican regime on Jan. 20.

Former Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge, of Massachusetts, conferred with Eisenhower for about an hour at the general's Commodore Hotel headquarters. Lodge said he gave the President-elect a report on his activities as Eisenhower's representative in the expiring administration.

Thinks It Will Be Smooth

"I think the transition will be very smooth," Lodge said. "Gen. Eisenhower is on top of the job in every way. He has a full grasp of the problems he is going to have to face."

Eisenhower has picked Lodge to

Bridges Asks Desertion Be Probed Soon

Washington, Jan. 7 (AP)—Sen. Bridges (R.-N. H.) called today for "an immediate investigation" of reports that many young men are deserting from the armed services to avoid Korean combat duty.

The Pentagon discounted the seriousness of the situation.

Any probe should be by the Senate Armed Services Committee or its preparedness subgroup, Bridges told a reporter.

Bridges soon may be chairman of the subcommittee.

Pentagon officials said the current count of deserters who had not been picked up, or had not returned voluntarily, ran about 13,790. Under service regulations, a man normally is not counted as a deserter unless he has been absent at least 30 days. The total of those absent without official leave (AWOL) would be much higher.

Would Mean 36,000

The Pentagon figures were given in comment on a copyrighted article in the Louisville, Ky., Times, which said yesterday that on any given day "enough able-bodied men to make up two complete

Would Have Vehicle Inspection, Mandatory Liability Coverage for All Cars

Asks Court Probe

Governor Also Speaks for Single Director of Civil Service

Albany, Jan. 7 (AP)—Gov. Dewey today submitted to the 1953 Legislature a "hold-the-line program to avoid tax boosts and predicted an easing of inflation under the Eisenhower administration.

In his 11th annual message to New York's lawmakers, the governor said he had ordered all state agencies to clamp down on spending except that "necessary to the health and welfare of the people * * * or mandated by state law."

Program Urged

He urged the 176th regular session of the state Senate and Assembly to enact legislation to:

1. Require twice-a-year state inspection of automobiles and mandatory liability coverage for all cars.

2. Revise downward the formula under which the state now joins with the federal government to pay 80 per cent of certain local welfare costs.

3. Begin a statewide probe of the judicial system to recommend steps to end trial delays and cut court costs.

4. Reorganize the State Civil Service Department by replacing the present three-member commission with a single administrative director.

No Spectacular Spending

The Republican governor said his program included "no vast, spectacular plans for new expenditures" but "rather the steady program of maintaining and advancing the services of the state to its people without added financial burdens."

Dewey said his work on the state's 1953-54 budget, which he will send to the Legislature by Feb. 1, "indicates that state finances are entering a period of greater stringency." He added:

"We cannot again expect an increase in tax receipts, as in past years, to offset the rising costs of government and to meet unfulfilled capital needs.

"We have reason to believe, however, that the continued inflationary policies of the national government, which caused much of our rising costs, are at an end."

Tells Mayor to Get Busy

Commenting on New York city's puzzling financial situation, Dewey urged Mayor Vincent R. Impellitteri's administration to enforce "rigid economy" and pointedly noted that the metropolis could "raise additional moneys by way of taxation, special assessments, license fees and other city charges."

The governor said he had received a legislative program for the city from Impellitteri "within the past 24 hours and after this message had been printed." He said "it will, of course, receive the most careful study."

The mayor's program, announced yesterday, called for a 13-million-dollar increase in the city's budget, more state financial aid, and adoption of state legislation to permit an increase in real estate taxes and a new levy on business to finance a proposed transit authority.

Praises Crime Group

Dewey said his State Crime Commission had "rendered a brilliant and notable public service in uncovering organized criminal activities."

He made no recommendations about crime-busting in the message, but promised he would send "one or more special messages" to the legislature later "with a series of major proposals for the improvement and strengthening of criminal justice."

In his 9,300-word message, Dewey emphasized a proposed new program designed to cut highway accident and deaths. It would include compulsory, twice-a-year inspection of all autos at state-operated check stations, mandatory liability insurance coverage of motorists, a "fix-proof" system of tickets for traffic violations, mandatory minimum fines for more serious violators, an increase in the number of state police from the current 900 to 1,200, for highway patrol work, and a new re-examination program for errant drivers.

Urges License Boost

The governor advocated that the cost of regular driving licenses be increased from 50 cents a year to $1 a year, and that chauffeur licenses be boosted from $1.33 to $2. Additional income would help finance the cost of the extra state police and the ex-examination program.

Dewey proposed new welfare-

Filibuster Change Given Little Hope

Backers, However, Battle Onward: Vote May Be Put Aside

Washington, Jan. 7 (AP)—Senators hoping to break the back of future filibusters fought on today for an immediate change in Senate rules despite talk by Republican leaders they would do better to wait.

Although almost certainly foredoomed to failure by the opposition of southern Democrats and a big majority of Republican senators, the filibuster foes contended their only chance lay in getting action before the Senate settles down to work under existing rules.

Sen. Douglas (D.-Ill.) said that if it is decided the rules of the preceding Senate automatically apply to the new Senate, "we may as well say farewell to any chance for Civil Rights legislation or needed changes in Senate procedure."

"In slang parlance, we may kiss such a possibility good-bye," said Douglas in a speech prepared for the resumption of the debate which opened yesterday after the Senate joined with the House in counting the Presidential electoral vote.

Although Sen. Taft of Ohio, majority leader in the new GOP-controlled Senate, said he would like to bring the rules scrap to an end late today, there were signs a vote might be put off until tomorrow to allow more time for debate.

Bulletin

New York, Jan. 7 (AP)—The New York State Crime Commission will resume its probe of crime and racketeering on the New York waterfront Jan. 19, it announced today.

A commission spokesman declined to say what phase the probe will take up next. The hearings were recessed before Christmas for the holidays.

Council Postpones Action on Streets And Equipment

Finance Chairman Seeks Delay to Permit More Time to Study Program

Action on a request by Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk and the Board of Public Works for $100,000 for street improvements and $67,410.56 for purchase of equipment and machinery was postponed last night by Common Council until January 20.

Alderman David Schecter of the Sixth Ward, chairman of the finance committee, asked for the extension in order to give the committee time to study the request.

A communication from BPW Superintendent Ernest A. Steuding listed streets included in the program and estimated the cost of proposed reconstruction.

Steuding pointed out that estimated cost included such contingencies as "uncertainty of market, materials, labor, unknown subbase conditions and unforeseen obstacles." All streets reconstructed under the program, he stated, would include the use of newly quarried stone aggregate and bituminous asphalt "which gives a permanent type of pavement."

Asks No Restriction

"Due to the contingency costs being included in the calculations of total cost," Steuding said, "the streets listed will undoubtedly be reconstructed for less than indicated, if we are fortunate, and unforeseen obstacles do not present themselves. With this in mind, therefore, it is further re-

37 Soldiers Are Missing in Plane

Rotation Group Arrived Tuesday From Service in Far East

Seattle, Jan. 7 (AP) — A plane carrying 37 soldiers who arrived only yesterday from service in Korea and Japan was reported missing today over south Idaho.

Fort Lawton authorities said it was one of several chartered planes that left here during the night to speed rotated soldiers toward their homes.

The plane's destination was Fort Jackson, Miss.

The two-engined C-46 carried a crew of four.

Since home-bound rotation troops are taken by train or plane to a military base nearest their homes, the Fort Jackson destination indicated most of those aboard probably were from the south.

No names of any aboard were available immediately.

Over Rugged Country

The big nonscheduled transport's route lay over rugged and isolated mountains of southeastern Idaho and western Wyoming. The Weather Bureau here reported flying conditions were not severe in that area.

In Cheyenne, George Nelson, Wyoming aeronautics director, said an aerial search has been started. He said the plane was flying on instruments.

Property Is Reclassified To Permit New Market

Grand Union Company Can Construct Building on Albany Avenue Near Roosevelt Park —Title Clearance Expected Next Month

Common Council cleared the way last night for the proposed construction of a Grand Union supermarket near Roosevelt Park when it reclassified certain property in the area from residential to business.

Major properties involved in present negotiations are the Martin-Moran, Inc., parcel fronting on Albany avenue and located between Albany and Madison avenues and the Harold Halwick and John W. Evans property fronting on Albany avenue.

N. Jansen Fowler, attorney for the Grand Union Co., said today that title to the property was expected to be closed on or before February 19.

Meet With Opposition

First applications by Martin-Moran, Inc., and Halwick-Evans in November for a change in zoning met with firm opposition and was refused by Council. The applicants resubmitted their bids with buffer zone provisions precluding any business along Madison and Wilson avenues and Manor Place. Residents of the Roosevelt Park area, represented by Attorney Fred Stang, found the compromise more acceptable and withdrew their opposition to the proposed changes.

The Martin-Moran property was rezoned last night from residential to business with the exception of a five-foot strip running along Madison avenue for a distance of 25 feet. The Halwick-Evans property was reclassified to business with the exception of a five-foot strip of land on Manor Place.

Four Others Rezoned

Four other applications of area property owners were also rezoned from residential to business as follows: Earl Sickler, 497 Albany avenue; Jennie Silverman, 567-569 Albany avenue; Mildred F. and J. Elmer Cates, 451 Albany avenue, and James E. Snead, 455 Albany avenue.

Zoning law amendments proposed in a communication from

Twelfth Night Program Is to Be Held Despite Local Pranksters

A mild wave of local vandalism, which began this week with the theft of Christmas tree bulbs, reached a new peak last night with the apparent mischievous burning of trees piled in the Athletic Field for a Twelfth Night pageant Friday night.

The local Junior Chamber of Commerce, sponsor, of the ceremony, estimated that 1,500 trees were burned.

Meanwhile, local police received more reports of the theft of bulbs from Christmas trees, including 56 taken from the tree on the grounds of the Fair Street Reformed Church.

Taken From Two Places

Others were reported taken from the Frank Thompson property, 256 West Chestnut street, and from that of John Cleveland, 75 Emmerick street.

Police were notified Monday that bulbs had been taken from the West Chestnut street property of Police Lt. James P. Martin and from the trimmings on the L. J. Helmbold property, 22 Shufeldt street. Also Monday night, it was reported that air had been let out of eight or 10 cars parked near

Man Found Dead In Snow Alongside Dock in Rondout

Thomas J. Kelly Victim of Heart Attack, Is Coroner Kelly's Verdict

Thomas Joseph Kelly, 56, of Saugerties, who recently had been living here on Murray street, was found dead on the west bank of the Rondout creek at the foot of Canal street this morning.

Coroner Ernest Kelly said death was due to coronary occlusion.

Police were notified at 9:48 a. m., that the man was apparently dead and Sgt. Lemuel Howard dispatched Officers Carl Janasiewicz, Leonard Ellsworth and Earl Schoonmaker to investigate. It was reported that Edward Peck, of Post street, was the first to see the man lying on the ground.

Dead Several Hours

Authorities said Kelly had apparently been dead for several hours before his snow-covered body was found.

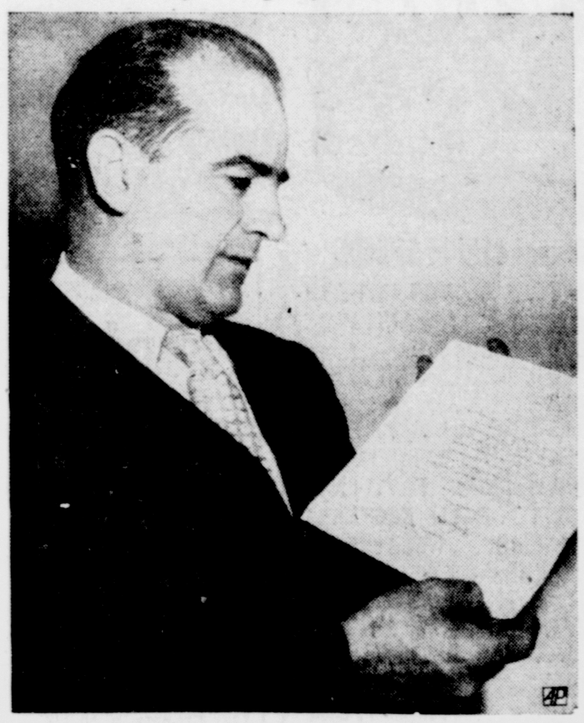

Coroner Kelly turned the body over to the W. N. Conner Funeral Home, here for transportation to Saugerties, where funeral arrangements are to be made by Keenan & Son.

Kelly is survived by three brothers, William F., Michael, and Hugh, and a sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Myers, all of Saugerties. Funeral arrangements will be announced.

Adlai Undermines Press, Alf Thinks

Says New Marxian Line Shifts From Wall Street to Papers

Topeka, Kan., Jan. 7 (AP)—Alf M. Landon said today that Adlai E. Stevenson "has participated since the election in a subtle * * * misrepresentation of the fairness and truthfulness of the American newspapers in reporting political events."

"There is a steady campaign underway to destroy the confidence of the American people in the objective reporting of American newspapers—big and little," Landon said in a speech prepared for a meeting here of the "Hi-Twelve Club," a masonic luncheon group.

Landon, former Kansas governor and unsuccessful Republican candidate in 1936, did not elaborate on his statement concerning Stevenson, the defeated Democratic presidential candidate last November.

See New Marxian Line

"The new Marxian line of propaganda is already manifesting itself," Landon said. "No longer is it centering on Wall Streeters but the American press.

"* * * if the American people's confidence in the disinterested and unselfish reporting of their newspapers is ever undermined, a crisis in the life of our great American Republic would be at hand."

Sabre Jets Down MIG in Two Fights South of Yalu River

Seoul, Jan. 7 (AP) — American Sabre jets, flying a shield for fighter-bombers striking at the twisted North Korean rail system, shot down one Communist MIG-15 and damaged two others today, the Fifth Air Force reported.

The swept-wing Sabres and Red jet fighters tangled in two running dogfights just south of the winding Yalu river boundary between North Korea and Manchuria. Eight Sabres and 10 MIGs were involved.

Credited with shooting down a MIG in flames was Capt. Charles C. Carr of Las Vegas, Nev. Both damage credits went to Lt. Edmund G. Hepner, Selman, Okla.

The fighter-bombers, including Australian Meteor jets and U. S. Marine Corsairs, ranged widely over northwest Korea. Pilots reported cutting rail lines in 56 places near Pyongyang, the Korean Communist capital, Chinnampo, Kangdong, Haeju, Sinchon and Sariwon.

The navy announced in Tokyo that the U. S. battleship Missouri returned to the Yellow Sea Tuesday and joined British warships in blasting Communist targets along the Korean west coast.

It was the Mighty Mo's third appearance in those waters since Sept. 21, 1950, when she supported the assault against Seoul after the Inchon landings.

The heaviest Chinese thrust on the ground was against allied positions on Sniper Ridge on the central front. The Reds opened up with a blasting artillery screen and sent about 80 soldiers charging through sub-freezing temperatures at Pinpoint Hill atop the ridge. The two-wave attack was hurled back after an hour-long battle. An estimated 13 Chinese were wounded and seven counted killed.

On the southern slopes of nearby Jane Russell Hill, allied infantry battled in the light of sputtering flares to beat off another 30-minute attack by about 40 Chinese.

Arthur H. Wicks Continues As Leader of State Senate

Albany, Jan. 7 (AP)—Assemblyman Eugene F. Bannigan of Brooklyn and Sen. Francis J. Mahoney of Manhattan today mapped strategy to lead their outnumbered Democratic colleagues against the Republicans in the Legislature.

The two New York city lawmakers were elected minority leaders last night at pre-session caucuses. Their plans to battle the GOP were complicated by heavy Republican majorities in both the Senate and Assembly.

At separate sessions, the GOP delegations elected Oswald D. Heck of Schenectady to a record-breaking 17th term as Assembly speaker, and Arthur H. Wicks of Kingston as Senate majority leader. Lee B. Mailler of Cornwall was re-named assembly majority leader.

The party caucuses completed top-level organization for today's opening of the 176th regular session of New York's Legislature.

At a meeting of Democratic lawmakers after last night's caucuses, Richard H. Balch of Utica, the party's new state chairman, said "we cannot expect the people of the state to entrust us with the reins of government in 1954" unless the party presses "a constructive, progressive program for the betterment of all of the peoples."

Bannigan, an assemblyman since 1941 from Brooklyn's 11th District is a lieutenant of Kenneth F. Sutherland, who was elected Kings county leader Dec. 29 to succeed Francis J. Sinnott.

Bannigan succeeds the late Irwin F. Steingut as minority leader in the larger house.

Mahoney, from Manhattan's 19th District, was elected the Democrats' Senate leader last Sept. 12 to succeed the late Elmer F. Quinn. Both Steingut and Quinn died last September.

Holiday Spirit At the Benedictine

The Sisters and staff of the Benedictine Hospital express sincere thanks to their many friends for their kind remembrance in contributing so generously toward the happiness of the patients at Christmas. Members of the auxiliary were in charge of the decorations and converted the hospital into a scene of beauty. Wreaths and Yule logs with candles were in evidence everywhere.

The decorations in the Children's Department were particularly effective and the little ones were well remembered. Beautiful favors were received from the children of the Campus School at New Paltz. The Teen-Age Club, directed by Mrs. Henry DeWitt, also remembered the children with very attractive, handmade dolls and holy pictures. The Association of Central Business Men distributed toys and candies.

Early in the holiday season the patients were delighted with Christmas carols played by members of the Musicians' Union, Local 215. The carols were again sung during Christmas week by the grade pupils from the Immaculate Conception School, also by members of St. John's Episcopal choir, all of which thrilled the patients.

The great surprise and treat of the previous year was repeated when the Rural Carolers, as the 35 seminarians from St. Joseph's Seminary in Dunwoodie, Yonkers call themselves, again sang the old, but ever new, Christmas refrains.

The Salvation Army, too, were solicitous and most generous in their distribution of gift packages and useful books for the patients' reading.

The merchants were most generous and many friends contributed an abundance of poinsettias and attractive plants which made the newly-renovated chapel more beautiful than ever.

Holiday Spirit At the Benedictine

The Sisters and staff of the Benedictine Hospital express sincere thanks to their many friends for their kind remembrance in contributing so generously toward the happiness of the patients at Christmas. Members of the auxiliary were in charge of the decorations and converted the hospital into a scene of beauty. Wreaths and Yule logs with candles were in evidence everywhere.

The decorations in the Children's Department were particularly effective and the little ones were well remembered. Beautiful favors were received from the children of the Campus School at New Paltz. The Teen-Age Club, directed by Mrs. Henry DeWitt, also remembered the children with very attractive, handmade dolls and holy pictures. The Association of Central Business Men distributed toys and candies.

Early in the holiday season the patients were delighted with Christmas carols played by members of the Musicians' Union, Local 215. The carols were again sung during Christmas week by the grade pupils from the Immaculate Conception School, also by members of St. John's Episcopal choir, all of which thrilled the patients.

The great surprise and treat of the previous year was repeated when the Rural Carolers, as the 35 seminarians from St. Joseph's Seminary in Dunwoodie, Yonkers call themselves, again sang the old, but ever new, Christmas refrains.

The Salvation Army, too, were solicitous and most generous in their distribution of gift packages and useful books for the patients' reading.

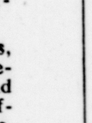

The merchants were most generous and many friends contributed an abundance of poinsettias and attractive plants which made the newly-renovated chapel more beautiful than ever.

Will Finish Korea Tour

Seoul, Jan. 7 (AP) — Maj. John Eisenhower, son of U. S. President-elect Dwight Eisenhower, said today he will finish his regular Korean tour rather than apply for transfer to Japan. Eisenhower becomes eligible this month for such a transfer. He has earned 20 rotation points since joining the Third Division last July. Army policy allows an officer to leave the combat zone if he agrees to serve a greater length of time elsewhere overseas. Eisenhower is intelligence officer of the division.

Common Council

by Dr. Douw S. Meyers, chairman of the board, the Rev. Frank Gollnick, the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Martin J. Drury, Dr. Edward F. Shea and James A. Dwyer.

Vote for $100,000 Note

Council approved a request by City Treasurer Oscar A. Goodsell for issuance of tax notes in the sum of $100,000 in anticipation of the collection of 1953 general taxes. In the request it was estimated that the various city departments would require a sum not in excess of that figure "for current expenses in the interim between the present time and the collection of taxes for the current fiscal year."

A resolution from the Board of Public Works in regard to special assessment for the paving and grading and the construction of sanitary and storm sewers in Browning Terrace was referred to the city assessor.

Requests for sick leave schedules for members of the police department, paid fire department and city hall employes were referred to the finance committee.

Council authorized payment of the claim of Elizabeth Satterlee for $9 for plumbing expenses caused by the surcharging of the sewer into her premises at 90 Henry street.

Other Claims

Claims against the city submitted by Peter L. Secreto of 384 First avenue and Dorothy Schantz of 71 Madison avenue were referred to corporation counsel. Secreto claimed $79.04 for alleged damages to his car December 5, 1952, when he struck a trench about 1½ feet wide and 2 feet deep on Flatbush avenue. Mrs. Schantz asked $150 for expenses resulting from a fall December 27 in front of 76 Wilson avenue which she claims was caused when she tripped over a tin can embedded in the pavement. She stated that she fell on both knees and that her claim was based on doctor's bills, X-rays and damage to wearing apparel.

Payment of city bills amounting to $6,876.71 was authorized by Council.

A resolution presented by Alderman Radel requesting a study of traffic at the intersection of Foxhall avenue and Shufeldt street and present to Council "ordinances necessary to govern the movements of and parking of vehicles at this intersection" was referred to the traffic control committee. Also referred to the traffic committee was a resolution by Alderman Cullum asking for a consideration of installing stop signs at the following intersections: Mountainview avenue east and west at the intersection of Main street; Fairmont avenue east at intersection of Main street; Fairmont avenue west at intersection of Miller's Lane; Mountainview avenue west at intersection of Miller's Lane; Browning Terrace east at intersection of Miller's Lane.

Resolutions Introduced

Council also referred to this committee three resolutions by Alderman Golden asking the following: Erection of a stop sign on Mary's avenue at the corner of Pine Grove avenue "to prevent traffic accidents and to control vehicular traffic from interfering with funerals going to the two cemeteries within the block;" establishment of a loading zone at 5 Abeel street and installation of a traffic light at the intersection of Foxhall avenue and Broadway because of pedestrian difficulty in crossing Broadway during daylight hours and due to "heavy traffic causing hazardous conditions for school children crossing both Broadway and Foxhall avenue.

Alderman William Parmalee of the 13th Ward charged that a continuous flow of water down the residential side of Chapel street in the last nine months, about which frequent complaints had been made, had now formed ice "two to four feet wide and is now a menace to the residents entering and leaving their homes and may cause bodily injury." His petition for relief was referred to Mayor Newkirk and the Board of Public Works.

Referred to the Board of Public Works was a resolution by Alderman Golden asking that the BPW take "better care" of the skating rink in front of the Myron J. Michael School, see that it is properly flooded and the skating surface smoothed each day so that the children and people of the city of Kingston may enjoy good skating each day at this municipal skating rink."

Complains About Shots

Reno, Jan. 7 (AP)—A 22-year-old Virginian captured after a 100-mile-an-hour shooting chase, asserted Nevada authorities use unfair tactics. "Cops never shot at me back east when I outran them," moaned Eugene F. Brackens, 22, of Galax, Va. He was caught 40 miles north of here near Pyramid Lake. Five police and sheriff's cars from Reno and Sparks pursued him all the way. Two cars, far off their regular beats, ran out of gasoline. A Reno policeman pumped four bullets into the rear of Brackens' sedan, but he wasn't caught until the pavement ran out in remote northern Washoe county. Brackens was charged with reckless driving.

Complains About Shots

Reno, Jan. 7 (AP)—A 22-year-old Virginian captured after a 100-mile-an-hour shooting chase, asserted Nevada authorities use unfair tactics. "Cops never shot at me back east when I outran them," moaned Eugene F. Brackens, 22, of Galax, Va. He was caught 40 miles north of here near Pyramid Lake. Five police and sheriff's cars from Reno and Sparks pursued him all the way. Two cars, far off their regular beats, ran out of gasoline. A Reno policeman pumped four bullets into the rear of Brackens' sedan, but he wasn't caught until the pavement ran out in remote northern Washoe county. Brackens was charged with reckless driving.

DULLES CAN SOAR ON HIGH PLANE

For a long time Secretary of State Dean Acheson has been the prisoner of his critics. He has been unable to make or execute certain kinds of policy, because to do so would have aroused a storm of opposition that might have stymied all policy.

The U. S. Foreign Service, vital overseas wing of the State Department, has been similarly entrapped. Fearing to do anything that somehow might not look good in the headlines of 1955, American diplomats have done relatively little of constructive value.

But in all the head-shaking over this unhappy condition, a few important things appear to have been overlooked. If the State Department and the Foreign Service were as strong as they ought to be, then they could not easily be captured.

What has happened, therefore, is a reflection not merely of the strength of the State Department's opposition, but of the department's own weakness.

Some observers feel this weakness has been developing over a long period. The department's prestige, these men say, has been so marred that it is totally out of key with America's position as the most powerful nation on earth.

Many factors undoubtedly account for the evident decline. In recent times, the ascendancy of the foreign aid establishment has given rise to a new phenomenon, the economic ambassador, to rival the traditional "political" ambassador. It is entirely possible, too, that the growing complexity of world events has outdated the practice of choosing top diplomats from the ranks of top domestic campaign contributors.

The incoming Secretary of State, John Foster Dulles, would thus seem to be confronted with a double opportunity.

He will enjoy reasonable freedom to make policy without fear of being swarmed over by domestic political opponents of the Eisenhower administration. There will be opposition, of course, but it is unlikely to have the fury of that which greeted Acheson at every turn.

More than that, Dulles will have the chance to rebuild the prestige and power of the State Department, including the Foreign Service, into an establishment worthy of the preeminence of America in world affairs.

If Dulles can make American diplomacy abroad a symbol of high purpose, dignity, responsibility and consistent policy, he will have carved himself an enduring niche in the long line of American secretaries of State.

AIR DEFENSE IS ALERT

Now and again, the Secretary of the Air Force or some top Air Force officer talks in sweeping terms of the air defense of this country, and the North American continent. But we don't get much first-hand word about how that defense is being developed and maintained.

A while back the Wall Street Journal surveyed the joint U. S.-Canada air defenses on our northern frontier, and told quite a remarkable story.

From Alaska and the Canadian Northwest, across the barren shield of north central Canada to Presque Isle, Maine, Newfoundland and the top of Greenland, jet fighters manned by American and Canadian crews are on 24-hour alert. At a signal, they would be soaring into the air to do battle against an invading bomber force thousands of miles from U. S. and Canadian production centers.

At one such base in Labrador, it takes 50 snowplows to keep the runways constantly clear of of snow so they will be ready for instant use. Pilots wear their flying clothes day in and day out, and ears are tuned to the telephone ring that might spell attack.

Throughout the whole defense arc, weather and radar stations stand guard, collecting and relaying vital information. The radar screen is truly America's first line of defense. All these safeguards are being expanded and developed steadily. Cooperation between Canadian and American military authorities is excellent. The entire story is a heartening one to hear.

DEFINITIONS

It is so easy to pick an argument about definitions. Yet when one says the word, child, he does not mean a man of 50 with a beard. However, in the fields of politics or economics the tendency is to foul thought by fighting over private definitions, each thinker coming up with his own.

In the hope that there may be a way of stating some ideas with some clarity, I offer a few definitions which seem to be standard:

Capitalism: ". . . capitalism is an economic order based on the profit motive; therefore its leading characteristics are the private ownership of the means of production, their operation for pecuniary gain, their control by private enterprisers, and the use of credit and the wage system. . . ." ("The Triumph of American Capitalism," by Louis M. Hacker.)

Fundamentally, this system requires human freedom because inherent in it is the right of the individual to use his earnings according to his choice and conscience.

Socialism: While the basic concept of Socialism is government ownership of the means of production, distribution and exchange, the varieties are many, ranging from the mild reformist measures of the left-wing New Dealers to the present state of society in Soviet Russia. In effect, Socialists differ as to whether their aims are to be achieved by "democratic" means or by revolution, depending upon their theory of the speed of change.

Although numerous Utopian Socialist concepts existed prior to Karl Marx, he and Frederick Engels founded what has come to be known as "scientific" Socialism, the basis of which is the biologic assumption of the struggle for existence which Marx accepted from the writings of Charles Darwin and Thomas Huxley. Applying these ideas to politics, economics and sociology, they evolved the Class Struggle:

"The history of all hitherto existing society is the history of class struggles.

"Freeman and slave, patrician and plebian, lord and serf, guildmaster and journeyman, in a word, oppressor and oppressed, stood in constant opposition to one another, carried on an uninterrupted, now hidden, now open fight, a fight that each time ended, either in a revolutionary reconstruction of society at large, or in the common ruin of the contending classes." ("Communist Manifesto.")

There have always been deviations from this position among Socialists. For instance:

Fabian Socialism: This is strictly a British form of Socialism represented by the Labour Party. The word Fabian represents "go slow." It is go-slow Socialism by strictly constitutional means. Even when the Labour Party was in power, it limited its socialization program (in Great Britain, called a nationalization program) to 20 per cent of the nation's economy. The founders of Fabian Socialism were Beatrice and Sidney Webb, George Bernard Shaw, H. G. Wells and other intellectuals.

Marxism: The economic doctrine of Karl Marx is based on the "Theory of Surplus Value," which, in effect, means that the increased value arises only from the labor-time added in its production. Harold Laski describes this extremely complicated theory as follows:

". . . It is therefore evident that in the production of any given commodity all who do not contribute labour-power thereto do not produce values. All, therefore, who receive part of the product without this contribution are parasites robbing labour. Marx accordingly denies that profit results from the capitalist who lends money or the trader who conducts the process of exchange. . . ."

All this theorizing would have meant nothing had not a faction of the Russian Social Democratic Party, the Bolsheviks succeeded by violence in capturing Russia in 1917.

Communism: Generally the current Russian system is called Communism, which is an error. Russian Marxism is now in what they term a Socialist stage; to be followed by Communism; which will produce a state of society in which government withers away. The Russians faced the problem of making their ideas work in an antagonistic world. This was accomplished by neither Lenin nor Trotzky nor any of the early Bolsheviks, but by a comparatively obscure adventurer, J. V. Stalin.

In April 1924, he delivered a series of lectures at Sverdlov University under the general title of "Foundations of Leninism," which has become the accepted doctrine of Soviet Russia, Soviet China and the satellite states. It is the doctrine of every Communist country in the world. It is a practical and flexible concept of ". . . Marxism in the epoch of imperialism and of the protetarian revolution. . . ."

That Body of Yours

By JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

TREATING SEVERE ATTACKS OF ASTHMA

It is only within recent years that physicians have been able to treat asthma with complete success. As an asthmatic seldom dies during an attack, the condition was not taken too seriously.

The victim, after a more or less severe coughing spell, gets up the plug of mucous causing the attack and feels normal until the next attack. Further, as the great majority of attacks can be relieved by injecting 10 to 15 minims (drops) of adrenalin (1 to 1,000) under the skin, asthmatics are not usually in fear of their attacks.

And still further, now that physicians are finding that allergy (being oversensitive to various substances such as hair, fur, feathers, pollen) is a common cause and that most of other cases are the result of deformities or defects of nose and throat, they have learned how to treat asthma. This means desensitizing the individual as is done with ragweed pollen in hay fever.

However, despite the excellent results obtained by hypodermic injection of adrenalin 1 to 1,000 (epinephrine) or by inhaling a 1 to 100 solution of adrenalin, there are some cases in which the mucus plug cannot be dislodged. This can be a serious matter becauce it may prevent the passage of enough air in and out of the lungs—smothering.

I have written before of how this mucus plug can often be removed by having the patient kneel on a chair with hands touching floor and head between hands and then coughing as hard as possible; hard coughing in this favorable position often loosens the plug.

In asthma caused by allergy (pollen, feathers, dust), Dr. George L. Waldbott, of Detroit, in the "Journal of Allergy," reviews results of 180 attacks in 127 patients by use of a bronchoscope, the main use of which was formerly to locate and remove objects that had entered the lungs instead of the stomach.

"The principal reason for using the bronchoscope is to remove thick, sticky mucus from the bronchial tree. In this series of cases, bronchoscopy was performed, (1) to prevent a moribund or nearly dead patient from becoming asphyxiated through accumulation of mucus; (2) to break up a chronic asthmatic state; (3) to remove a single mucus plug which had caused atelectasis (suffocation); (4) to dilate or open up strictures or obstructions from the bronchial tubes; and (5) to remove mucus from partially obstructed tubes."

Where there is little or no mucus, Dr. Waldbott states that the bronchoscope should not be used.

It will be gratifying to asthmatics and their families to know that in the dangerous attacks of asthma, this useful instrument is available.

Dance of the Hours

Edson's Washington News Notebook

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

Washington (NEA) — Members of the new 83rd Congress haven't got their chairs warmed yet. But speculation has already begun about the 84th Congress, to be elected in 1954.

The reason for this political doping so early in the session is that Republican majorities in both Houses of Congress are awfully slim.

The present House of Representatives standing is 221 Republicans, 221 Democrats, one Independent—Frazier Reams of Ohio—and two Democratic vacancies caused by the deaths of Adolph Sabath of Illinois and Eugene Cox of Georgia. The Senate standing is 48 Republicans, 47 Democrats and one Independent — Wayne Morse of Oregon.

Theoretically, a loss of four seats would cause the Republicans to lose control of the House. A loss of two seats would cost them the Senate.

It is political folklore that the party which wins control of Congress in a presidential election year loses some of its congressional majority strength in the following mid-term election. But this tradition is not always borne out by the record.

In 1934—two years after Franklin D. Roosevelt's first election—the Democrats actually gained strength in Congress. In the Senate the gain was 10 seats—from 59 to 69. In the House it was nine seats—from 313 to 322.

The Democrats also gained congressional strength in the 1950 election, two years after President Truman's surprise 1948 victory. The Democratic Senate gain in 1950 was four seats—from 45 to 49. The House gain was 44 seats—from 187 to 231.

The 1946 the Democrats lost control of the Senate—true to mid-term election form. Other mid-term elections in which the Democratic majorities were reduced were 1942 and 1938. In the 1930 election, in the middle of Herbert Hoover's term, the Republican majorities in Congress were cut down from 17 to one in the Senate and from 104 to six in the House.

So the superstition about the party in power losing congressional strength in the mid-term election has worked four out of the last six times.

This means that if the Eisenhower administration is to carry out its full four-year program, it must break the jinx and repeat the Democratic record of 1934. That is, the Republicans must increase their majorities in Congress in 1954. Present Republican majorities are too slim to stand any reducing.

There are half a dozen deaths, resignations or appointments of congressmen to judgeships or other high offices in an average year. Vacancies of this kind could throw control of Congress from one party to the other in the next two years.

Figures on the small Republican majorities in the new 83rd Congress are misleading in one sense. The reason is that bigger majorities of representatives and senators of both parties will probably support the Eisenhower program—at least in the beginning. The number of "Eisenhower Democrats" in Congress is far greater than the number of Republicans who will vote with the Democrats.

Major Issues Is Test

How big this coalition of conservative Democrats and Republicans is can only be guessed at today. Some estimates have put the conservative majority at 55 to 60 in the Senate, as opposed to 36 to 41 senators of a more liberal inclination. In the House, estimates average around 250 to 275 conservatives, as opposed to 160 to 185 liberals.

If these estimates are at all close, President-elect Eisenhower can count on working majorities of from 14 to 24 in the Senate, and 55 to 115 in the House. But it will take a test vote on some major issue to show how the teams line up.

What this issue will be cannot be told with certainty now. Approval or disapproval of a new Korean policy is a likely bet. Other possibilities are renewal of the President's war-time powers and his authority to reorganize the federal government, which expire on April 1. Price, wage and rent controls expire on April 30.

The possibility of a row between President Eosenhower and the conservative Republican majority in Congress, as led by Senator Taft, has been widely speculated on. But it may not come off.

A good, cooperative relationship between President-elect Eisenhower and the Congress in the next two years could easily pave the way for increasing the Republican majorities in 1954.

Yen for Privileged Plates

Manila (AP)—An Indian national with a yen for privileged car numbers is facing deportation for illegal use of a diplomatic car plate. The man, a former Manila restaurant owner, is accused of theft of two diplomatic car plates belonging to the U. S. embassy here. His accomplice confessed to police the Indian had asked him to get a No. 8 (Philippine congressman's number) but settled for the diplomatic plate when the other was unprocurable.

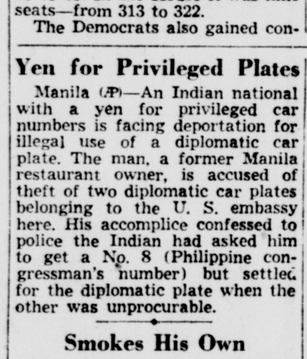

Smokes His Own

Paragould, Ark. (AP) — Joe Walters, a 79-year-old retired railroader, has been growing and curing his own burley tobacco for the past six years. His little tobacco patch was so productive in 1951 that a year later he was still smoking his own tobacco.

Waning Industry

Long a famed industry there, shawl weaving virtually has ceased in India's Vale of Kashmir. Scarves and other articles still are made on small hand looms from the superfine pashmina wool, however.

Why We Say--

. . . From a cow

The little fellow preparing for school who receives this injection probably doesn't know or care that the word vaccination comes from the Latin "vacca" for cow. The first vaccine was obtained from a milkmaid suffering from cowpox (or smallpox) . . . therefore all similar injections were called by that name.

Twenty and Ten Years Ago

Jan. 7, 1933—Harry Turner, a former resident of Eddyville, died in Brooklyn.

Dr. L. E. Sanford, local health officer, reported a local influenza epidemic waning.

Policemen Earl Schoonmaker and Howard Kinch were working on the city dog census.

Mrs. Johnson Hasbrouck died at her home on the Kettle Creek road, near New Paltz.

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Jan. 7—The unlimited right to smear seems to have been firmly upheld by a subcommittee of three from the Senate Committee on elections—but the right is extended apparently not to the public but only to members of Congress.

Senator McCarthy, of Wisconsin, is this time the victim of the smear, but he need not be downhearted. For if ever there was a justification given him for his methods of attack, it is to be found in the Senate subcommittee's report about the Wisconsin senator himself.

With innuendoes and without proof, with questions that are full of implications of wrongdoing yet with no actual evidence to bear out the implications, a Senate subcommittee of three opponents attempts to discredit the Wisconsin senator by repeating the very same charges which were aired during his recent political campaign. The fact that the people of Wisconsin, by an overwhelming majority, re-elected Senator McCarthy after hearing virtually all the same charges doesn't seem to have influenced the Senate subcommittee. It did say, however, that some charges against Senator Benton, who was defeated last November had become "moot," which means they need not be further investigated. Yet their mention is in itself injurious and unfair.

The report is not persuasive with respect either to Senator Benton of Senator McCarthy, and so far as integrity is concerned the people who know and like both senators are not likely to be influenced by the innuendoes.

What is most important in the whole matter is that the "right to smear" now is confirmed by the Senate subcommittee. It is a sort of inalienable right in Congress anyhow. But though often condemned, one will not hear any criticism of it from folks who dislike Senator McCarthy. They will chuckle with glee, which only goes to prove that there isn't much fundamental principle behind many of those who shout loudest about "McCarthyism" and do not criticize it when the shots are fired at those they dislike anyhow.

Congressional committees for years have wielded a sharp scalpel in carving up the reputations of innocent persons again and again, but when the surgery was being performed by new dealers in charge of the investigations for Congressional committees, especially in the early days of the Democratic reign, there was no outcry from the so-called "liberal" side. In fact, much political capital was made by the Democratic party out of those very smear investigations.

It would be a sorry day for the American system of representative government if the right of Congress to investigate was curtailed, and it would be a step backward if individual members of Congress were deprived of congressional immunity. Maybe Senator McCarthy was maligned unfairly today, and yesterday he maligned somebody unfairly. The opportunity is afforded nevertheless under the present system to fight these battles in the press and on the radio, and the debate itself furnishes its own correctives.

Senator McCarthy's place in history will not be determined by his enemies who try to prove he speculated in the market or by any other personal attacks on him. It isn't McCarthy or his methods that are the real issue, but whether the main charges he has made against the administration's harboring of Communists in government and the evil influences that are alleged to have affected our foreign policy are true or false. Those issues are still unresolved, though the pendulum lately has swung in favor of several of McCarthy's points.

The larger questions are more important than whether one senator is or is not polite in his methods. The methods of the Wisconsin senator are those of a bulldozer. He rides roughshod over opponents because there has been suppression of facts and he, like many predecessors in Congress, has found that only bulldozer methods can get the facts out into the open when fighting the concealment techniques of bureaucracy.

What remedy is there against excesses? Only the remedy of an informed public opinion, which, after hearing all sides, renders its verdict. But after observing the work of Congressional committees over a long period of time, one must come to the conclusion that they do far more good than harm and that they do expose wrongdoing which the executive branch is either unwilling or unable to expose. Except for Congressional committee activity, Alger Hiss would be free today, and, except for Congressional investigations, some of the various collectors of Internal Revenue recently removed and some indicted would still be continuing their corrupt activities. The cases are numerous in favor of Congressional committees as a check on the other two coordinate branches of government.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

No enemy of Harry Truman has epitomized his moral ignorance as well as Truman did when he bespoke for Gen. Eisenhower a continuation of the tax-free graft of $50,000 disguised as an expense allowance. Altogether, Truman has picked up $200,000 under this pretext.

There are good reasons to believe that he has kept all of it. One reason is that he is stingy. He does not "entertain" and from way back he has been known as a slow man on the draw. That is his reputation in Kansas City and he has done nothing to damage that reputation since he went to Washington as the worthy protege of Tom Pendergast, who set such an example of greed that he docked the Kansas City cops for money to bet on the races.

The internal revenue would assume that Truman never spent a dollar of that $200,000 on legitimate official expenses of his office. That is what I assume. Why not? That is precisely what the internal revenue invariably does assume in comparable circumstances involving George Spelvin, American. Internal revenue says if Spelvin got an expense allowance of $50,000, he must prove up on every dollar or pay a tax on the unproved portion. On top of a salary of $100,000 a year, as in Truman's case, that would be taxable in a very high bracket. The tax would just about wipe out any money that he was trying to knock down.

For some reason so shameful that even Truman has not been brazen enough to argue the matter, Congress decided that Truman need not give any account of this $50,000. And with regard to another expense allowance of $40,000, Congress provided that the President should be permitted to account for it "on certificate" only. That means that he "certifies" that he spent it all on legitimate official expenses. No questions are asked. The Internal Revenue takes his word. But why doesn't the fellow come clean? All the rest of us do. What is he hiding?

Informally, the administration has explained that the purpose here is to save the President the onerous work of poring over bills and check-stubs and proving to a the money. He should be made to prove up the same as we all do. And let's see how much is left. The left over money should be ours.

The President has all the secretaries and bookkeepers he could possibly need. He doesn't have to pay their salaries, either. We pay their salaries for making out his tax returns or we would if he made out the same kind of returns that we make out.

Incidentally, on a personal note, my accountant is at this moment working on my tax returns in this room and all the costs of this are paid by me. The fee is now a deductible business expense, but back in Henry Morgenthau's day, when the Roosevelts were raking in money by the bale and "settling" their "loans" at one cent or two cents on the dollar, the Internal Revenue would not let me deduct the expense of getting up my returns. Morgenthau's men said I was a person, not a business. Thus my return was "personal." Therefore, the expense was not a business expense.

To get on with the story, Truman has had the use of that Key West winter resort, maintained by us taxpayers, free of charge, every winter since 1945. A caretaker and watchman of my acquaintance was compelled to pay income tax on $30 a month on the use of a small house which he occupies on the premises for the "convenience" of his employer. This "convenience" is a treasury term. But when I asked George J. Schoeneman, the commissioner of Internal Revenue who disappeared last winter in the grand galloping exodus from the treasury, why they didn't make Truman pay in lieu of rent on Key West, on Blair House and the White House, he could only say, "the President's duties follow him wherever he goes." His chief counsel gave the same meaningless answer. I said I was Truman's boss and he didn't have to go down to Key West for all those vacations on my account. I said he ought to be clipped for a good rent to reimburse me for painting, investment and all such. They both laughed. They thought it was funny that their agent had clipped a poor watchman for ar-

DULLES CAN SOAR ON HIGH PLANE

For a long time Secretary of State Dean Acheson has been the prisoner of his critics. He has been unable to make or execute certain kinds of policy, because to do so would have aroused a storm of opposition that might have stymied all policy.

The U. S. Foreign Service, vital overseas wing of the State Department, has been similarly entrapped. Fearing to do anything that somehow might not look good in the headlines of 1955, American diplomats have done relatively little of constructive value.

But in all the head-shaking over this unhappy condition, a few important things appear to have been overlooked. If the State Department and the Foreign Service were as strong as they ought to be, then they could not easily be captured.

What has happened, therefore, is a reflection not merely of the strength of the State Department's opposition, but of the department's own weakness.

Some observers feel this weakness has been developing over a long period. The department's prestige, these men say, has been so marred that it is totally out of key with America's position as the most powerful nation on earth.

Many factors undoubtedly account for the evident decline. In recent times, the ascendancy of the foreign aid establishment has given rise to a new phenomenon, the economic ambassador, to rival the traditional "political" ambassador. It is entirely possible, too, that the growing complexity of world events has outdated the practice of choosing top diplomats from the ranks of top domestic campaign contributors.

The incoming Secretary of State, John Foster Dulles, would thus seem to be confronted with a double opportunity.

He will enjoy reasonable freedom to make policy without fear of being swarmed over by domestic political opponents of the Eisenhower administration. There will be opposition, of course, but it is unlikely to have the fury of that which greeted Acheson at every turn.

More than that, Dulles will have the chance to rebuild the prestige and power of the State Department, including the Foreign Service, into an establishment worthy of the preeminence of America in world affairs.

If Dulles can make American diplomacy abroad a symbol of high purpose, dignity, responsibility and consistent policy, he will have carved himself an enduring niche in the long line of American secretaries of State.

AIR DEFENSE IS ALERT

Now and again, the Secretary of the Air Force or some top Air Force officer talks in sweeping terms of the air defense of this country, and the North American continent. But we don't get much first-hand word about how that defense is being developed and maintained.

A while back the Wall Street Journal surveyed the joint U. S.-Canada air defenses on our northern frontier, and told quite a remarkable story.

From Alaska and the Canadian Northwest, across the barren shield of north central Canada to Presque Isle, Maine, Newfoundland and the top of Greenland, jet fighters manned by American and Canadian crews are on 24-hour alert. At a signal, they would be soaring into the air to do battle against an invading bomber force thousands of miles from U. S. and Canadian production centers.

At one such base in Labrador, it takes 50 snowplows to keep the runways constantly clear of of snow so they will be ready for instant use. Pilots wear their flying clothes day in and day out, and ears are tuned to the telephone ring that might spell attack.

Throughout the whole defense arc, weather and radar stations stand guard, collecting and relaying vital information. The radar screen is truly America's first line of defense. All these safeguards are being expanded and developed steadily. Cooperation between Canadian and American military authorities is excellent. The entire story is a heartening one to hear.

DEFINITIONS

It is so easy to pick an argument about definitions. Yet when one says the word, child, he does not mean a man of 50 with a beard. However, in the fields of politics or economics the tendency is to foul thought by fighting over private definitions, each thinker coming up with his own.

In the hope that there may be a way of stating some ideas with some clarity, I offer a few definitions which seem to be standard:

Capitalism: ". . . capitalism is an economic order based on the profit motive; therefore its leading characteristics are the private ownership of the means of production, their operation for pecuniary gain, their control by private enterprisers, and the use of credit and the wage system. . . ." ("The Triumph of American Capitalism," by Louis M. Hacker.)

Fundamentally, this system requires human freedom because inherent in it is the right of the individual to use his earnings according to his choice and conscience.

Socialism: While the basic concept of Socialism is government ownership of the means of production, distribution and exchange, the varieties are many, ranging from the mild reformist measures of the left-wing New Dealers to the present state of society in Soviet Russia. In effect, Socialists differ as to whether their aims are to be achieved by "democratic" means or by revolution, depending upon their theory of the speed of change.

Although numerous Utopian Socialist concepts existed prior to Karl Marx, he and Frederick Engels founded what has come to be known as "scientific" Socialism, the basis of which is the biologic assumption of the struggle for existence which Marx accepted from the writings of Charles Darwin and Thomas Huxley. Applying these ideas to politics, economics and sociology, they evolved the Class Struggle:

"The history of all hitherto existing society is the history of class struggles.

"Freeman and slave, patrician and plebian, lord and serf, guildmaster and journeyman, in a word, oppressor and oppressed, stood in constant opposition to one another, carried on an uninterrupted, now hidden, now open fight, a fight that each time ended, either in a revolutionary reconstruction of society at large, or in the common ruin of the contending classes." ("Communist Manifesto.")

There have always been deviations from this position among Socialists. For instance:

Fabian Socialism: This is strictly a British form of Socialism represented by the Labour Party. The word Fabian represents "go slow." It is go-slow Socialism by strictly constitutional means. Even when the Labour Party was in power, it limited its socialization program (in Great Britain, called a nationalization program) to 20 per cent of the nation's economy. The founders of Fabian Socialism were Beatrice and Sidney Webb, George Bernard Shaw, H. G. Wells and other intellectuals.

Marxism: The economic doctrine of Karl Marx is based on the "Theory of Surplus Value," which, in effect, means that the increased value arises only from the labor-time added in its production. Harold Laski describes this extremely complicated theory as follows:

". . . It is therefore evident that in the production of any given commodity all who do not contribute labour-power thereto do not produce values. All, therefore, who receive part of the product without this contribution are parasites robbing labour. Marx accordingly denies that profit results from the capitalist who lends money or the trader who conducts the process of exchange. . . ."

All this theorizing would have meant nothing had not a faction of the Russian Social Democratic Party, the Bolsheviks succeeded by violence in capturing Russia in 1917.

Communism: Generally the current Russian system is called Communism, which is an error. Russian Marxism is now in what they term a Socialist stage; to be followed by Communism; which will produce a state of society in which government withers away. The Russians faced the problem of making their ideas work in an antagonistic world. This was accomplished by neither Lenin nor Trotzky nor any of the early Bolsheviks, but by a comparatively obscure adventurer, J. V. Stalin.

In April 1924, he delivered a series of lectures at Sverdlov University under the general title of "Foundations of Leninism," which has become the accepted doctrine of Soviet Russia, Soviet China and the satellite states. It is the doctrine of every Communist country in the world. It is a practical and flexible concept of ". . . Marxism in the epoch of imperialism and of the protetarian revolution. . . ."

That Body of Yours

By JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

TREATING SEVERE ATTACKS OF ASTHMA

It is only within recent years that physicians have been able to treat asthma with complete success. As an asthmatic seldom dies during an attack, the condition was not taken too seriously.

The victim, after a more or less severe coughing spell, gets up the plug of mucous causing the attack and feels normal until the next attack. Further, as the great majority of attacks can be relieved by injecting 10 to 15 minims (drops) of adrenalin (1 to 1,000) under the skin, asthmatics are not usually in fear of their attacks.

And still further, now that physicians are finding that allergy (being oversensitive to various substances such as hair, fur, feathers, pollen) is a common cause and that most of other cases are the result of deformities or defects of nose and throat, they have learned how to treat asthma. This means desensitizing the individual as is done with ragweed pollen in hay fever.

However, despite the excellent results obtained by hypodermic injection of adrenalin 1 to 1,000 (epinephrine) or by inhaling a 1 to 100 solution of adrenalin, there are some cases in which the mucus plug cannot be dislodged. This can be a serious matter becauce it may prevent the passage of enough air in and out of the lungs—smothering.

I have written before of how this mucus plug can often be removed by having the patient kneel on a chair with hands touching floor and head between hands and then coughing as hard as possible; hard coughing in this favorable position often loosens the plug.

In asthma caused by allergy (pollen, feathers, dust), Dr. George L. Waldbott, of Detroit, in the "Journal of Allergy," reviews results of 180 attacks in 127 patients by use of a bronchoscope, the main use of which was formerly to locate and remove objects that had entered the lungs instead of the stomach.

"The principal reason for using the bronchoscope is to remove thick, sticky mucus from the bronchial tree. In this series of cases, bronchoscopy was performed, (1) to prevent a moribund or nearly dead patient from becoming asphyxiated through accumulation of mucus; (2) to break up a chronic asthmatic state; (3) to remove a single mucus plug which had caused atelectasis (suffocation); (4) to dilate or open up strictures or obstructions from the bronchial tubes; and (5) to remove mucus from partially obstructed tubes."

Where there is little or no mucus, Dr. Waldbott states that the bronchoscope should not be used.

It will be gratifying to asthmatics and their families to know that in the dangerous attacks of asthma, this useful instrument is available.

Dance of the Hours

Edson's Washington News Notebook

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

Washington (NEA) — Members of the new 83rd Congress haven't got their chairs warmed yet. But speculation has already begun about the 84th Congress, to be elected in 1954.

The reason for this political doping so early in the session is that Republican majorities in both Houses of Congress are awfully slim.

The present House of Representatives standing is 221 Republicans, 221 Democrats, one Independent—Frazier Reams of Ohio—and two Democratic vacancies caused by the deaths of Adolph Sabath of Illinois and Eugene Cox of Georgia. The Senate standing is 48 Republicans, 47 Democrats and one Independent — Wayne Morse of Oregon.

Theoretically, a loss of four seats would cause the Republicans to lose control of the House. A loss of two seats would cost them the Senate.

It is political folklore that the party which wins control of Congress in a presidential election year loses some of its congressional majority strength in the following mid-term election. But this tradition is not always borne out by the record.

In 1934—two years after Franklin D. Roosevelt's first election—the Democrats actually gained strength in Congress. In the Senate the gain was 10 seats—from 59 to 69. In the House it was nine seats—from 313 to 322.

The Democrats also gained congressional strength in the 1950 election, two years after President Truman's surprise 1948 victory. The Democratic Senate gain in 1950 was four seats—from 45 to 49. The House gain was 44 seats—from 187 to 231.

The 1946 the Democrats lost control of the Senate—true to mid-term election form. Other mid-term elections in which the Democratic majorities were reduced were 1942 and 1938. In the 1930 election, in the middle of Herbert Hoover's term, the Republican majorities in Congress were cut down from 17 to one in the Senate and from 104 to six in the House.

So the superstition about the party in power losing congressional strength in the mid-term election has worked four out of the last six times.

This means that if the Eisenhower administration is to carry out its full four-year program, it must break the jinx and repeat the Democratic record of 1934. That is, the Republicans must increase their majorities in Congress in 1954. Present Republican majorities are too slim to stand any reducing.

There are half a dozen deaths, resignations or appointments of congressmen to judgeships or other high offices in an average year. Vacancies of this kind could throw control of Congress from one party to the other in the next two years.

Figures on the small Republican majorities in the new 83rd Congress are misleading in one sense. The reason is that bigger majorities of representatives and senators of both parties will probably support the Eisenhower program—at least in the beginning. The number of "Eisenhower Democrats" in Congress is far greater than the number of Republicans who will vote with the Democrats.

Major Issues Is Test

How big this coalition of conservative Democrats and Republicans is can only be guessed at today. Some estimates have put the conservative majority at 55 to 60 in the Senate, as opposed to 36 to 41 senators of a more liberal inclination. In the House, estimates average around 250 to 275 conservatives, as opposed to 160 to 185 liberals.

If these estimates are at all close, President-elect Eisenhower can count on working majorities of from 14 to 24 in the Senate, and 55 to 115 in the House. But it will take a test vote on some major issue to show how the teams line up.

What this issue will be cannot be told with certainty now. Approval or disapproval of a new Korean policy is a likely bet. Other possibilities are renewal of the President's war-time powers and his authority to reorganize the federal government, which expire on April 1. Price, wage and rent controls expire on April 30.

The possibility of a row between President Eosenhower and the conservative Republican majority in Congress, as led by Senator Taft, has been widely speculated on. But it may not come off.

A good, cooperative relationship between President-elect Eisenhower and the Congress in the next two years could easily pave the way for increasing the Republican majorities in 1954.

Yen for Privileged Plates

Manila (AP)—An Indian national with a yen for privileged car numbers is facing deportation for illegal use of a diplomatic car plate. The man, a former Manila restaurant owner, is accused of theft of two diplomatic car plates belonging to the U. S. embassy here. His accomplice confessed to police the Indian had asked him to get a No. 8 (Philippine congressman's number) but settled for the diplomatic plate when the other was unprocurable.

Smokes His Own

Paragould, Ark. (AP) — Joe Walters, a 79-year-old retired railroader, has been growing and curing his own burley tobacco for the past six years. His little tobacco patch was so productive in 1951 that a year later he was still smoking his own tobacco.

Long a famed industry there, shawl weaving virtually has ceased in India's Vale of Kashmir. Scarves and other articles still are made on small hand looms from the superfine pashmina wool, however.

VACCINATION

. . . From a cow

The little fellow preparing for school who receives this injection probably doesn't know or care that the word vaccination comes from the Latin "vacca" for cow. The first vaccine was obtained from a milkmaid suffering from cowpox (or smallpox) . . . therefore all similar injections were called by that name.

McCarthy's Methods of Attack Are Justified by Way Senators Report on His Case

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Jan. 7—The unlimited right to smear seems to have been firmly upheld by a subcommittee of three from the Senate Committee on elections—but the right is extended apparently not to the public but only to members of Congress.

Senator McCarthy, of Wisconsin, is this time the victim of the smear, but he need not be downhearted. For if ever there was a justification given him for his methods of attack, it is to be found in the Senate subcommittee's report about the Wisconsin senator himself.

With innuendoes and without proof, with questions that are full of implications of wrongdoing yet with no actual evidence to bear out the implications, a Senate subcommittee of three opponents attempts to discredit the Wisconsin senator by repeating the very same charges which were aired during his recent political campaign. The fact that the people of Wisconsin, by an overwhelming majority, re-elected Senator McCarthy after hearing virtually all the same charges doesn't seem to have influenced the Senate subcommittee. It did say, however, that some charges against Senator Benton, who was defeated last November had become "moot," which means they need not be further investigated. Yet their mention is in itself injurious and unfair.

The report is not persuasive with respect either to Senator Benton of Senator McCarthy, and so far as integrity is concerned the people who know and like both senators are not likely to be influenced by the innuendoes.

What is most important in the whole matter is that the "right to smear" now is confirmed by the Senate subcommittee. It is a sort of inalienable right in Congress anyhow. But though often condemned, one will not hear any criticism of it from folks who dislike Senator McCarthy. They will chuckle with glee, which only goes to prove that there isn't much fundamental principle behind many of those who shout loudest about "McCarthyism" and do not criticize it when the shots are fired at those they dislike anyhow.

Congressional committees for years have wielded a sharp scalpel in carving up the reputations of innocent persons again and again, but when the surgery was being performed by new dealers in charge of the investigations for Congressional committees, especially in the early days of the Democratic reign, there was no outcry from the so-called "liberal" side. In fact, much political capital was made by the Democratic party out of those very smear investigations.

It would be a sorry day for the American system of representative government if the right of Congress to investigate was curtailed, and it would be a step backward if individual members of Congress were deprived of congressional immunity. Maybe Senator McCarthy was maligned unfairly today, and yesterday he maligned somebody unfairly. The opportunity is afforded nevertheless under the present system to fight these battles in the press and on the radio, and the debate itself furnishes its own correctives.

Senator McCarthy's place in history will not be determined by his enemies who try to prove he speculated in the market or by any other personal attacks on him. It isn't McCarthy or his methods that are the real issue, but whether the main charges he has made against the administration's harboring of Communists in government and the evil influences that are alleged to have affected our foreign policy are true or false. Those issues are still unresolved, though the pendulum lately has swung in favor of several of McCarthy's points.

The larger questions are more important than whether one senator is or is not polite in his methods. The methods of the Wisconsin senator are those of a bulldozer. He rides roughshod over opponents because there has been suppression of facts and he, like many predecessors in Congress, has found that only bulldozer methods can get the facts out into the open when fighting the concealment techniques of bureaucracy.

What remedy is there against excesses? Only the remedy of an informed public opinion, which, after hearing all sides, renders its verdict. But after observing the work of Congressional committees over a long period of time, one must come to the conclusion that they do far more good than harm and that they do expose wrongdoing which the executive branch is either unwilling or unable to expose. Except for Congressional committee activity, Alger Hiss would be free today, and, except for Congressional investigations, some of the various collectors of Internal Revenue recently removed and some indicted would still be continuing their corrupt activities. The cases are numerous in favor of Congressional committees as a check on the other two coordinate branches of government.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

No enemy of Harry Truman has epitomized his moral ignorance as well as Truman did when he bespoke for Gen. Eisenhower a continuation of the tax-free graft of $50,000 disguised as an expense allowance. Altogether, Truman has picked up $200,000 under this pretext.

There are good reasons to believe that he has kept all of it. One reason is that he is stingy. He does not "entertain" and from way back he has been known as a slow man on the draw. That is his reputation in Kansas City and he has done nothing to damage that reputation since he went to Washington as the worthy protege of Tom Pendergast, who set such an example of greed that he docked the Kansas City cops for money to bet on the races.

The internal revenue would assume that Truman never spent a dollar of that $200,000 on legitimate official expenses of his office. That is what I assume. Why not? That is precisely what the internal revenue invariably does assume in comparable circumstances involving George Spelvin, American. Internal revenue says if Spelvin got an expense allowance of $50,000, he must prove up on every dollar or pay a tax on the unproved portion. On top of a salary of $100,000 a year, as in Truman's case, that would be taxable in a very high bracket. The tax would just about wipe out any money that he was trying to knock down.

For some reason so shameful that even Truman has not been brazen enough to argue the matter, Congress decided that Truman need not give any account of this $50,000. And with regard to another expense allowance of $40,000, Congress provided that the President should be permitted to account for it "on certificate" only. That means that he "certifies" that he spent it all on legitimate official expenses. No questions are asked. The Internal Revenue takes his word. But why doesn't the fellow come clean? All the rest of us do. What is he hiding?

Informally, the administration has explained that the purpose here is to save the President the onerous work of poring over bills and check-stubs and proving to a the money. He should be made to prove up the same as we all do. And let's see how much is left. The left over money should be ours.

The President has all the secretaries and bookkeepers he could possibly need. He doesn't have to pay their salaries, either. We pay their salaries for making out his tax returns or we would if he made out the same kind of returns that we make out.

Incidentally, on a personal note, my accountant is at this moment working on my tax returns in this room and all the costs of this are paid by me. The fee is now a deductible business expense, but back in Henry Morgenthau's day, when the Roosevelts were raking in money by the bale and "settling" their "loans" at one cent or two cents on the dollar, the Internal Revenue would not let me deduct the expense of getting up my returns. Morgenthau's men said I was a person, not a business. Thus my return was "personal." Therefore, the expense was not a business expense.

To get on with the story, Truman has had the use of that Key West winter resort, maintained by us taxpayers, free of charge, every winter since 1945. A caretaker and watchman of my acquaintance was compelled to pay income tax on $30 a month on the use of a small house which he occupies on the premises for the "convenience" of his employer. This "convenience" is a treasury term. But when I asked George J. Schoeneman, the commissioner of Internal Revenue who disappeared last winter in the grand galloping exodus from the treasury, why they didn't make Truman pay in lieu of rent on Key West, on Blair House and the White House, he could only say, "the President's duties follow him wherever he goes." His chief counsel gave the same meaningless answer. I said I was Truman's boss and he didn't have to go down to Key West for all those vacations on my account. I said he ought to be clipped for a good rent to reimburse me for painting, investment and all such. They both laughed. They thought it was funny that their agent had clipped a poor watchman for ar-

Opera Plans Fund Drive

New York, Jan. 5 (AP)—The Metropolitan Opera Association has announced a one and a half million dollar fund drive. George A. Sloan, chairman of the association, said over the weekend that part of the money would be used for studies for a new opera house. But since a new house is only a possibility, Sloan said, part of the money will be used to make "minimum and essential" improvements in the present opera house.

THE RUMINATOR

By HUMPHREY B. NEILL

A Column of Contrary Opinion

Rather against his own inclinations, the Ruminator finds himself becoming more anti-British as time passes—and as more money passes across the Atlantic. This subject comes to mind now because of the ageless Prime Minister who is crossing the Atlantic in this direction (to arrive before you read this)—and also because I am just in receipt of a long letter from a Britisher who was formerly a neighbor of mine when he represented his firm in the United States and Canada.

It seems to me it is exceedingly difficult to be objective about our foreign aid program and to arrive at any balanced judgment concerning our future financial entanglements in Great Britain and in western Europe. To over-simplify the problem it might be put like this: Where do we stop, and when?

With such questions in mind I read my friends lengthy recital with more than ordinary interest. He had a long stay here, several year's experience under FDR and the New Deal, and returned to England in time to experience the rapid postwar socialization era there and the recent change in sentiment with the return of Winston Churchill to the Prime Ministership.

He writes that in the past six years they "have seen many changes for the better," but that "for some years to come" they will be living under "austeruty" until Britain can improve her balance of payments and grow more food. It strikes us as odd that in all these years of austerity there has been so little accomplished in increasing the food production in the British Isles. Agricultural expansion certainly could have been stimulated by government aid and support. If less thought had been wasted upon the nationalization of industries, and more thought and planning directed toward food production, Britain's plight would be less austere today.

However, greater varieties of clothes and household goods are available in stores today, and rationing has been released on numerous food items. The food items everyone craves are still "short" and my friend says they can only buy 28-cents' worth of meat each week (and soon this is to be reduced!), and very limited amounts of such items as sugar, butter, bacon, eggs and cheese. Fuel also is still rationed—except gas and electricity; but these latter are frightfully expensive since the industries were nationalized.

Luxury items which one might like to purchase occasionally are so stiffly taxed as to discourage purchases. The luxury-goods' taxes run all the way from 33 per cent to 100 per cent; automobiles are taxed at 66 per cent and hard to get (1946 orders are being filled now, in 1952-53).

I was interested to learn first-hand about the "socialization of medicine." Sure enough, I found a comment. Instead of free medicine, you pay 14 cents (one shilling) to have a prescription filled; eye glasses are about "one-pound-five," or $3.50, and a first call for dental work about a pound, or $2.80. "It has cut out a lot of silly nonsense and useless waste," I read.

When you think of taxes—and who doesn't, now that the 1952 tax bite is in everyone's mind—you might get a little encouragement from my friend's report on that situation. His salary, he says, is "quite modest;" yet, when he received a raise of 150 pounds recently ($480) the government gets £90 and he gets only £60. The "standard" rate of income tax is still 47½ per cent, and for the individual a surtax on everything over £2000 ($5600), with no deductions and allowances on this surtax.

The Ruminator is passing along these personal comments only to show that from the citizen's standpoint, there are "two sides to the story" While it strikes may of us that it is foolhardy and risky for us to continue pouring funds abroad, it is likewise a fact that the workers and proprietors of business in England are not having and easy time it it. True, it is up to them, in our view, to reorganize and get straightened out; nevertheless, without a heritage of high industrial ingenuity and managerial skill, ilt is difficult to increase production rapidly. The transition from "a trading nation to a self-sustaining producing nation presents an extraordinary difficult program.

The Ruminator thought that as Churchill is aiming at greater cooperation with us and as England's plight will be in our news constantly you might find this personal account of some value in evaluating the news- to-come.

Opera Plans Fund Drive

New York, Jan. 5 (AP)—The Metropolitan Opera Association has announced a one and a half million dollar fund drive. George A. Sloan, chairman of the association, said over the weekend that part of the money would be used for studies for a new opera house. But since a new house is only a possibility, Sloan said, part of the money will be used to make "minimum and essential" improvements in the present opera house.

Trains Visible at Night

Chicago (AP)—Trains of the Rock Island Lines are easier to see at night because the company name has been outlined in luminous disks. Some 200 freight cars have been marked with the material as well as passenger and freight diesel engines.

The Gospel According to St. Mark is the earliest of the four Gospels and is thought to have been written about 70 A. D.

THE RUMINATOR

By HUMPHREY B. NEILL

A Column of Contrary Opinion

Rather against his own inclinations, the Ruminator finds himself becoming more anti-British as time passes—and as more money passes across the Atlantic. This subject comes to mind now because of the ageless Prime Minister who is crossing the Atlantic in this direction (to arrive before you read this)—and also because I am just in receipt of a long letter from a Britisher who was formerly a neighbor of mine when he represented his firm in the United States and Canada.

It seems to me it is exceedingly difficult to be objective about our foreign aid program and to arrive at any balanced judgment concerning our future financial entanglements in Great Britain and in western Europe. To over-simplify the problem it might be put like this: Where do we stop, and when?

With such questions in mind I read my friends lengthy recital with more than ordinary interest. He had a long stay here, several year's experience under FDR and the New Deal, and returned to England in time to experience the rapid postwar socialization era there and the recent change in sentiment with the return of Winston Churchill to the Prime Ministership.

He writes that in the past six years they "have seen many changes for the better," but that "for some years to come" they will be living under "austeruty" until Britain can improve her balance of payments and grow more food. It strikes us as odd that in all these years of austerity there has been so little accomplished in increasing the food production in the British Isles. Agricultural expansion certainly could have been stimulated by government aid and support. If less thought had been wasted upon the nationalization of industries, and more thought and planning directed toward food production, Britain's plight would be less austere today.

However, greater varieties of clothes and household goods are available in stores today, and rationing has been released on numerous food items. The food items everyone craves are still "short" and my friend says they can only buy 28-cents' worth of meat each week (and soon this is to be reduced!), and very limited amounts of such items as sugar, butter, bacon, eggs and cheese. Fuel also is still rationed—except gas and electricity; but these latter are frightfully expensive since the industries were nationalized.

Luxury items which one might like to purchase occasionally are so stiffly taxed as to discourage purchases. The luxury-goods' taxes run all the way from 33 per cent to 100 per cent; automobiles are taxed at 66 per cent and hard to get (1946 orders are being filled now, in 1952-53).

I was interested to learn first-hand about the "socialization of medicine." Sure enough, I found a comment. Instead of free medicine, you pay 14 cents (one shilling) to have a prescription filled; eye glasses are about "one-pound-five," or $3.50, and a first call for dental work about a pound, or $2.80. "It has cut out a lot of silly nonsense and useless waste," I read.

When you think of taxes—and who doesn't, now that the 1952 tax bite is in everyone's mind—you might get a little encouragement from my friend's report on that situation. His salary, he says, is "quite modest;" yet, when he received a raise of 150 pounds recently ($480) the government gets £90 and he gets only £60. The "standard" rate of income tax is still 47½ per cent, and for the individual a surtax on everything over £2000 ($5600), with no deductions and allowances on this surtax.

The Ruminator is passing along these personal comments only to show that from the citizen's standpoint, there are "two sides to the story" While it strikes may of us that it is foolhardy and risky for us to continue pouring funds abroad, it is likewise a fact that the workers and proprietors of business in England are not having and easy time it it. 20-Inch Snowfall Dumped on State

Buffalo, Jan. 7 (AP)—Warm air off Lake Erie mixed with colder air over the shoreline and dumped up to 20 inches of snow on parts of western New York last night and early today.

Flurries and snow showers hit Buffalo late in the evening and threatened to heap another two to four inches on the already white streets and lawns.

The southern part of Erie county received the brunt of the localized storm with 20 inches near East Aurora. Continuing light falls were expected to add to the depth today.

Scattered flurries also trickled snow on parts of Chautauqua and Cattaraugus counties last night after heavier falls yesterday had left about eight inches on the ground.

Watertown, Six Inches

There was about six inches in the Watertown area. Squalls were expected to dump more snow in the western Adirondack area today.

Overnight temperatures across the state ranged from well below zero in the northern portion to 17 above in the snow-warmed western sections.

A trace of snow that fell in eastern New York yesterday melted rapidly.

Light winds caused some drifting of the heavy western New York snow and low temperatures caused some icing on highways. State police warned that roads in the southwestern portion were slippery and dangerous. Buses ran close to schedule.

Walking Is Difficult

New York, Jan. 7, (AP)—A snowfall of 1.1 inch during the night made walking along city streets a little difficult this morning.

The Department of Sanitation said, however, that roadways were all in good conditions and some 1,500 department men who had been kept on standby duty during the night were not needed.

The snow started falling about 10:50 p. m. last night and within a matter of minutes 90 Department of Sanitation sand-spreaders were put into service on bridges, highways and tunnel entrances.

The temperature during most of the night was about 30 degrees, and started to drop soon after the snowfall stopped at 6:20 a. m. a half-hour later the temperature had reached the morning low of 28.3 and was expected to rise into the high 30s later in the day.

What goes through an expert's mind just before he comes up with a brilliant play? Strangely enough, the expert's thoughts are neither profound nor brilliant. He simply thinks in straight lines and sticks to the point. Let's get inside an expert's brain and see how he works out the correct play in the hand shown today.

When West leads the queen of spades the expert says to himself: "I will sooner or later win two spades, one heart, and two diamonds. I need four club tricks to make my contract.

"Can I afford to hold up the first round of spades? No, because hearts are even more dangerous, and West migh think of switching to hearts.

"Where should I win the first spade trick? The answer depends on the best way to play the clubs."

Now our expert concentrates on the club suit as follows: "With a normal 3-2 break, any method of playing the clubs will work. If East has any four clubs, I will be unable to produce four club tricks. If West has four clubs, however, can anything be done?

"There is hope if East's singleton happens to be the eight or the nine. In that case, I must begin by leading the ten of clubs."

Hence the expert wins the first trick in his own hand with the king of spades and promptly leads the ten of clubs. West must cover with the jack, and dummy wins with the king. When East drops the eight, South's course is clear. He returns the deuce of clubs from dummy and plays the seven of clubs from his own hand.

West can win this second club trick with the nine, but now his remaining clubs are the queen and the five, with the ace and the six in the dummy behind him. South can easily regain the lead to take a club finesse and thus bring in the rest of the suit.

$66,000 for Memorial

Washington, Jan. 7 (AP)—The Communications Workers of America (CIO) begin today a drive for $66,000 in voluntary contributions toward a million-dollar Philip Murray Memorial Fund. Joseph A. Beirne, president of the CWA, said the fund would be used for such purposes as scholarships and perhaps building hospital facilities or financing medical research.

20-Inch Snowfall Dumped on State

Buffalo, Jan. 7 (AP)—Warm air off Lake Erie mixed with colder air over the shoreline and dumped up to 20 inches of snow on parts of western New York last night and early today.

Flurries and snow showers hit Buffalo late in the evening and threatened to heap another two to four inches on the already white streets and lawns.

The southern part of Erie county received the brunt of the localized storm with 20 inches near East Aurora. Continuing light falls were expected to add to the depth today.

Scattered flurries also trickled snow on parts of Chautauqua and Cattaraugus counties last night after heavier falls yesterday had left about eight inches on the ground.

Watertown, Six Inches

There was about six inches in the Watertown area. Squalls were expected to dump more snow in the western Adirondack area today.

Overnight temperatures across the state ranged from well below zero in the northern portion to 17 above in the snow-warmed western sections.

A trace of snow that fell in eastern New York yesterday melted rapidly.

Light winds caused some drifting of the heavy western New York snow and low temperatures caused some icing on highways. State police warned that roads in the southwestern portion were slippery and dangerous. Buses ran close to schedule.

Walking Is Difficult

New York, Jan. 7, (AP)—A snowfall of 1.1 inch during the night made walking along city streets a little difficult this morning.

The Department of Sanitation said, however, that roadways were all in good conditions and some 1,500 department men who had been kept on standby duty during the night were not needed.

The snow started falling about 10:50 p. m. last night and within a matter of minutes 90 Department of Sanitation sand-spreaders were put into service on bridges, highways and tunnel entrances.

The temperature during most of the night was about 30 degrees, and started to drop soon after the snowfall stopped at 6:20 a. m. a half-hour later the temperature had reached the morning low of 28.3 and was expected to rise into the high 30s later in the day.

What goes through an expert's mind just before he comes up with a brilliant play? Strangely enough, the expert's thoughts are neither profound nor brilliant. He simply thinks in straight lines and sticks to the point. Let's get inside an expert's brain and see how he works out the correct play in the hand shown today.

When West leads the queen of spades the expert says to himself: "I will sooner or later win two spades, one heart, and two diamonds. I need four club tricks to make my contract.

"Can I afford to hold up the first round of spades? No, because hearts are even more dangerous, and West migh think of switching to hearts.

"Where should I win the first spade trick? The answer depends on the best way to play the clubs."

Now our expert concentrates on the club suit as follows: "With a normal 3-2 break, any method of playing the clubs will work. If East has any four clubs, I will be unable to produce four club tricks. If West has four clubs, however, can anything be done?

"There is hope if East's singleton happens to be the eight or the nine. In that case, I must begin by leading the ten of clubs."

Hence the expert wins the first trick in his own hand with the king of spades and promptly leads the ten of clubs. West must cover with the jack, and dummy wins with the king. When East drops the eight, South's course is clear. He returns the deuce of clubs from dummy and plays the seven of clubs from his own hand.

West can win this second club trick with the nine, but now his remaining clubs are the queen and the five, with the ace and the six in the dummy behind him. South can easily regain the lead to take a club finesse and thus bring in the rest of the suit.

$66,000 for Memorial

Washington, Jan. 7 (AP)—The Communications Workers of America (CIO) begin today a drive for $66,000 in voluntary contributions toward a million-dollar Philip Murray Memorial Fund. Joseph A. Beirne, president of the CWA, said the fund would be used for such purposes as scholarships and perhaps building hospital facilities or financing medical research.

Town to 'Disappear'

Edwards, Mont., (AP)—The little town that isn't there—Edwards, Mont. — will be gone in 1953. Tourists driving across Central Montana look at their maps and decide Edwards might be a good place to gas up, eat and maybe stay overnight. But when they get to Edwards, it isn't there. Only a ranch house stands where the map shows a town called Edwards. The State Highway Department has promised to remove the "town" from 1953 maps.

The inauguration of President James Monroe took place on Monday, March 5, 1821, at the Capitol.

TILLSON

Tillson, Jan. 6—School reopened in Tillson Monday, January 5, following the holiday vacation. The sixth, seventh and eighth grades were moved to new quarters in the Tillson firehall, which has recently been finished adequately for use as temporary housing for the school children. Miss Charlotte Kolb will instruct those pupils moving to the firehall. The third, fourth and fifth grades have been moved into the former upper classroom at the school, and will continue to be taught by Mrs. Henry DuBois, while the first and second grades now are located in the smaller room. Mrs. Marguerite Norman of Kingston, has been hired by the board of education to teach these grades. It is anticipated that early in the spring work will commence on the additions to the school building.

The girls 4-H Club will meet Friday afternoon at 3:30 in the schoolhouse. Mrs. Nathaniel Phillips will be in charge.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Deyo entertained at home the following on New Year's Day: A. Deyo, D. Christiana, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Clark, Miss Carol Clark and Miss Judith Clark.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Moss, Mr. and Mrs. George McEvoy, Mrs. G. D. McEvoy and Miss Marguerite McEvoy spent New Year's Day with Mr. and Mrs. William Auchenbach in New Paltz.

Miss Carol Clark spent the weekend visiting Mr. and Mrs. Robert Seidel at Bayside, L. I.

Tillson people vacationing in Florida include Mr. and Mrs. Fred Briege, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Van Kleeck and Mrs. Mabel Terwilliger.

Fifteen members of the Tillson Teen-age Club, chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. Gunther Newman, spent the weekend in New York. The group attended the play New Faces of '52 and toured Radio City Music Hall and Rockefeller Center, returning home Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Phillips recently observed their thirteenth wedding anniversary. An informal party was held at their home, with the following present: Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Phillips and Mr. and Mrs. Sanford Phillips.

Mr. and Mrs. James Gallagher were New Year's Day guests of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Keator.

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Craig and Mrs. Frank Rowe spent Friday in New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Hollis E. Harvey and daughter Marilyn, visited Mrs. Wallace Cipolli in Kingston Sunday.

ETERNAL REST IN MIDST OF LIFE—The 127-year-old grave, above, was discovered along a road during expansion of West Hyattsville, Md., in suburban Washington, D. C. The legend on the old headstone declares that one Ann Baxter, born in London in 1800, died "near this place" in 1825. Maryland law forbids building of houses above graves, and so the remains of Ann Baxter lie undisturbed in the midst of a bustling community, except when youngsters, as above, play around the mound which houses the grave.

Here's How We Got These Wonderful Sealy Mattresses

Two reasons make this gigantic sale possible: The first is because Sealy had a lot of beautiful close-out covers, (. . . and we really mean gorgeous). They're heavy woven damasks! 8 oz. woven ticks! All sturdy covers to last and last. Sealy only had enough of them to make up 1-2 or 3 of a kind . . . so we bought 'em all! Secondly because we gave them the order before Christmas . . . when the factory was not busy. So, for these reasons you save plenty on real quality, Sealy mattresses. Every mattress has 4 heavy cord handles for easy turning . . . 8 ventilators to let your mattress breathe. And . . . there are 220 coils in each of these grand pre-built border mattresses. Remember, no more when these are gone! So, hurry to Standard now . . . refurnish all your bedding.

YOU'LL BE AMAZED AT THESE FEATURES:

★ Beautiful, rich, heavy grade damasks...actual 49.50 to 69.50 values!
★ Wonderful 8-oz. woven tick found on more expensive mattresses!
★ 4 strong cord handles to make it easy for turning!
★ Eight (yes siree, 8) ventilators to let your mattress breathe!
★ Imagine, 220 coils to make you feel like you're sleeping on a cloud!

Town to 'Disappear'

Edwards, Mont., (AP)—The little town that isn't there—Edwards, Mont. — will be gone in 1953. Tourists driving across Central Montana look at their maps and decide Edwards might be a good place to gas up, eat and maybe stay overnight. But when they get to Edwards, it isn't there. Only a ranch house stands where the map shows a town called Edwards. The State Highway Department has promised to remove the "town" from 1953 maps.

The inauguration of President James Monroe took place on Monday, March 5, 1821, at the Capitol.

ATTENTION.... TOWN OF ESOPUS

The New York Central Railroad has petitioned the Public Service Commission to abandon the Ulster Park Station.

There will be a MEETING of ALL Interested Persons . . .

THURSDAY, JAN. 8th at 8 p.m. at the GRANGE HALL in Ulster Park.

Please Attend! EDWARD R. ECKERT, Supervisor.

TILLSON

Tillson, Jan. 6—School reopened in Tillson Monday, January 5, following the holiday vacation. The sixth, seventh and eighth grades were moved to new quarters in the Tillson firehall, which has recently been finished adequately for use as temporary housing for the school children. Miss Charlotte Kolb will instruct those pupils moving to the firehall. The third, fourth and fifth grades have been moved into the former upper classroom at the school, and will continue to be taught by Mrs. Henry DuBois, while the first and second grades now are located in the smaller room. Mrs. Marguerite Norman of Kingston, has been hired by the board of education to teach these grades. It is anticipated that early in the spring work will commence on the additions to the school building.

The girls 4-H Club will meet Friday afternoon at 3:30 in the schoolhouse. Mrs. Nathaniel Phillips will be in charge.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Deyo entertained at home the following on New Year's Day: A. Deyo, D. Christiana, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Clark, Miss Carol Clark and Miss Judith Clark.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Moss, Mr. and Mrs. George McEvoy, Mrs. G. D. McEvoy and Miss Marguerite McEvoy spent New Year's Day with Mr. and Mrs. William Auchenbach in New Paltz.

Miss Carol Clark spent the weekend visiting Mr. and Mrs. Robert Seidel at Bayside, L. I.

Tillson people vacationing in Florida include Mr. and Mrs. Fred Briege, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Van Kleeck and Mrs. Mabel Terwilliger.

Fifteen members of the Tillson Teen-age Club, chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. Gunther Newman, spent the weekend in New York. The group attended the play New Faces of '52 and toured Radio City Music Hall and Rockefeller Center, returning home Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Phillips recently observed their thirteenth wedding anniversary. An informal party was held at their home, with the following present: Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Phillips and Mr. and Mrs. Sanford Phillips.

Mr. and Mrs. James Gallagher were New Year's Day guests of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Keator.

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Craig and Mrs. Frank Rowe spent Friday in New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Hollis E. Harvey and daughter Marilyn, visited Mrs. Wallace Cipolli in Kingston Sunday.

ETERNAL REST IN MIDST OF LIFE—The 127-year-old grave, above, was discovered along a road during expansion of West Hyattsville, Md., in suburban Washington, D. C. The legend on the old headstone declares that one Ann Baxter, born in London in 1800, died "near this place" in 1825. Maryland law forbids building of houses above graves, and so the remains of Ann Baxter lie undisturbed in the midst of a bustling community, except when youngsters, as above, play around the mound which houses the grave.

Here's How We Got These Wonderful Sealy Mattresses

Two reasons make this gigantic sale possible: The first is because Sealy had a lot of beautiful close-out covers, (. . . and we really mean gorgeous). They're heavy woven damasks! 8 oz. woven ticks! All sturdy covers to last and last. Sealy only had enough of them to make up 1-2 or 3 of a kind . . . so we bought 'em all! Secondly because we gave them the order before Christmas . . . when the factory was not busy. So, for these reasons you save plenty on real quality, Sealy mattresses. Every mattress has 4 heavy cord handles for easy turning . . . 8 ventilators to let your mattress breathe. And . . . there are 220 coils in each of these grand pre-built border mattresses. Remember, no more when these are gone! So, hurry to Standard now . . . refurnish all your bedding.

★ Beautiful, rich, heavy grade damasks...actual 49.50 to 69.50 values!
★ Wonderful 8-oz. woven tick found on more expensive mattresses!
★ 4 strong cord handles to make it easy for turning!
★ Eight (yes siree, 8) ventilators to let your mattress breathe!
★ Imagine, 220 coils to make you feel like you're sleeping on a cloud!

Dewey Urges Drop In Farm Licenses

Albany, Jan. 7 (AP)—Gov. Dewey urged today that registration fees for farm trucks be lowered from 50 to 35 cents per hundred pounds maximum gross weight.

Since 1951, computation of registration fees for trucks has been based on the loaded weight of the vehicle.

Dewey said in his annual message that "last year it became apparent that farm vehicles, which normally combine low annual mileage with partial use of load capacity, were inequitably affected by the new schedule."

The governor urged that the lower fee schedule become effective before Jan. 31 when current registrations will expire.

Advises Parking Boost

Albany, Jan. 7 (AP)—You may have to pay to park your car in state parks this year.

Gov. Dewey recommended in his annual message to the Legislature today that the state council of parks raise the parking fee from 35 to 50 cents.

Serves 10 Years

Albany, Jan. 7 (AP)—Gov. Dewey noted today he had served as New York's chief executive for 10 years—longer than any man since George Clinton, the state's first governor.

But Dewey did not say how many more annual messages he planned to deliver to opening sessions of the Legislature. He has said he plans to return to private law practive when his current term ends Dec. 31, 1954.

Dewey took office Jan. 1, 1943, and has been re-elected twice. Clinton, an anti-Federalist, served 21 years—from 1777 to 1795 and from 1801 to 1804.

Arizona is the fifth largest state in the Union, with a total land area of 114,000 square miles.

Faith Vs. Mad Dog Bite

Mrs. Herbert E. Smith reads a Bible passage to her daughter, Linda Carole, 5, who was bitten on the cheek New Year's Day by her rabid pet dog, Lucky, in Memphis, Tenn. Mrs. Smith said a minister's prayers healed Linda. She has refused to allow anti-rabies shots, saying, "That would show we didn't have faith." Doctors say if rabies develops death is certain.

Found Dead by Wife

Los Angeles, Jan. 7 (AP)—Police blamed an accidental overdose of sedative for the death yesterday of 47-year-old Barton Sewell, II, millionaire sportsman who figured 20 years ago in a sensational wife swapping case. His wife, the former Jane Scholtz Emerson, Denver socialite, found him slumped on the bathroom floor of their home. The sedative had been prescribed for a heart condition. Mrs. Sewell formerly was wed to Walter W. Emerson, actor and writer. When he sued her for divorce he named Sewell as corespondent. Mrs. Emerson filed a cross-complaint, naming Mrs. Sewell, the former Leah Clampitt, oil heiress, as correspondent. Fist fights and sensational charges marked the litigation, during which time the Emerson children were placed in the custody of Mrs. Emerson's parents.

Favors Stiff Sentences

Washington, Jan. 7 (AP)—The incoming chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee wants the United States and its allies to punish traitors and high-placed subversives with more than "a tap on the wrist." Sen. Wiley (R-Wis.), who has been designated to head the group, called in a statement yesterday for tightening the relevant statutes of the U. S., the United Kingdom, Canada, France and other free countries. He said punishment for "the high crimes of treason, espionage and subversion in high places" should not be "a tap on the wrist but a real deterrent." He cited as "an appalling loophole" the statute of limitations which prevented the prosecution of Alger Hiss on a charge more serious than lying under oath by denying that he handed government secrets to a Soviet spy ring.

Pidgeon in Tokyo

Hollywood, Jan. 7 (AP)—Actor Walter Pidgeon is in Tokyo looking after three Hollywood movie people who were hospitalized with influenza during a USO entertainment troupe tour of Korea. Actresses Debbie Reynolds and Peggy King and actor Keenan Wynn were laid low by the flu bug, MGM studio has been informed. The USO entertainment group played to 150,000 service men after leaving Hollywood Dec. 16.

Child Health Clinic

A child health conference will be conducted Wednesday, Jan. 14, at the Port Ewen Health Center from 3 to 5 p. m.

Quits Under Pressure

United Nations, Jan. 7 (AP)—Economist David Weintraub quit his high UN job last night under the pressure of State Department charges that he is a Communist or is under Communist discipline—charges Weintraub has emphatically denied. The 48-year-old New Yorker, in a letter to Secretary-General Trygve Lie, said he resigned to save the world organization from embarrassment. Lie, in reply, said he apreciated Weintraub's motives and regretted the developments that prompted the resignation. The secretary general expressed appreciation of the "outstanding contribution" Weintraub made to work of the organization. Weintraub, $12,000-a-year director of the UN Division of Economic Stability and Development, was named in a State Department list of 11 allegedly disloyal Americans employed by the UN. The list was made public Sunday by the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee.

Make Agreements

Seattle, Jan. 7 (AP)—Goldie Z. Payne and her ex-husband, Verne, were divorced three years ago after 34 years of marriage. But since their separation they have been living on adjoining properties. Yesterday they agreed in Superior Court that henceforth: Goldie will refrain from tossing garbage over the fence onto Verne's property; Verne will discontinue throwing water on Goldie's property; quit yelling at night to disturb her; refrain from entering her residence during her absence and will no longer dump advertising material in Goldie's front yard.

Will Be Sentenced For Lies to Jury

..Hudson, Jan. 7 (AP)—Joseph F. Macri of Troy will be sentenced Jan. 27 for lying to an extraordinary grand jury about the number of times he had met a gambler.

Macri pleaded guilt to a charge of second-degree perjury yesterday before Justice Henry L. Ughetta of State Supreme Court.

He had been indicted on a charge of first-degree perjury by the extraordinary grand jury probing crime and vice in Columbia county. The charge was reduced when Macri admitted guilt.

Ughetta paroled Macri in custody of his attorney and set sentencing for Jan. 27.

The indictment charged Macri with testifying falsely last December that he had met Benjamin Goldstein only four times and never had seen him at a crap game.

Goldstein, who had been indicted earlier in the probe, once was convicted of operating a numbers game.

Met Many Times

Macri, the indictment said, had met Goldstein at least once a week for an extended period in 1948 and 1949 in Hudson, where it said Macri had "participated in the operation of a crap game."

Macri's plea came as selection of a jury was begun for the trial of a suspended Hudson police sergeant. William F. Egan is on trial in the special term of State Supreme Court convened in connection with the state-ordered probe.

Egan is charged with accepting bribes from operators of houses of prostitution and with denying the alleged bribe-taking when he testified later before the grand jury.

10,000 Homeless in Fire

Manila, Jan. 7 (AP)—Fire Tuesday destroyed a large residential section of Cebu, a big port city of 180,000 in the central Philippines. One child is missing, 10,000 persons are homeless and damage unofficially is estimated at $1,500,000.

The young of a whale is called a calf.

Court Recesses After Six Cases Listed Settled

Settlement of six cases in Supreme Court Tuesday left the court without a case ready for trial and a recess was taken in the afternoon until 10 o'clock today.

Announced as settled was a personal injury action brought by Joseph Realmuto against Nathan Hahn. R. L. Featherstone for plaintiff and Charles W. Jenkins for defendant.

Thomas Sugrue Dies

New York, Jan. 7 (AP)—Thomas Sugrue, 45, author and former newspaperman who produced books and articles steadily although a crippling disease limited his writing to an hour a day, died yesterday. Sugrue was stricken with a disease of obscure nature in 1937 and never walked again. Permitted to spend only an hour a day writing, he learned to compose a thousand words in his mind and typed them within the allotted time. He worked on the Naugatuck, Conn., Daily News and the New York Herald Tribune before coming a staff writer for the American magazine. His last book, "A Catholic Speaks His Mind," was published in 1952 and caused some controversy within the Catholic church.

Cemetery Workers Strike

New York, Jan. 7 (AP)—Workers in six cemeteries in Brooklyn, Queens and Westchester Counties struck today in a dispute over wages. The work stoppage followed the breaking off of negotiations last night between representatives of 18 cemeteries in the three counties and Cemetery Workers Local 365, of the AFL Building Service Employes International Union.

'It Hurts Me More Than You' Is Phony Talk to Youngsters

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

At 5 p. m. Mr. Jones phoned his wife to say that he was dining in town with a client. When she protested that he had a bridge date with neighbors, he said, "Stop trying to tell me how to run the advertising business."

At 5:30, Marilyn Jones, dyeing an expensive sweater in the bathroom, told her mother that she couldn't see the red stains she'd spattered on a new bath towel. Her mother was passionately demanding to know whether Marilyn believed her parents were made of money when Jackie came upstairs to fuss because he couldn't find his Scout knife.

He followed his mother downstairs, still fussing while she prepared a bleach solution for the towel. And as he complained, he kept poking at the loaf cake on the kitchen table.

"Stop it," his mother said. "I've had all I can take. The cleaner will bring back your Scout knife when he delivers the coat you left it in. Now run along and stop bothering me."

But Jackie wouldn't stop bothering. He snatched at the cake again, knocking over a bowl of shredded coconut. Whereupon his mother blew her top. She grabbed Jackie by his coat collar, muttering, "Now we'll see who's boss around here"—and marching him up to his room, gave him a spanking.

When she brought him his supper an hour later, he wouldn't speak to her. He refused to show any interest in his piece of coconut cake. Hesitantly, Mrs. Jones said, "Are you still angry with mother? Don't you know that spanking you hurts me more than it hurts you?"

Jackie didn't believe her. Neither do I.

Spanking her harassing child was a release and relief to Mrs. Jones' accumulated irritations. She does neither herself nor her child any service by pretending to philanthropic motives for her action. We all blow our tops when pressures are stronger than our resistance to them. We do not have to be so ashamed of this that we doll up our explosion in phony altruistic talk to Jackie.

What his mother might better have said is, "I've been mad this afternoon and just lost my temper when you gave me extra work. I'm sorry. When you can understand that mother is not an angel but gets mad sometimes just as you do, come on down and have some supper with us."

Talk of how spanking hurts us more than it hurts Jackie forfeits his respect. He figures, quite logically that if spanking him is really so painful to us, we'd find another way to express our point of view.

If we believe that we have done right to spank a disobedient or harassing little boy or girl, we should not apologize. We should not feel especially hurt at meting out punishment we consider instructive.

If we don't believe we have done right, then we should admit our error and make a straightforward request for forgiveness.

Dodge Opens Conferences

Washington, Jan. 7 (AP)—Joseph M. Dodge, who will be President-elect Eisenhower's budget director, today opens a series of conferences with Republican cabinet designees aimed at cutting President Truman's new budget. He told reporters last night it will be impossible to turn off spending in the vast federal government as one would turn off a switch on a toy train. "You can't perform any 60-day miracles," he said.

The word "coquette" describes a woman who flirts, struts, and preens like a rooster and is a French diminutive for rooster.

330th at Stewart

Newburgh, N. Y., Jan. 7 (AP)—A Stewart Air Force Base announcement said today the 330th Fighter Interceptor Squadron had been assigned there. The base is the headquarters of the Eastern Air Defense Force. A spokesman said the squadron was the first active fighter interceptor group to be assigned to the base. The squadron will be made up of 25 jet panes, 44 officers and 144 enlisted men.

'Cut or Quit'

Members of Congress who can't make ends meet on a $15,000 annual salary should cut their living standard or quit, says Rep. Usher Burdick (R.-N.D.) (above). Burdick took issue with a private group, the national committee, that there be "material" increases in Congressional pay and expense allowances. "Nobody is forcing men to serve in Congress," he said. "They fight for these jobs and they know in advance what the pay is." The 74-year-old veteran says he makes ends meet, "but I don't go out with a stiff plug hat on every night."

What his mother might better have said is, "I've been mad this afternoon and just lost my temper when you gave me extra work. I'm sorry. When you can understand that mother is not an angel but gets mad sometimes just as you do, come on down and have some supper with us."

Talk of how spanking hurts us more than it hurts Jackie forfeits his respect. He figures, quite logically that if spanking him is really so painful to us, we'd find another way to express our point of view.

If we believe that we have done right to spank a disobedient or harassing little boy or girl, we should not apologize. We should not feel especially hurt at meting out punishment we consider instructive.

If we don't believe we have done right, then we should admit our error and make a straightforward request for forgiveness.

Dodge Opens Conferences

Washington, Jan. 7 (AP)—Joseph M. Dodge, who will be President-elect Eisenhower's budget director, today opens a series of conferences with Republican cabinet designees aimed at cutting President Truman's new budget. He told reporters last night it will be impossible to turn off spending in the vast federal government as one would turn off a switch on a toy train. "You can't perform any 60-day miracles," he said.

The word "coquette" describes a woman who flirts, struts, and preens like a rooster and is a French diminutive for rooster.

330th at Stewart

Newburgh, N. Y., Jan. 7 (AP)—A Stewart Air Force Base announcement said today the 330th Fighter Interceptor Squadron had been assigned there. The base is the headquarters of the Eastern Air Defense Force. A spokesman said the squadron was the first active fighter interceptor group to be assigned to the base. The squadron will be made up of 25 jet panes, 44 officers and 144 enlisted men.

'Cut or Quit'

Members of Congress who can't make ends meet on a $15,000 annual salary should cut their living standard or quit, says Rep. Usher Burdick (R.-N.D.) (above). Burdick took issue with a private group, the national committee, that there be "material" increases in Congressional pay and expense allowances. "Nobody is forcing men to serve in Congress," he said. "They fight for these jobs and they know in advance what the pay is." The 74-year-old veteran says he makes ends meet, "but I don't go out with a stiff plug hat on every night."

rears of eight or nine years at $30 a month of theoretical rent previously waived by the treasury and that I, as a taxpayer, now demanded that Truman should pay income tax on the same principle.

Truman thinks that when a man becomes president he is precious and privileged. He may have got that from Roosevelt who certainly had royal notions. And Roosevelt's old lady ran up a fabulous expense on us when she was queening it over the old rat-run on Pennsylvania avenue and never even bothered to sign the tabs. You couldn't possibly learn within millions what a bill that household of grafters and drunks ran up on us.

The special plane that whipped Truman to Key West and wherever else he wanted to go was paid for beyond his regular travel allowance. We paid for his household services outside those allowances. They have so much hired help around the White House now that they don't even pretend to keep the payrolls straight. And on top of all that, Roosevelt and Truman have had "emergency" funds of untold millions to do with as they please without even the formality of a "certificate."

This is absolutely fantastic but all that I tell you is absolutely true.

State Tax Gains Exceed Year Ago

Albany, Jan. 7 (AP)—State tax revenues are running 7.7 per cent higher than a year ago, and within 1 per cent of Gov. Dewey's estimate of last winter.

The state reaped $694,799,143.54 in taxes in the first eight months of the fiscal year that started last April 1, the tax department said yesterday.

This was a gain of $49,679,997.52 —or 7.7 per cent—over the comparable period in 1951. Dewey had predicted a 7 per cent increase in state revenues this year.

The governor estimated taxes for the entire current fiscal year would total $992,575,000.

The tax department figures were released as Dewey and T. Norman Hurd, his budget chief, neared completion of the 1953-54 budget, which Dewey will present to the Legislature by Feb. 1.

It is expected to run slightly higher than the current record-high spending program of $1,109,000,000.

Clay on Bond Drive

General Lucius D. Clay, chairman of the board of directors, Continental Can Company, and former U. S. military governor in Germany, has been appointed to the New York State defense bonds advisory committee, it was announced today by Robert W. Sparks, committee chairman, and Philip M. Light, state director of the Treasury's U. S. Savings Bonds Division. Sparks said that General Clay's "long experience in public service will be of great value to the volunteer efforts in support of the Defense Bond program."

1,814 Boys Belong To Scout Council For Two Counties

Rip Van Winkle Council, Boy Scouts of America, ended the year 1952 with 1,814 boys registered, it was announced by Raymond S. Quackenbush of Saugerties, council president.

The total is greater than ever before in the council's 38-year history, and represents a 19 per cent increase over 1951.

The boys are members of 18 Cub packs, 53 Scout troops and five Explorer posts in the two counties, Ulster and Greene, served by the council.

The increase in membership is due to the work of the organization and extension committee under the leadership of John Henry Martin, who recently resigned as chairman, according to Quackenbush.

More Leaders

Other statistics compiled in completing the application for the renewal of the council charter and filing year-end reports show that the number of unit leaders who have completed basic training increased in 1952 from 19 per cent to 47 per cent through the training schedule of seven courses in which 116 leaders participated. Harold Van Voorhis of Saugerties is council leadership training chairman.

At present, 16 per cent of all registered Scouts and Explorers in the council hold first class rank or above—a substantial increase over last year. During 1952, 245 Second Class advancements were earned, 93 First Class advancements, 33 Star rank advancements, and 12 Life rank advancements. Twelve boys qualified during the year for Eagle Scout, highest rank in Scouting, compared to one in 1951. Also, 667 merit badges were earned during the year.

Cub Advancements

In Cub scouting, the following advancements were recorded: 162 Wolf, 106 Bear, 62 Lion, 21 Webelos. William W. Brady of Kingston is council advancement chairman.

The total number of boys and boy-weeks at Camp Tri-Mount increased last summer through the work of the council camp committee under the direction of Walter T. Tremper. The percentage, however, was slightly smaller than 1951 because of the rapid increase in overall membership.

The health and safety committee with George Sheldon of Kingston as chairman promoted safe transportation practices to be followed by units and has made available to all registered boys and leaders an accident policy covering mishaps on all Scouting activities. The camp received the highest health and safety ratings from the national office and from State Health Department inspectors.

Special Campaign for Funds

The finance committee under the leadership of Lewis Short of Kingston reported a total of $17,000 raised in the annual fund campaign. This is an increase over 1951, but expenses were greater during the year due to the adding of a field executive. To supplement the finances and assure enough money to operate until the new financial year begins in July a "Sustaining Membership Campaign" will be conducted during Scout Week among the Scouters, parents of boys registered in the council, and friends.

Directing the activities of the council and each of its seven districts is the commissioner staff under the leadership of Val W. Morrow of Maplecrest, council commissioners. These activities included the camporee last spring at Camp Tri-Mount with more than 500 participants; Cub Day at the camp last July, attended by over 200 Cubs and their parents; 12 district rallies; nine district camporees with more than 750 participants; distribution of 15,000 posters for various community agencies as well as 23,000 "Get-Out-the-Vote" door knob hangers; participation of 558 Scouts, Explorers and Leaders in the Regional Scout Day at West Point, and the planting of 5,000 seedlings at Camp Tri-Mount last spring.

Your breakfast table has fresh milk every day—thanks to the telephone!

"Seems like the telephone is almost as important as the cow in our business," says Philip Lambert, "for distributing fresh milk every morning to doorsteps all over the state takes a lot of phone calls. The milk-shed managers keep in touch with dairy farmers like me—by phone. They check their distributors—route the trucks that pick up the milk—by phone. We wouldn't be without it."

Yes, telephones help bring you many of the products and services you use every day. They make your daily chores easier, your living more enjoyable. Few things you buy today are as big a bargain. Compared with price increases in everything else, the telephone takes a much smaller part of the average family budget than it did ten years ago.

You get faster, better, more useful service, too. You can reach more people. For example, in the average community today customers can call twice as many telephones as they could in 1940. And we're going right ahead with the costliest construction program in our history—to catch up with the backlog for phones, to meet the continuing demand, and to make service even better than ever.

Measured by service or measured by price, your telephone is one of today's big bargains.

TODAY'S BIG BARGAIN. Your cost of living has jumped 92% since 1940. Yet the price of phone service has risen an average of only 15% — more for some and less for others, of course, depending on the type of service and the use made of it.

Your breakfast table has fresh milk every day—thanks to the telephone!

"Seems like the telephone is almost as important as the cow in our business," says Philip Lambert, "for distributing fresh milk every morning to doorsteps all over the state takes a lot of phone calls. The milk-shed managers keep in touch with dairy farmers like me—by phone. They check their distributors—route the trucks that pick up the milk—by phone. We wouldn't be without it."

Yes, telephones help bring you many of the products and services you use every day. They make your daily chores easier, your living more enjoyable. Few things you buy today are as big a bargain. Compared with price increases in everything else, the telephone takes a much smaller part of the average family budget than it did ten years ago.

You get faster, better, more useful service, too. You can reach more people. For example, in the average community today customers can call twice as many telephones as they could in 1940. And we're going right ahead with the costliest construction program in our history—to catch up with the backlog for phones, to meet the continuing demand, and to make service even better than ever.

Measured by service or measured by price, your telephone is one of today's big bargains.

TODAY'S BIG BARGAIN. Your cost of living has jumped 92% since 1940. Yet the price of phone service has risen an average of only 15% — more for some and less for others, of course, depending on the type of service and the use made of it.

Have you tried the first truly balanced car in the low-priced field?

new '53 Plymouth

1 Balanced Ride New truly balanced suspension controls roll, pitch, and jounce . . . thus levels the road three ways . . . and gives you the softest, steadiest, most restful ride you've ever experienced!

2 Balanced Vision With 16% more glass area, you get all-around, close-in vision. New one-piece windshield is more uniformly curved so you get an undistorted view of the road. Constant-action electric windshield wipers.

3 Balanced Styling Here's a new way of balancing smart exterior styling with more space inside! The new '53 Plymouth is sleeker, yet offers more head room. In sedans there's 8 inches more hip room for rear-seat passengers.

4 Balanced Braking Where other low-priced cars have but one hydraulic cylinder in each front brake, Plymouth has two—to give you balanced control, the exact amount of stopping power you want and expect.

All-around balance is only part of the '53 Plymouth story. You'll want to see the smart, gleaming new colors and color harmonies—the luxurious new interiors—the rich, refined appointments that make this the most beautiful low-priced car you've ever seen. Your Plymouth dealer is eager to arrange your demonstration drive now.

PLYMOUTH Division of CHRYSLER CORPORATION, Detroit 31, Michigan

5 Balanced Power The stepped-up 100-horsepower Plymouth engine—with new, higher compression ratio of 7.1 to 1—floats in balance on cushions of live rubber .. to give you smooth, quiet operation and long car life.

6 Balanced Steering Plymouth's shock-proof steering is better than ever because of the new suspension system and true balance of the car. You drive relaxed with your car under perfect control.

7 Balanced Budget, Too Your pocketbook benefits from the greater quality engineered into the Plymouth. You get longer, trouble-free service, day-after-day dependability with lower maintenance cost.

There's more quality in it—you get more value out of it

Junior Group, DAR Has Concert and Tercentennary Slides

Highlighting the regular monthly meeting of the Junior Group of Wiltwyck Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, held Monday evening at the chapter house, were an unusual short concert, given by the King's Chorus, and a fine collection of color slides, shown by Walter T. Tremper.

Choral Program

The 21 members of the choral group, organized last year, opened their program, under the direction of Donald R. Romme, with a stirring performance of the Fred Waring arrangement of Onward Christian Soldiers. With a complete change of mood, this was followed by Into the Night by Clara Edwards, and an arrangement of High Noon made by Mr. Romme; this latter selection being an interesting treatment of the music from the moving picture of the same name. Soloists in this number were John Hill, Warren Simmons, Miss Arlene Craw and Miss Gloria Massa.

The outstanding selection of the King's Chorus program was a choral synthesis of George Gershwin's, Porgy and Bess, made by Mr. Romme. Incorporating many of the familiar melodies of this American folk opera, and some not so familiar, it presents the plot of the opera in condensed form, while still achieving remarkable fidelity to the spirit of the original. Capably singing the title roles were Chase Page and Miss Barbara Decker. Mrs. Warren Simmons was incidental soloist. Howard Houghtaling was accompanist for the entire program.

Tercentennial Slides

The second half of the evening was devoted to viewing a large collection of color slides, made from photographs taken by Walter T. Tremper during the events of Kingston's 300th Anniversary celebration. While operating the projector, Mr. Tremper gave a running, and often amusing, commentary on the pictures and occasions depicted, which included the visit of Queen Juliana on April 5, the blooming of the tulips in the First Dutch Churchyard, the June 5th celebration at Academy Green marking the exact anniversary date, scenes from the dress rehearsal of the Anniversary pageant, The Land of Beauty, the 100th Anniverasry of the First Dutch Church celebrated on September 21, and scenes of the D.A.R. Hudson Valley Council Meeting, held in Kingston on June 5, 1952, which were of particular interest to his audience.

During the business session preceding the evening's program, Mrs. Ruth K. Friedell, chairman of the approved schools committee, reported on the large number of Christmas gifts sent to Gloria Pickens, the ten year old ward of Wiltwyck Chapter at Tamassee D.A.R. School, and thank-you letters from Gloria were read.

Additional members appointed to the hospitality committee by Mrs. J. James Soetching, chairman of the Junior Group, were: Mrs. Harold C. Morgan, Mrs. Richard Whiston and Mrs. Conrad J. Gross. This committee, the executive committee, and all other committee chairmen will make arrangements for the annual Husband and Escort Night, which will take the form of a covered dish supper followed by square dancing, to be held on February 2.

Members of Christopher Tappen Society, CAR, were guests of the Junior Group at the meeting. Hostesses for the evening were: Mrs. Soetching, Mrs. Walter Schussler, Mrs. Ralph E Post, Mrs. Ira Nelson Saxe and Mrs. Hollis M. Burhans.

Ulster Nile Club Has Christmas Party

The Ulster County Nile Club held a recent Christmas party at the home of its president, Princess Clara Embree on Albany avenue. The group played games, exchanged gifts and sang carols.

The chief project of the club, consisting of members of Cyrene Temple, Albany, is to sew for the Crippled Children's Hospital in Springfield, Mass. On the occasion of the party, the local group sent to the hospital large packages containing large and small hospital gowns, toy bags, scrap books and other items. The sewing was done under the leadership of the sewing chairman, Princess Lillian Craig.

Refreshments were prepared and served by Mrs. Embree and princess, Marvel Archibald.

Three Central Hudson Employes Honored for 110 Years' Service

Three local employes of the Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corporation were honored Monday for a combined total of 110 years of continuous company service in ceremonies at the Poughkeepsie general office. They were Harry G. Zellmer of 294 Broadway; Henry D. Eltinge of 72 Maiden Lane; and Alfred W. Stall of 77 Van Buren street.

Mr. Zellmer, associated with the company's line forces, became the 13th Central Hudson employe on active duty to reach the 40-year milestone of service. He started work January 1, 1913 as a gas fitter and later served as chauffeur, compressor operator, garage man and equipment operator.

Mr. Eltinge, special commercial representative, observed his 35th anniversary with the utility company January 1. He started work in 1918 as records clerk and has held the positions of superintendent of maintenance and construction and service supervisor over the years.

Mr. Stall observed his 35th year with Central Hudson on January 2. He began work in 1918 as office salesman and apprentice clerk and later held the positions of assistant to commercial manager, public contact supervisor and is now commercial personnel training instructor.

Ernest R. Acker, president of the Central Hudson System, presented the men with service emblems and cited them for their long records of service to the company and through it to the people of the Mid-Hudson valley.

INEXCUSABLE THOUGHTLESSNESS

The writer of the following letter explains: "My husband and I live in a two-family house and the family living below us have no telephone of their own. It seems we never sit down to a meal without this interruption and, frankly, we are sick of it. Will you please tell me how we can put an end to this without causing hurt feelings?"

The only thing you can do is to make an excuse of some kind to the person calling as to why you cannot call your neighbors to the telephone, such as, you can't leave what you are doing at the moment, or that you are waiting for a very important call and don't want the line tied up, etc. By and by they will realize that their calls are not welcomed by you and stop calling.

Answer: You may certainly eat the food on your plate in whichever order you prefer.

Misunderstanding About Hope Chest

Dear Mrs. Post: I received my engagement ring at Christmas and would like to start my hope chest. My mother is perfectly willing to buy it for me, but everybody tells me that it is up to my finance to buy it. Will you please tell me what is correct?

Answer: Your family should buy your hope chest if you would like to have one. To expect the bridegroom-to-be to buy it is not according to established rule. Originally, the hope chest was started when a little girl was born and filled gradually for the day when she married.

Mrs. Churchill Arrives

Kingston, Jamaica, Jan. 7 (AP)—Mrs. Winston Churchill arrived here by plane last night to await her husband for their West Indies vacation. With her was their daughter, Mrs. Christopher Soames. The British prime minister, presently holding informal talks in New York with President-elect Eisenhower and other leading Americans, is expected to join his family at the end of the week after a stopover in Washington to visit President Truman.

Lieut. Jack M. Sable Weds California Girl

Announcement has been made by Mr. and Mrs. Isadore Glickman of San Francisco, Cal., of the marriage of their daughter, Elissa, to Chaplain, First Lieutenant Jack M. Sable, USAF, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Sable, 337 Broadway, on November 30, 1952, at the Park Manor in Brooklyn. The Rabbi Emanuel J. Rachman performed the ceremony. A reception for 140 guests followed the ceremony.

Traditional wedding music was provided by Cantor Irwin Rogoff, a cousin of the bride, Cantor Lou Mason, and the Oscar Julius Symphony Choir of New York.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of imported lace and tulle over ivory satin. A coronet of lace and seed pearls held her nylon net veil. She carried a white Bible and orchids.

The attendants were Miss Elsa Betty Perlman of Los Angeles, Cal., a cousin to the bride; and Hyman Sable of Brooklyn, the bridegroom's brother.

Mrs. Sable was graduated from Wilbur's School and attended San Francisco State College and the University of California, where she majored in music and languages.

Lieutenant Sable was graduated from Yeshiva University in New York, where he also received a master's degree. When entering the service, he was working for a PhD in guidance and counseling. Lieutenant Sable is chaplain at the Air Force Indoctrination Wing, Parks Air Force Base, California.

"Body Beautiful" HORMONE LOTION

Guards against crepey "sand-paper" elbows!

Protects legs, feet from rough dryness!

the finest hormone lotion to help your body look young!

Most women let skin care stop with their face, forgetting that the body is an important part of beauty. Skin everywhere on the body can be kept just as young-looking and young-feeling. All that's needed is proper skin care all over the body.

For just that purpose COTY has developed an entirely new lotion, called "Body Beautiful" Hormone Lotion. Scientifically blended from hormones and other beneficial ingredients, this new lotion lets every single inch of your body benefit from hormones—one of the most momentous of modern scientific discoveries for care of the skin.

Natural Hormones, Estradiol and Other Beneficial Ingredients Help Retain Skin Moisture

Thanks to estrogenic hormones and estradiol, your skin can be helped to keep the moisture, and suppleness it would naturally have. It's only when dryness creeps in that you begin to notice criss-cross wrinkles on your hands—runs in your stockings caused by roughness and flaky skin on legs and ankles—"sand-paper" elbows that mar otherwise pretty forearms. That's exactly when "Body Beautiful" Hormone Lotion can help you retain the proper degree of moisture in skin and under-tissues . . . regain the thrill of looking young . . . feeling young from the tips of your fingers to the tops of your toes.

Three Brothers Defeat 50 Club in 'A' League Game, 59-53

Doyle Hits 18; Central Lunch Franchise Out

Fail to Floor Seven Players for Game

Back at full strength for the first time in several games, Three Brothers Farms of Esopus knocked off the 50 Club, 59-53, last night in a rough and tumble battle in the YMCA's "A" League.

The Central Lunch was ruled out of the "B" League when it failed to floor the minimum of seven men against Waterous Lumber of Woodstock.

The KPA squad was hurriedly thrown together and beat the Lumberjacks in an exhibition game, 42-34.

League director Lou Schafer said the action to oust the Central Lunch was taken reluctantly, but he pointed out the club had been given several warnings.

Doyle Hits 18

Big Jack Doyle sparked the Three Bros. victory with 18 points in a game that followed a deadly pattern of dribble and shoot. Both clubs were guilty of inaccuracies from the foul line, the Bros. blowing 21 chances and 50 Club failing on 22.

Doyle picked up a half dozen deuces and six fouls for his 18 markers. Big Jim Ferraro bucketed 15, while Frank Fiore and Bill Hermance rimmed 8 apiece. Fred Orr dropped 15 and Ronnie Brandt had 11 for the losers.

Bill Fitzgerald paced the KPAs with 16 points against Waterous Lumber. Joe Hilton, Bruce Reynolds and Waterous holed 7 each for the Lumberjacks.

TV Debate Still Rages

Notre Dame and Penn Seek New Policy

Washington, Jan. 7 (AP)—Notre Dame and the University of Pennsylvania brought their fight for unrestricted football television to the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) convention today, but apparently they faced another losing battle.

The NCAA's TV committee is prepared to propose a program just as strict, if not stricter, than last year's and a sampling of opinion among the some 400 member colleges show a big majority behind it.

In 1952 the NCAA permitted one nationally televised game a week but permitted a few regional telecasts in sellout circumstances.

Ed (Moose) Krause, athletic director of Notre Dame, and Francis Murray, who holds the same position at Penn, were scheduled to arrive today with individual plans for wide open television.

Krause, who will appear before the TV committee as a consultant, will present a 10-point program calling for the lifting of all barriers.

Murray has a different proposal calling for unrestricted television with one third of the proceeds going into a special fund, supervised by a board, for setting up scholarships.

Neither has much chance of passing. Neither does the plan, offered by the strong Big Ten and the Southeastern Conference, to take the matter out of the NCAA's hands and put the controls up to regional bodies.

The convention voted, 163-8, for limited television a year ago and backed the 1952 game-a-week plan by 185-13 in a mail referendum.

The group, which has been poring over surveys for the last two days, is to submit its report tomorrow for convention action Saturday.

John Jay's Film Was Cause Celebre In 1952 Olympics

The 1952 Olympic skiing and skating film will be shown by John Jay, the internationally famous outdoor photographer at the high school auditorium tonight at 8 o'clock. But the title "official Olympic" film will be missing. Although "Olympic Victory" is a breath taking narrative in color and words of the 1952 world's championships, the Norwegian Olympic committee protested violently against Jay's claim to the official film. Avery Brundage, national AAU chairman, then instructed Jay to delete any reference to "official" from his picture. However, it is still accepted as the best.

NCAA Coaches Seek To Curb False Moves

Washington, Jan. 7 (AP)—In a move to discourage what is popularly called the "sucker shift," college football coaches have recommended one of the most radical rules changes in years.

The change, to supplement the present regulation on false starts, would make it illegal for a lineman to make a move once he has assumed a starting position.

Columbia's Lou Little, chairman of the Football Coaches Rules Committee, said a lineman would be subject to penalty if he reached up and scratched his nose after getting down in what is known as a three-point position—feet and one hand on the ground.

Through Little, the coaches presented the recommendation yesterday along with another proposal that the T-quarterback be made eligible to receive a pass after handling the ball from center. He is now ineligible.

The suggestions now go to the rules making body, which meets next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. The coaches are only an advisory body.

The football mentors voted to keep all other rules virtually intact, including the controversial free substitution rule.

The group thought it would be best to keep the substitution rule as it stands although many members wanted to go to the professional rule of unlimited substitutions. Now players can be substituted only when the clock is stopped. The pros can take players in and out regardless.

From Irish Squabble

Little acknowledged that the change in the false start rule probably was provoked by the publicity over Notre Dame's famous shift but he added that the Irish were strictly within bounds of the present rules.

Notre Dame shifted from the T formation to the single wing at certain times, and the opposition often broke over the line before the ball was snapped. The shift was used particularly effectively in the Oklahoma and Southern California games.

Southern Cal's Coach Jess Hill said he though the shift violated the spirit of the game.

While Notre Dame's shift involved only the backfield, Little said any maneuver pulling the opposition off sides originates with the linemen and so the suggested change.

He said Notre Dame's Coach Frank Leahy, a member of the committee, strongly favored the recommendation.

"We suggested the change because we were afraid many schools would start trying to pull other team's off-side next year with sucker shifts," Little added.

SPORTS

By CHARLES J. FIANO
Freeman Sports Editor

In pointing up his theory that Little League baseball has made "dads of many fathers," National Commissioner Carl A. Stotz related an amusing story for his banquet listeners at the George Washington School.

Asserting that altogether too many fathers are often on the stiff and crusty side in relations with their sons, he told of such a father who was won over by an unusual incident.

The son was trying unsuccessfully to shine up to his father that night. He was trying to break that wall between them, maybe just start a conversation. The father who was engrossed in the daily sports page sought ways of stalling the lad and keeping him at a distance.

Finally, the father conceived the idea of taking the photo of a map that appeared in the newspaper that day and tearing it to bits . . . much in the fashion of a jigsaw puzzle.

"Here, Johnny," he said, "see if you can piece these parts together and restore the whole map," meanwhile congratulating himself that junior would be occupied long into the night.

Consider his amazement when a couple of minutes later Johnny returned with all the pieces in their proper place.

"How'd you do that so fast, Johnny," the puzzled father asked.

"Aw, shucks, that was easy dad," replied Johnny. "There was a picture of some boys playing ball on the other side. All I did was put the boys in the right place and I had it."

"And," philosophized Commissioner Stotz, "what a wonderful thought. Get the boys in the right place and the world will be alright."

• Flotsam and Jetsam:

Stotz revealed that approximately 130,000 boys on 7500 teams in 1786 leagues competed in Little League in 1952. They were handled by 25,000 adult coaches and instructors. LL ball was played in 44 of the 48 states and in Canada, Hawaii, Canal Zone (where the season started Monday), Korea and Japan. More than 2,000 inquiries for new leagues in 1953 have reached the Williamsport, Pa. office and many other cities report expansion plans. The 1953 rules will prohibit special games and exhibitions outside of the regular league schedule, Stotz said. Pitching rules have been revised and there is a movement to give base runners the same treatment of organized ball. Under present rules a runner cannot advance until the ball has passed the plate. Curveball pitching also may be outlawed.

The commissioner defended Little League against charges from some educators and recreational theorists that it was too highly emotional for kids in that age group. He said careful guidance by coaches who study their players individually and do not over-emphasize victory has successfully combatted any trends in that direction. He said it was the responsibility of the coaches and league officials to see that the youngsters retained the proper perspective at all times.

The championship Dodgers were sartorially resplendent, with many flashing bow ties, and scrubbed like little angels. Democracy in action: Hobert Armstrong, the little Negro slugger of the Dodgers, was the first to come forward for the championship awards and the rest of the boys in the league tore down the house with an ovation for Hobart. Certainly the most popular umpire in all of baseball must be Sonny Barnes. The ovation the small fry accorded him when he was introduced was ear-splitting.

Bob Umpleby, who worked hard to build the Little League stadium, was heaped with many deserved accolades. The true measure of his greatness will be better realized by those who must carry on in 1953.

And while this magnificent testimonial to the small fry of the city was unfolding, there was my good old friend, Harry Gayson, snarled in ice and sleet at White Plains. It was surely a tough night for Major Hoople.

Warriors Win After 10 Losses

(By The Associated Press)

The Philadelphia Warriors, loser of 22 of their last 23 games in the NBA, finally won again last night. They beat the Indianapolis Olympians, 76-71.

With the law of averages and Neil Johnston, the league's top scorer on their side, the Warriors snapped a string of 10 straight losses. Johnston poured in 26 points to take over the individual scoring lead from the Boston Celtics' Bob Cousy, who didn't play last night.

Johnston now has 696 points to 694 for Cousy.

In other games last night, the second-place Rochester Royals cut into the Minneapolis Lakers' Western Division lead to two games by whipping the Lakers, 85-69.

With Dillard Crocker tossing in 12 points in the late stages, the Milwaukee Hawks edged the Fort Wayne Pistons, 73-71.

Sedgman Is Winner In Pro Tennis Debut

Segura Defeats Ken McGregor

Los Angeles, Jan. 7 (AP)—Well versed experts took opposing views on the future but this much was certain today. Australia's tennis champion, Frank Sedgman, was off to a winning start as a professional player.

The 25-year-old artist from Down Under made his pro debut a triumphant one last night when he upset California's Jack Kramer. Ruling king of the play-for-pay boys, 3-6, 6-4, 6-4.

Not so successful was Sedgman's partner and, until last week, co-hero of the Australian Davis Cup team, Ken McGregor. In his bow he fell before the two-handed attack of Pancho Segura of Ecuador, 6-2, 7-5.

The Aussie's American pro debut was staged before a near capacity crowd of about 7,000 fans in Pan-Pacific auditorium.

It was the first of a 90-match schedule for 1953's new tennis trouple on a tour that Sedgman signed to play for a guarantee of $75,000 and McGregor $25,000.

Weekend in New York

The show, and a tasty one it was, goes on again here tonight. On the next stop. Saturday and Sunday, it moves into New York's Madison Square Garden.

One match hardly makes the tour. For the past three years Kramer has cleaned up on the opposition — Bobby Riggs, Pancho Gonzales and Pancho Segura. But Sedgman apparently poses the toughest tour Kramer has had.

Ellsworth Vines, a tennis kingpin before he became a golf pro, witnessed last night's match. He picks Sedgman to win the most matches on the tour.

Old-timer Bill Tilden saw it and thought otherwise. He said Big Jake, as Kramer is known, needs a few matches with the skilled likes of Sedgman, and will again emerge on top.

The two ex-greats pretty well reflected the division of opinion.

HR Track In Oneida

State Now Has Eight Places Operating

Albany, Jan. 7 (AP)—The State Harness Racing Commission has authorized operation of a parimutuel harness racing track at Vernon, Oneida county, and has assigned the track 66 nights of racing next summer.

The Commission granted a license yesterday to Mid-State Raceway, Inc., to operate the track, to be known as Vernon Downs. It will be built at an estimated cost of $800,000. Parimutuel betting will be provided.

Vernon is 17 miles west of Utica on Route 5.

The action brought to eight — the legal limit — the number of pari-mutuel harness track licenses in the state. The others, permit racing at Hamburg, Batavia, Saratoga Springs, Yonkers, Westbury, L. I., and two at Goshen.

The three-man Commission acted amidst a controversy that has raged for two years among church and civic groups in Vernon and central New York.

The three-quarter-mile track—only one of that distance in the state—will stage eight-race programs from July 1 to Sept. 5 and from Sept. 11 to Sept. 19, Sundays excluded.

The new dates will give New York state 518 days of harness racing.

John Jay's Film Was Cause Celebre In 1952 Olympics

The 1952 Olympic skiing and skating film will be shown by John Jay, the internationally famous outdoor photographer at the high school auditorium tonight at 8 o'clock. But the title "official Olympic" film will be missing. Although "Olympic Victory" is a breath taking narrative in color and words of the 1952 world's championships, the Norwegian Olympic committee protested violently against Jay's claim to the official film. Avery Brundage, national AAU chairman, then instructed Jay to delete any reference to "official" from his picture. However, it is still accepted as the best.

NCAA Coaches Seek To Curb False Moves

Washington, Jan. 7 (AP)—In a move to discourage what is popularly called the "sucker shift," college football coaches have recommended one of the most radical rules changes in years.

The change, to supplement the present regulation on false starts, would make it illegal for a linesman to make a move once he has assumed a starting position.

Columbia's Lou Little, chairman of the Football Coaches Rules Committee, said a lineman would be subject to penalty if he reached up and scratched his nose after getting down in what is known as a three-point position—feet and one hand on the ground.

Through Little, the coaches presented the recommendation yesterday along with another proposal that the T-quarterback be made eligible to receive a pass after handling the ball from center. He is now ineligible.

The suggestions now go to the rules making body, which meets next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. The coaches are only an advisory body.

The football mentors voted to keep all other rules virtually intact, including the controversial free substitution rule.

The group thought it would be best to keep the substitution rule as it stands although many members wanted to go to the professional rule of unlimited substitutions. Now players can be substituted only when the clock is stopped. The pros can take players in and out regardless.

From Irish Squabble

Little acknowledged that the change in the false start rule probably was provoked by the publicity over Notre Dame's famous shift but he added that the Irish were strictly within bounds of the present rules.

Notre Dame shifted from the T formation to the single wing at certain times, and the opposition often broke over the line before the ball was snapped. The shift was used particularly effectively in the Oklahoma and Southern California games.

Southern Cal's Coach Jess Hill said he though the shift violated the spirit of the game.

While Notre Dame's shift involved only the backfield, Little said any maneuver pulling the opposition off sides originates with the linemen and so the suggested change.

He said Notre Dame's Coach Frank Leahy, a member of the committee, strongly favored the recommendation.

"We suggested the change because we were afraid many schools would start trying to pull other team's off-side next year with sucker shifts," Little added.

Shaw's Grocery Leads Jr. League

By CHARLES J. FIANO
Freeman Sports Editor

In pointing up his theory that Little League baseball has made "dads of many fathers," National Commissioner Carl A. Stotz related an amusing story for his banquet listeners at the George Washington School.

Asserting that altogether too many fathers are often on the stiff and crusty side in relations with their sons, he told of such a father who was won over by an unusual incident.

The son was trying unsuccessfully to shine up to his father that night. He was trying to break that wall between them, maybe just start a conversation. The father who was engrossed in the daily sports page sought ways of stalling the lad and keeping him at a distance.

Finally, the father conceived the idea of taking the photo of a map that appeared in the newspaper that day and tearing it to bits . . . much in the fashion of a jigsaw puzzle.

"Here, Johnny," he said, "see if you can piece these parts together and restore the whole map," meanwhile congratulating himself that junior would be occupied long into the night.

Consider his amazement when a couple of minutes later Johnny returned with all the pieces in their proper place.

"How'd you do that so fast, Johnny," the puzzled father asked.

"Aw, shucks, that was easy dad," replied Johnny. "There was a picture of some boys playing ball on the other side. All I did was put the boys in the right place and I had it."

"And," philosophized Commissioner Stotz, "what a wonderful thought. Get the boys in the right place and the world will be alright."

• Flotsam and Jetsam:

Stotz revealed that approximately 130,000 boys on 7500 teams in 1786 leagues competed in Little League in 1952. They were handled by 25,000 adult coaches and instructors. LL ball was played in 44 of the 48 states and in Canada, Hawaii, Canal Zone (where the season started Monday), Korea and Japan. More than 2,000 inquiries for new leagues in 1953 have reached the Williamsport, Pa. office and many other cities report expansion plans. The 1953 rules will prohibit special games and exhibitions outside of the regular league schedule, Stotz said. Pitching rules have been revised and there is a movement to give base runners the same treatment of organized ball. Under present rules a runner cannot advance until the ball has passed the plate. Curveball pitching also may be outlawed.

The commissioner defended Little League against charges from some educators and recreational theorists that it was too highly emotional for kids in that age group. He said careful guidance by coaches who study their players individually and do not over-emphasize victory has successfully combatted any trends in that direction. He said it was the responsibility of the coaches and league officials to see that the youngsters retained the proper perspective at all times.

The championship Dodgers were sartorially resplendent, with many flashing bow ties, and scrubbed like little angels. Democracy in action: Hobert Armstrong, the little Negro slugger of the Dodgers, was the first to come forward for the championship awards and the rest of the boys in the league tore down the house with an ovation for Hobart. Certainly the most popular umpire in all of baseball must be Sonny Barnes. The ovation the small fry accorded him when he was introduced was ear-splitting.

Bob Umpleby, who worked hard to build the Little League stadium, was heaped with many deserved accolades. The true measure of his greatness will be better realized by those who must carry on in 1953.

And while this magnificent testimonial to the small fry of the city was unfolding, there was my good old friend, Harry Gayson, snarled in ice and sleet at White Plains. It was surely a tough night for Major Hoople.

Warriors Win After 10 Losses

(By The Associated Press)

The Philadelphia Warriors, loser of 22 of their last 23 games in the NBA, finally won again last night. They beat the Indianapolis Olympians, 76-71.

With the law of averages and Neil Johnston, the league's top scorer on their side, the Warriors snapped a string of 10 straight losses. Johnston poured in 26 points to take over the individual scoring lead from the Boston Celtics' Bob Cousy, who didn't play last night.

Johnston now has 696 points to 694 for Cousy.

In other games last night, the second-place Rochester Royals cut into the Minneapolis Lakers' Western Division lead to two games by whipping the Lakers, 85-69.

With Dillard Crocker tossing in 12 points in the late stages, the Milwaukee Hawks edged the Fort Wayne Pistons, 73-71.

Saugerties Stars Trip Collegians

With "Boo" Schaffer and Bill Goff inflicting the heaviest damage, Saugerties All Stars whacked the Kingston Collegians, 64-58, Monday on the Saugerties court.

It was Goff's five baskets early in the game that gave the All Stars a lead they never relinquished. He finished with 13 points. Schaffer hit 15 and Erceg added 10.

Ward Dunham was Kingston's best scorer with 16 points. George Carpouzis rimmed 15 and Bob Beaumont bucketed an even dozen.

Sedgman Is Winner In Pro Tennis Debut

Segura Defeats Ken McGregor

Los Angeles, Jan. 7 (AP)—Well versed experts took opposing views on the future but this much was certain today. Australia's tennis champion, Frank Sedgman, was off to a winning start as a professional player.

The 25-year-old artist from Down Under made his pro debut a triumphant one last night when he upset California's Jack Kramer. Ruling king of the play-for-pay boys, 3-6, 6-4, 6-4.

Not so successful was Sedgman's partner and, until last week, co-hero of the Australian Davis Cup team, Ken McGregor. In his bow he fell before the two-handed attack of Pancho Segura of Ecuador, 6-2, 7-5.

The Aussie's American pro debut was staged before a near capacity crowd of about 7,000 fans in Pan-Pacific auditorium.

It was the first of a 90-match schedule for 1953's new tennis trouple on a tour that Sedgman signed to play for a guarantee of $75,000 and McGregor $25,000.

Weekend in New York

The show, and a tasty one it was, goes on again here tonight. On the next stop. Saturday and Sunday, it moves into New York's Madison Square Garden.

One match hardly makes the tour. For the past three years Kramer has cleaned up on the opposition — Bobby Riggs, Pancho Gonzales and Pancho Segura. But Sedgman apparently poses the toughest tour Kramer has had.

Ellsworth Vines, a tennis kingpin before he became a golf pro, witnessed last night's match. He picks Sedgman to win the most matches on the tour.

Old-timer Bill Tilden saw it and thought otherwise. He said Big Jake, as Kramer is known, needs a few matches with the skilled likes of Sedgman, and will again emerge on top.

The two ex-greats pretty well reflected the division of opinion.

HR Track In Oneida

State Now Has Eight Places Operating

Albany, Jan. 7 (AP)—The State Harness Racing Commission has authorized operation of a parimutuel harness racing track at Vernon, Oneida county, and has assigned the track 66 nights of racing next summer.

The Commission granted a license yesterday to Mid-State Raceway, Inc., to operate the track, to be known as Vernon Downs. It will be built at an estimated cost of $800,000. Parimutuel betting will be provided.

Vernon is 17 miles west of Utica on Route 5.

The action brought to eight — the legal limit — the number of pari-mutuel harness track licenses in the state. The others, permit racing at Hamburg, Batavia, Saratoga Springs, Yonkers, Westbury, L. I., and two at Goshen.

The three-man Commission acted amidst a controversy that has raged for two years among church and civic groups in Vernon and central New York.

The three-quarter-mile track—only one of that distance in the state—will stage eight-race programs from July 1 to Sept. 5 and from Sept. 11 to Sept. 19, Sundays excluded.

The new dates will give New York state 518 days of harness racing.

Puppies From an Older Dog

By JOE STETSON
(Dog Editor)

"There's a very good reason," John said positively. "The puppies from the older bitch just can't be as good as her daughter's pups. The older she gets the poorer the pups are bound to be.'

"Well, John," I couldn't help saying, "it's the first time I've heard you admit that you're not as good a man as your big brother Al since your mother was older when you were born."

John had been promised a beagle pup out of Bell's Toll, but Toll had only whelped three and they had been previously reserved. The breeder had offered John a pup out of old Bell sired by the same dog instead, but John for some reason had the feeling that

Bell's pups would not be as good as her daughter's because she was now about eight years old.

"You're wrong in thinking that a bitch's puppies are less likely to be good as she gets older," I told him. "There is a time, of course, when the bitch can no longer keep herself in good condition and do justice to the pups she is carrying. Until that time, the age of the bitch or the number of times she has whelped has no bearing on the quality of the pups. As a matter of fact, a bitch's first litter may not be as well provided for after whelping because the mammry glands aren't so well developed. Dame Nature usually provides for this by smaller first litters.

"Similarly, in the case of the sire, there is no reason to believe that age can influence the quality of the offspring. A sperm produced one year has the same chance for producing qualities as one produced another year, just so long as that sperm is given the opportunity to fertilize the ovum."

"Supposing the dogs are bred and there are no offspring?" asked John.

"That's a different matter. If for some reason the bitch does not ovulate properly or the sperm of the male doesn't have the vitality to travel to the ovules and fertilize them, there will be no offspring.

"If the ovulation and fertilization take place, however, the characteristics of the ancestors are being passed along with the same element of possibility regardless of the age of the parents. If the chances of getting desirable characteristics are equal, it is quite simple to observe the general health and temperament of the pups. If they look and act healthy, one can assume that they developed normally both before and after birth. There is no mysterious unseen something which can possibly make them inferior because of the age of the parents alone. In fact, there have been many outstanding dogs out of bitches well along in years or by old sires or both!"

AWAITING START OF PRO TENNIS CAREERS

Frank Sedgman, left, and Ken McGregor, Australia's two Davis Cup stars, prepare in Los Angeles for the start of their professional tennis careers there Jan. 6, when they were scheduled to begin a cross-country tour against Jack Kramer, king of the pros, and Pancho Segura. McGregor will play against Segura and Sedgman against Kramer. Then the newcomers play a doubles match against the old timers.

Effie Propp's 625 New GNL Record; Jacobs Hits 638

Larry Jacobs had a pretty good night in the Good Neighbor League but Effie Propp was even better.

Ephraim spanked the maples for solid singles of 193, 231 and 228 for a new GNL high individual series record of 632. The owner of the previous high was not noted.

Jacobs finished with 638 on 251, 178, 202 and these two triples were by far the highest reported in the local tenpin wheels.

Don McConnell opened with a 246 and closed with 573 to lead the Central Rec League. George Howland's 162-161-179 for 502 was best-of-night in the International division of the Federation, while Ralph Halbert took the National honors with 155-187-191-533.

Best woman's score reported was Dot Khederian's 441, with 135-167-139, in the Women's Junior Major at the Bowlodrome.

Grube Posts 560

Runnerup Hank Grube fired 225-560 and W. Schwarz toppled 231-539 in the Central Rec. Bill Pieper with 215-554, Ed Thomas 202-553, Eddie Heins 211-551 and H. Engle 550 were all among the leaders.

Notre Dame, Navy Grab Spotlight In College Ball

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sportswriter

The Middies from Annapolis chalked up their seventh in a row by crushing Johns Hopkins, 77-50, while Notre Dame made it nine victories in 10 starts by nipping New York University, 78-77, in overtime.

NYU forced the game overtime on Boris Nachamkin's basket in the last minute that tied the regulation game at 68-68. Dick Rosenthal put the Irish out in the front in the extra period with two free throws and NYU never caught up again. Rosenthal flipped in 19 points for Notre Dame and Nachamkin 28 for NYU.

John Clune, with 25 points, sparked Navy. All but seven of these came in the second half as the Middies pulled away after a slow start.

Yale Beats Penn

Yale, back home after a long road trip, upset Pennsylvanai, 76-64, in an EIL struggle. The Eli, led by Joe Weber with 20 points, broke a 13-13 tie late in the first period and stayed ahead the rest of the way. Ernie Beck and Dick Heylmun each tallied 21 points for Penn.

The Southwest Conference race opened with Texas, Rice and Baylor chalking up victories. Texas, led by Billy Powell with 18 points, whipped defending champion Texas Christian, 55-48.

Gene Schwinger and Don Lance, who scored 52 points between them, sparked Rice to a 64-54 victory over Southern Methodist. A crowd of 4,400—the largest crowd ever to see a game in the new Rice gym at Houston, Tex., looked on. Baylor came from behind a 23-10 deficit in the second quarter to beat Texas A&M, 60-44.

Georgia beat Georgia Tech, 70-57, and Tennessee whipped Mississippi, 81-71, in two Southeastern Conference games. Zippy Morocco led Georgia with 27 points. Hank Bartelkamp, with 21, sparked Tennessee.

Tulsa crushed Houston, 91-60, in a Missouri Valley Conference tilt, setting a Tulsa home court team scoring record. Oregon State started their Pacific Coast Conference season with a 39-27 victory over Washington State.

North Carolina State crushed Davidson, 105-71 in a Southern Conference game.

Onteora Games

26.7 Point Cager Plays at Siena

Co-captain Huck Budde, a 6 foot 4 master cager, who is currently fifth ranking scorer in the nation, will lead Xavier of Ohio into Albany for the first time to engage Siena College Thursday at the Albany Armory.

Budde, who has scored 160 points in six games so far, is averaging 26.7. All-Ohio as a schoolboy he rarely takes a set shot and ran up a seasonal high of 33 points against Marshall College.

Flanagan is 2-1 Choice Over Felton

Cleveland, Jan. 7 (AP) — Del Flanagan, a purposeful young fighter with an eye on the welterweight title, goes after his second victory over Lester Felton of Detroit in a nationally televised bout tonight.

The clever St. Paul boxer won a split decision over Felton in Chicago last October and is a 7-5 favorite to cop the verdict again.

The bout, scheduled for 10 rounds, will start at 10 p. m. (EST) and will be televised by CBS. Judging in Cleveland is on the basis of rounds.

By JOE STETSON
(Dog Editor)

"There's a very good reason," John said positively. "The puppies from the older bitch just can't be as good as her daughter's pups. The older she gets the poorer the pups are bound to be.'

"Well, John," I couldn't help saying, "it's the first time I've heard you admit that you're not as good a man as your big brother Al since your mother was older when you were born."

John had been promised a beagle pup out of Bell's Toll, but Toll had only whelped three and they had been previously reserved. The breeder had offered John a pup out of old Bell sired by the same dog instead, but John for some reason had the feeling that

Bell's pups would not be as good as her daughter's because she was now about eight years old.

"You're wrong in thinking that a bitch's puppies are less likely to be good as she gets older," I told him. "There is a time, of course, when the bitch can no longer keep herself in good condition and do justice to the pups she is carrying. Until that time, the age of the bitch or the number of times she has whelped has no bearing on the quality of the pups. As a matter of fact, a bitch's first litter may not be as well provided for after whelping because the mammry glands aren't so well developed. Dame Nature usually provides for this by smaller first litters.

"Similarly, in the case of the sire, there is no reason to believe that age can influence the quality of the offspring. A sperm produced one year has the same chance for producing qualities as one produced another year, just so long as that sperm is given the opportunity to fertilize the ovum."

"Supposing the dogs are bred and there are no offspring?" asked John.

"That's a different matter. If for some reason the bitch does not ovulate properly or the sperm of the male doesn't have the vitality to travel to the ovules and fertilize them, there will be no offspring.

"If the ovulation and fertilization take place, however, the characteristics of the ancestors are being passed along with the same element of possibility regardless of the age of the parents. If the chances of getting desirable characteristics are equal, it is quite simple to observe the general health and temperament of the pups. If they look and act healthy, one can assume that they developed normally both before and after birth. There is no mysterious unseen something which can possibly make them inferior because of the age of the parents alone. In fact, there have been many outstanding dogs out of bitches well along in years or by old sires or both!"

POSSIBLE CURE FOR GUN-SHY DOGS

GIVE THE DOG HIS FOOD AND QUICKLY STEP SEVERAL FEET AWAY FROM IT. AS HE BEGINS TO EAT, FIRE A CAP PISTOL. IF HE IGNORES FIRING, MOVE CLOSER TO FIRE AGAIN. IF HE QUITS EATING, REMOVE FOOD AT ONCE! DO NOT OFFER HIM FOOD UNTIL THE NEXT DAY WHEN YOU REPEAT THE FIRING FROM A DISTANCE AS BEFORE. IF HE QUITS EATING, REMOVE THE FOOD. CONTINUE DAILY UNTIL HE IGNORES FIRING BECAUSE OF HIS HUNGER. WHEN HE ONCE EATS, THE FIRING MEANS LITTLE. GRADUALLY INCREASE FROM CAP PISTOL VIA A .22 TO A LIGHT SHOTGUN. DON'T GIVE IN AS HE THINS BUT GIVE HIM PLENTY OF WATER!

AWAITING START OF PRO TENNIS CAREERS

Frank Sedgman, left, and Ken McGregor, Australia's two Davis Cup stars, prepare in Los Angeles for the start of their professional tennis careers there Jan. 6, when they were scheduled to begin a cross-country tour against Jack Kramer, king of the pros, and Pancho Segura. McGregor will play against Segura and Sedgman against Kramer. Then the newcomers play a doubles match against the old timers.

Effie Propp's 625 New GNL Record; Jacobs Hits 638

Larry Jacobs had a pretty good night in the Good Neighbor League but Effie Propp was even better.

Ephraim spanked the maples for solid singles of 193, 231 and 228 for a new GNL high individual series record of 632. The owner of the previous high was not noted.

Jacobs finished with 638 on 251, 178, 202 and these two triples were by far the highest reported in the local tenpin wheels.

Don McConnell opened with a 246 and closed with 573 to lead the Central Rec League. George Howland's 162-161-179 for 502 was best-of-night in the International division of the Federation, while Ralph Halbert took the National honors with 155-187-191-533.

Best woman's score reported was Dot Khederian's 441, with 135-167-139, in the Women's Junior Major at the Bowlodrome.

Grube Posts 560

Runnerup Hank Grube fired 225-560 and W. Schwarz toppled 231-539 in the Central Rec. Bill Pieper with 215-554, Ed Thomas 202-553, Eddie Heins 211-551 and H. Engle 550 were all among the leaders.

Carl Bowser slammed 231-547; Carl Lundquist 215-546; Floyd Robinson 541, Floyd Crantek 244-530, Earl Sleight 522 and Len Stauble 517.

Team results:

Hamburger Paradise 2, Thomson's Laundry 1; Kingston Heating Supply 2, Pine Tree Inn 1; Haber's Grill 3, Chez Emile 0; Herzog's 2, Lincoln Park Inn 1.

The Lincoln Park Inn's 1025 was a new team single record, eclipsing the 1001 held by Thomson Laundry.

Kaplan Hits 576

Stan Kaplan took over third place in the Good Neighbor wheel with 205-576 and Jay Melton shot 575. Other top trundlers were Seymour Markowitz 204-566; Anton Werbalowsky 556, Eddie Bahl 207-548; Hy Arlensky 200-538; B. Baplan 211-535; H. Svirsky 211-533 and Herm Schneider 521.

Team results:

B'nai B'rith No. 1 (2), Standard Furniture 1; IMM No. 1 (2), Blinder's Apparel 1; Guarantee Radiator 2, Leventhal Furs 1; French Dye Works 3, IMM No. 2 (0); Men's Club 2, Larry's Beachcombers 1; B'nai B'rith No. 2 (2), Hot Shots 1; Rippy Dips 2, Suntag's Pharmacy 1.

Doug Harvey Has 503

Doug Harvey's 503 trailed Halbert in the Federation, with H. Ferguson shooting 498, Harold Smith 497, Stan Hankinson 474 and Ed Leudtke 471. In the International loop, A. MacDaniel had 495, R. Fatum and E. Holumzer 462 and D. Donaldson 452.

Ann Mitchell was second best in the Junior Women's Major with 426. The "400" club also included Ruth Toffel 416, Yolanda Benicase 415, Dot Donnaruma and D. Cave 414, Mabel Mackey 411 and M. Clark 400.

Team results:

Hilltoppers 2, Colonial Cleaners 1; Rosendale Florist 0, Schilling Sales Co. 3; Tropical Inn 2, J.P.'s 1; Elston's Sport Shop 3, Mac's Market 0.

Notre Dame, Navy Grab Spotlight In College Ball

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sportswriter

Unbeaten Navy and once-beaten Notre Dame took the spotlight in college basketball last night.

The Middies from Annapolis chalked up their seventh in a row by crushing Johns Hopkins, 77-50, while Notre Dame made it nine victories in 10 starts by nipping New York University, 78-77, in overtime.

NYU forced the game overtime on Boris Nachamkin's basket in the last minute that tied the regulation game at 68-68. Dick Rosenthal put the Irish out in the front in the extra period with two free throws and NYU never caught up again. Rosenthal flipped in 19 points for Notre Dame and Nachamkin 28 for NYU.

John Clune, with 25 points, sparked Navy. All but seven of these came in the second half as the Middies pulled away after a slow start.

Yale Beats Penn

Yale, back home after a long road trip, upset Pennsylvanai, 76-64, in an EIL struggle. The Eli, led by Joe Weber with 20 points, broke a 13-13 tie late in the first period and stayed ahead the rest of the way. Ernie Beck and Dick Heylmun each tallied 21 points for Penn.

The Southwest Conference race opened with Texas, Rice and Baylor chalking up victories. Texas, led by Billy Powell with 18 points, whipped defending champion Texas Christian, 55-48.

Gene Schwinger and Don Lance, who scored 52 points between them, sparked Rice to a 64-54 victory over Southern Methodist. A crowd of 4,400—the largest crowd ever to see a game in the new Rice gym at Houston, Tex., looked on. Baylor came from behind a 23-10 deficit in the second quarter to beat Texas A&M, 60-44.

Georgia beat Georgia Tech, 70-57, and Tennessee whipped Mississippi, 81-71, in two Southeastern Conference games. Zippy Morocco led Georgia with 27 points. Hank Bartelkamp, with 21, sparked Tennessee.

Tulsa crushed Houston, 91-60, in a Missouri Valley Conference tilt, setting a Tulsa home court team scoring record. Oregon State started their Pacific Coast Conference season with a 39-27 victory over Washington State.

North Carolina State crushed Davidson, 105-71 in a Southern Conference game.

Onteora Games

The Onteora Central School basketball varsity will play a special game with the Faculty team Friday at 8:30 p. m. The Junior High varsity and Jayvee reserves meet in the preliminary at 7:30 o'clock. The public is invited.

Sports of the Day

(IN BRIEF)
(By The Associated Press)

Tennis

Los Angeles — Frank Sedgman and Ken McGregor, Australia's Davis Cup Aces broke even in their professional singles debut. Sedgman beat Jack Kramer, 3-6, 6-4, 6-4 after McGregor had lost to Pancho Segura, 6-2, 7-5. Sedgman and McGregor whipped Kramer and Segura in the doubles, 11-9, 6-3.

Football

Washington—In order to discourage the so-called "sucker shift" college grid coaches recommended that it be illegal for a lineman to make a move once he has assumed a starting position.

Baseball

Brooklyn—Gil Hodges, Brooklyn Dodger first baseman, who failed to get a hit in the 1952 World Series, signed his 1953 contract for an estimated $20,000.

St. Louis — Seven St. Louis Browns signed their 1953 contracts—outfielder Don Lenhardt, pitchers Gene Bearden, Cliff Fannin and Bob Habenicht and infielders Jim Dyck, Ed Mickelson and Roy Sievers.

Racing

Baltimore—Bed O'Roses, champion 2-year-old filly in 1949 and champion handicap mare in 1951, died at the age of six.

Blue Jays Lead Midget League

26.7 Point Cager Plays at Siena

Co-captain Huck Budde, a 6 foot 4 master cager, who is currently fifth ranking scorer in the nation, will lead Xavier of Ohio into Albany for the first time to engage Siena College Thursday at the Albany Armory.

Budde, who has scored 160 points in six games so far, is averaging 26.7. All-Ohio as a schoolboy he rarely takes a set shot and ran up a seasonal high of 33 points against Marshall College.

Flanagan is 2-1 Choice Over Felton

Cleveland, Jan. 7 (AP) — Del Flanagan, a purposeful young fighter with an eye on the welterweight title, goes after his second victory over Lester Felton of Detroit in a nationally televised bout tonight.

The clever St. Paul boxer won a split decision over Felton in Chicago last October and is a 7-5 favorite to cop the verdict again.

The bout, scheduled for 10 rounds, will start at 10 p. m. (EST) and will be televised by CBS. Judging in Cleveland is on the basis of rounds.

Saugerties Whiz Kids Trip Economy Cagers

Saugerties Whiz Kids trounced Economy Excavators of Kingston, 62-46, on the upriver court. Ronnie Crispino of Economy led the scorers with 19 points. Iannone hit 11 for the winners.

Girl's Body Found

Reading, Pa., Jan. 7 (AP)—The body of a 15-year-old girl, victim of a sex slayer, was found stuffed in an ash barrel in an alley near her home early today. Police said they believed Dorothy Schlappig was strangled, and there were indications that she had been criminally assaulted. Her body, nude except for a brassiere, was found jammed in the barrel in a sitting position. In the alley, police said, were signs of a terrific struggle. The body was found about half a block from the home of the girl's foster parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Sauber, who had reported to police late last night that she was missing.

Red Stage Leaders Die

Moscow, Jan. 7 (AP)—The deaths of two leading Soviet theatrical figures were reported today. They were director Ariya Moiseevich Pazovsky of Moscow's Bolshoi Theatre and actress Mariya Petrovna Yudinaplaton of the Maly Theatre.

Will Launch New Craft Tomorrow

Island Dock Inc. said today it is scheduled to launch its first of a new type navy landing craft at 8 a. m., tomorrow.

Designated as LCU 1466, the vessel is the first of 17 to be built by the local yard for the navy which is having 150 built in six shipyards in various sections of the country.

Designed to carry a crew of 10 men, the craft, when completed, will be about 115 feet long. It is to be used to carry tanks and other vehicles to beachheads.

Tomorrow's launching is ahead of the regularly scheduled date. It was advanced to get the craft into the Rondout creek before it became locked with ice.

The vessel will be towed, after the launching, to the yard's marine railway where it will be drydocked for completion and installation of shafting, rudders, and other underwater equipment. It should be completed about April 1.

Carpenters Attend AFL Conference

Several representatives of the Hudson Valley District Council of Carpenters, AF of L are attending a conference of representatives from New York and the New England states at Syracuse. The conference began today and will close January 10.

At the sessions will be discussed organizational work, jurisdictional disputes and general dissemination of information affecting carpenters.

Those attending the conference from this area are George E. Yerry, Jr., George W. Race, John Dermody, Louis Greenstein, John Feitzinger, Charles Massopust, Joseph Raymond, Hugo Ness, Frank Bell, George Masterson and Hyman Zamansky.

Twins Still Critical

Chicago, Jan. 7 (AP)—Rodney Dee Brodie, the stronger of the separated Siamese twins, appeared today to have survived another plastic operation "fairly well," but his condition continued critical. Little hope, however, was held by doctors for survival of his twin brother, Roger, who has been in a coma since the 15-month-old boys were separated in an operation on Dec. 17. The twins were born joined at the top of their heads. Rodney was in the operating room for two hours yesterday as plastic surgeons took a 3½ by 12-inch strip of skin from his back and transferred it to the open wound on his forehead to start it healing. Last week skin from Rodney's forehead and the sides of his head was used to cover three-fourths of his exposed brain top.

Judge Erases Charge

Lewes, England, Jan. 7 (AP)—To drink someone else's beer is an unforgivable sin—and deserves a punch on the nose, according to an English judge. Norman Hyde, 39, was charged in Lewes court yesterday with punching Henry Attwood in a saloon after Attwood had grabbed Hyde's glass of beer. "You appear to have been greatly provoked, for Attwood seems to have committed the unpardonable sin of trying to drink somebody else's beer," Judge Eric Neave told Hyde. Then the judge erased the charge—despite Hyde's plea of guilty.

Says Two Burned Him

Bowling Green, Ky., Jan. 7 (AP)—A father of eight children hobbled into court on crutches yesterday and told how two fellow workers soaked his trousers in gasoline and then applied a cigarette lighter. The complainant, Joe Clay Simmons, 39, was burned severely. A Circuit Court jury convicted James Cherry, 25, and James Chaffin, 30, of assault and battery and recommended fines of $250 for each. Chaffin and Cherry, who worked with Simmons at a feed mill, said they were just playing a prank.

Three Persons Killed

Sheridan, Texas, Jan. 7 (AP)—A roaring explosion turned a huge oil recycling plant into an inferno today. Three persons were reported killed and four missing. John F. Goodness, a druggist in this little southeast Texas town of some 400 persons, said the explosion occurred about 9 a. m. at the Shell re-cycling plant four miles from here. Goodness said the blast destroyed the bigger of two huge buildings at the plant. An hour and a half after the blast, smoke still boiled omniously over the flat farm and oil lands.

Works on Petition

New York, Jan. 7 (AP)—Counsel for condemned atom spies Julius and Ethel Rosenberg worked today on a clemency petition to President Truman — after being assured the action would not prevent further legal moves. Mr. and Mrs. Rosenberg were scheduled to die in the Sing Sing Prison electric chair Jan. 14 for plotting for the Russians, but Federal Judge Irving R. Kaufman offered a stay of execution if they filed their clemency petition by Saturday.

The year 1912 had an unusually chilly summer because dust from the eruption of Alaska's Mt. Katami partially obscured the sun in the Northern Hemisphere.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Jan. 7 (AP)—A general decline in the stock market continued today for the second straight session, but the fall was far less intense than yesterday.

Price declines seldom went as far as a point. In some sections of the list there were enough small plus signs to ease the retreat considerably.

Volume dried up with the exception of a few flurries from time to time. Trading was at a pace much less than yesterday's 2,080,000 shares. This tendency of the volume to dwindle on the fall was regarded as having bullish significance.

No single area of the market was under fire. On the downside were steels, motors, railroads, utilities, coppers, and oils. Other divisions were mixed or steady.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

Propose Primary Vote in September

Albany, Jan. 7 (AP)—A later date for the primary election—early September instead of mid-August—is proposed by the Republican state executive committee.

The change is intended to promote voter participation in the fall primary, Chairman William L. Pfeiffer says.

The proposal was endorsed yesterday at the committee's annual meeting on the eve of the state legislature's opening session. The group also:

1. Agreed that Gov. Dewey would be federal patronage boss in New York state.
2. Proposed absentee-registration machinery for disabled or ill persons unable to get to the polls.
3. Scheduled the party's annual $100-a-plate dinner for May 7 at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York city. Republicans hope President Eisenhower will attend.
4. Mapped plans—to include a float—for the inauguration ceremonies in Washington Jan. 20.
5. Took no action to fill the post of state party secretary, vacated by Thomas Stephens, who is now legal counsel to Eisenhower.

Form Patronage Plan

The patronage plan will work as follows:

For less important federal jobs, recommendations will be made by GOP county chairmen and screened by Dewey's hand-picked state chairman and two state members of the National GOP Committee before being forwarded to Washington.

Republican congressmen will be consulted on appointments made in their districts, but will not necessarily have veto power.

Candidates for more important federal jobs such as judgeships, U. S. attorneys and appointive customs posts will be cleared by Dewey, as well as Pfeiffer and the two national committee members.

Dewey, of course, will be consulted from the start on any major appointments, of New Yorkers—to cabinet or sub-cabinet posts, for examble.

Combat Vets Back

San Francisco, Jan. 7 (AP)—The transport Gen. John Poep is due today with 3,846 army combat veterans from the Far East. The transport Gen. William Mitchell also docks today with 2,168 passengers from the Far East. Aboard are 995 army men, 756 air force personnel, 122 navy men, and 295 dependents and civilian employes.

Get Fast Car

Oakland, Calif., Jan. 7 (AP)—Oakland police, tired of being outdistanced by hot-rod speeders, asked for a souped-up car of their own. So the City Council yesterday authorized the purchase of an eight-cylinder, 160-horsepower sedan expected to better 100 m.p.h. and cost $2,800.

be this country's ambassador to the United Nations. The former Congress member said he and the general discussed UN affairs "a little bit," but he declined to elaborate.

Eisenhower is to meet later today with British Prime Minister Winston Churchill. Korea and other world problems are likely to come up at that conference.

The British prime minister and the President-elect met twice Monday after Churchill's arrival from England. They had no statement after their conferences then, and Eisenhower's headquarters said there probably would be none today.

At Baruch's Home

Like the other two sessions, the third meeting with be held at the Manhattan home of financier Bernard M. Baruch, Churchill's host during his stay in New York. The prime minister plans to go to Washington tomorrow to meet President Truman.

Two key Eisenhower appointees, John Foster Dulles and Winthrop W. Aldrich, called on Churchill at Baruch's home last night. Dulles will be secretary of state in the new administration and Aldrich will be ambassador to Great Britain.

"We had a good talk and covered a lot of ground," Dulles told newsmen after the conference. He declined to elaborate.

Announces Appointments

Eisenhower announced two State Department appointments yesterday after conferences with Dulles.

He chose Donold B. Lourie, president of the Quaker Oats Company of Chicago, to serve as undersecretary of state in charge of administration. He picked Carl W. McCardle, chief of the Washington bureau of the Philadelphia Bulletin, as an assistant secretary of state. McCardle's assignment deals primarily with public affairs, including the department's "Voice of America" information program.

New York Governor Thomas E. Dewey will attend a dinner in Churchill's honor tonight at Baruch's home.

Hurley to Launch Polio Campaign

Hurley volunteer workers for the 1953 March of Dimes will launch their campaign today under the co-chairmanship of Mrs. Howard Every of West Hurley and Mrs. Wesley O'Brien of Glenford.

This announcement was made by Ernest Myer, chairman of the town of Hurley, who said that every boxholder in Hurley will receive a returnable stamped envelope containing a March of Dimes pocket.

Myer pointed out that it is hoped by this method that the 1953 quota will be reached in the township. Last year the township raised more than $400 for the fight against polio.

Also working with the town group is William O'Kelly who will canvass the schools of his area.

Silver generally is considered the best conductor of electricity.

Girl's Body Found

Reading, Pa., Jan. 7 (AP)—The body of a 15-year-old girl, victim of a sex slayer, was found stuffed in an ash barrel in an alley near her home early today. Police said they believed Dorothy Schlappig was strangled, and there were indications that she had been criminally assaulted. Her body, nude except for a brassiere, was found jammed in the barrel in a sitting position. In the alley, police said, were signs of a terrific struggle. The body was found about half a block from the home of the girl's foster parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Sauber, who had reported to police late last night that she was missing.

Will Launch New Craft Tomorrow

Island Dock Inc. said today it is scheduled to launch its first of a new type navy landing craft at 8 a. m., tomorrow.

Designated as LCU 1466, the vessel is the first of 17 to be built by the local yard for the navy which is having 150 built in six shipyards in various sections of the country.

Designed to carry a crew of 10 men, the craft, when completed, will be about 115 feet long. It is to be used to carry tanks and other vehicles to beachheads.

Tomorrow's launching is ahead of the regularly scheduled date. It was advanced to get the craft into the Rondout creek before it became locked with ice.

The vessel will be towed, after the launching, to the yard's marine railway where it will be drydocked for completion and installation of shafting, rudders, and other underwater equipment. It should be completed about April 1.

Propose Primary Vote in September

Albany, Jan. 7 (AP)—A later date for the primary election—early September instead of mid-August—is proposed by the Republican state executive committee.

The change is intended to promote voter participation in the fall primary, Chairman William L. Pfeiffer says.

The proposal was endorsed yesterday at the committee's annual meeting on the eve of the state legislature's opening session. The group also:

1. Agreed that Gov. Dewey would be federal patronage boss in New York state.

2. Proposed absentee-registration machinery for disabled or ill persons unable to get to the polls.

3. Scheduled the party's annual $100-a-plate dinner for May 7 at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York city. Republicans hope President Eisenhower will attend.

4. Mapped plans—to include a float—for the inauguration ceremonies in Washington Jan. 20.

5. Took no action to fill the post of state party secretary, vacated by Thomas Stephens, who is now legal counsel to Eisenhower.

Form Patronage Plan

The patronage plan will work as follows:

For less important federal jobs, recommendations will be made by GOP county chairmen and screened by Dewey's hand-picked state chairman and two state members of the National GOP Committee before being forwarded to Washington.

Republican congressmen will be consulted on appointments made in their districts, but will not necessarily have veto power.

Candidates for more important federal jobs such as judgeships, U. S. attorneys and appointive customs posts will be cleared by Dewey, as well as Pfeiffer and the two national committee members.

Dewey, of course, will be consulted from the start on any major appointments, of New Yorkers—to cabinet or sub-cabinet posts, for examble.

Combat Vets Back

San Francisco, Jan. 7 (AP)—The transport Gen. John Poep is due today with 3,846 army combat veterans from the Far East. The transport Gen. William Mitchell also docks today with 2,168 passengers from the Far East. Aboard are 995 army men, 756 air force personnel, 122 navy men, and 295 dependents and civilian employes.

Get Fast Car

Oakland, Calif., Jan. 7 (AP)—Oakland police, tired of being outdistanced by hot-rod speeders, asked for a souped-up car of their own. So the City Council yesterday authorized the purchase of an eight-cylinder, 160-horsepower sedan expected to better 100 m.p.h. and cost $2,800.

Smooth Transition

be this country's ambassador to the United Nations. The former Congress member said he and the general discussed UN affairs "a little bit," but he declined to elaborate.

Eisenhower is to meet later today with British Prime Minister Winston Churchill. Korea and other world problems are likely to come up at that conference.

The British prime minister and the President-elect met twice Monday after Churchill's arrival from England. They had no statement after their conferences then, and Eisenhower's headquarters said there probably would be none today.

At Baruch's Home

Like the other two sessions, the third meeting with be held at the Manhattan home of financier Bernard M. Baruch, Churchill's host during his stay in New York. The prime minister plans to go to Washington tomorrow to meet President Truman.

Two key Eisenhower appointees, John Foster Dulles and Winthrop W. Aldrich, called on Churchill at Baruch's home last night. Dulles will be secretary of state in the new administration and Aldrich will be ambassador to Great Britain.

"We had a good talk and covered a lot of ground," Dulles told newsmen after the conference. He declined to elaborate.

Announces Appointments

Eisenhower announced two State Department appointments yesterday after conferences with Dulles.

He chose Donold B. Lourie, president of the Quaker Oats Company of Chicago, to serve as undersecretary of state in charge of administration. He picked Carl W. McCardle, chief of the Washington bureau of the Philadelphia Bulletin, as an assistant secretary of state. McCardle's assignment deals primarily with public affairs, including the department's "Voice of America" information program.

New York Governor Thomas E. Dewey will attend a dinner in Churchill's honor tonight at Baruch's home.

Hurley to Launch Polio Campaign

Hurley volunteer workers for the 1953 March of Dimes will launch their campaign today under the co-chairmanship of Mrs. Howard Every of West Hurley and Mrs. Wesley O'Brien of Glenford.

This announcement was made by Ernest Myer, chairman of the town of Hurley, who said that every boxholder in Hurley will receive a returnable stamped envelope containing a March of Dimes pocket.

Myer pointed out that it is hoped by this method that the 1953 quota will be reached in the township. Last year the township raised more than $400 for the fight against polio.

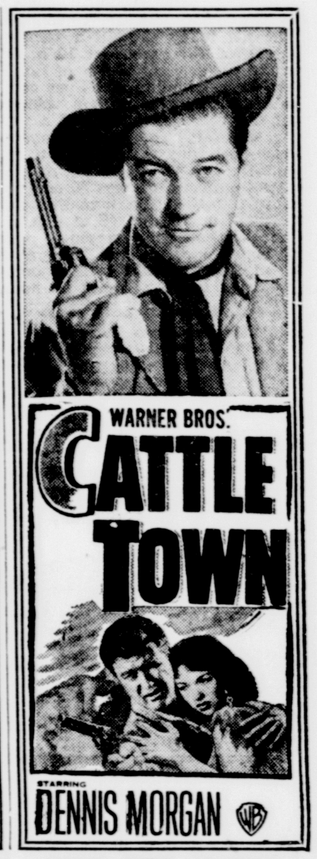

Also working with the town group is William O'Kelly who will canvass the schools of his area.

Dewey Predicts

financing plan would kill the formula under which localities now pay only 20 per cent for four types of welfare—home relief, old-age assistance, aid to dependent children and assistance to the blind. The state, now pays the difference between federal aid and 80 per cent of the cost of these categories.

Dewey urged a new system under which the state and each locality would pay one-half of the costs after federal aid. He also suggested the state might divide equally with the localities the cost of four additional programs now borne by the localities. These are foster home-care for children, county homes for the aged, institutional care for the homeless and hospitalization of the needy.

Says Changes Needed

The governor said the changes were needed to combat continued local pressures for more and more state aid, mis-use of various welfare programs by localities and recent charges of "laxity and irresponsibility in the local administration of relief."

Calling for a "complete reevaluation" of the state's court system, Dewey recommendation creation of a special commission by the Legislature to study methods to set up a "truly Twentieth Century court system."

"Calendar delays, costly litigation, more costly appeals, procedural complexity, and clumsy detailed practice statutes provoke dissatisfaction with the processes of the courts," Dewey added.

The governor also proposed that the commission study a proposed constitutional amendment to change the method of selecting state Supreme Court justices. He suggested that a non-partisan group select three candidates for each court vacancy. The governor then would appoint one of the three, who would serve at least a year and then stand for election or rejection by the voters in his judicial district.

Techniques Seen Necessary

Calling for reshuffling of the State's Civil Service Commission, Dewey said it was needed to "permit fullest utilization of modern techniques in personnel administration and recruitment."

"It seems to be almost universally agreed that this can best be accomplished if the administrative functions of the department are under one person," he asserted.

The one-man system was advocated last year by a temporary state commission, but the legislation died in Senate and Assembly committees.

Suggests Appropriation

He suggested that 1½ million dollars be appropriated to convert Great Meadow prison in Washington county to house inmates from 16 to 25 or 30 years of age, who can not be handled properly in the state's reformatories or in its maximum-security prisons. Great Meadow now is a maximum-security institution, for older, hardened criminals.

Dewey also urged legislation to permit two or more counties to combine to share the costs and services of a full-time probation officer. He noted that 14 counties did not have such services now.

The governor called for permanent establishment of a state institute on crime and delinquency at St. Lawrence University to train personnel from state prisons and other institutions in modern penal practices. This would cost $100,000 annually, he said.

Other Recommendations

Other recommendations submitted to the lawmakers included:

Reduction of truck registration fees for farmers; an increase in parking fees in state parks from 35 to 50 cents; continuation of the state's programs for rent control, civil defense, veterans of the armed forces and public health; and reapportionment of Senate and Assembly districts.

Dewey said 1952 had been a good year for business, labor and agriculture in New York state.

Dewey said, however, that the "business outlook for 1953 has elements of uncertainty."

He noted that "much of our present business activity and employment is artificially sustained by defense expenditures."

"When defense contracts begin to taper off, as they may before the end of the year, we must be prepared to shift promptly from war production to peaceful purposes," the governor asserted.

Vehicles Wrecked, No Injuries

A 1949 sedan operated by Marcy Carmen of 248 Smith avenue, Poughkeepsie, and a truck, owned by Theobald Industries of Glasco and operated by George Frederick Valk of Route 1, Saugerties, were in collision about 9 p. m. yesterday near the junction of Route 212 and the Zena road, state police reported. State Troopers R. I. Ryan and R. B. Chaffee of the Kingston station, who investigated, reported that the sedan was travelling west on Route 212 and the truck east on the same route when the left front of each vehicle was in collision. Each driver claimed to have been blinded by the other's headlights, police said. No injuries were reported.

'Godspeed' to Ike

he would not infringe upon Eisenhower's right to chart the country's course after his inauguration Jan. 20. He reviewed the progress of his "Fair Deal" and said it has served the nation well.

Truman spoke confidently of the future. While the nation has its resources, its industry, its skills, its vigor and its democratic faith, he said, "the ultimate advantage" in the struggle with the Soviet "lies with us, not with the Communists."

Says Fear Our Enemy

"But there are some things that could shift the advantage to their side," the retiring chief executive said. "One of the things that could defeat us is fear—fear of the task we face, fear of adjusting to it, fear that breeds more fear, sapping our faith, corroding our liberties, turning citizen against citizen, ally against ally."

Beamed by radio throughout the world, Truman's message told all mankind that this country—because of Russia's refusal to agree to a formula guaranteeing the outlawing of atomic weapons—is being hurried forward in atomic discoveries toward "yet unforeseeable peaks of destructive power."

"We have developed atomic weapons with many times the explosive force of the early models," Truman said, "and we have produced them in substantial quantities."

Could Extinguish Millions

"The war of the future would be one in which man could extinguish millions of lives at one blow, demolish the great cities of the world, wipe out the cultural achievements of the past—and destroy the very structure of a civilization that has been slowly and painfully built up through hundreds of generations.

"Such a war is not a possible policy for rational men. We know this, but we dare not assume that others would not yield to the temptation science is now placing in their hands.

"With that in mind, there is something I would say, to Stalin: You claim belief in Lenin's prophecy that one stage in the development of Communist society would be war between your world and ours. But Lenin was a pre-atomic man, who viewed society and history with pre-atomic eyes. Something profound has happened since he wrote. War has changed its shape and its dimension. It can not now be a 'stage' in the development of anything save ruin for your regime and your homeland."

No Trace of Bitterness

The message carried no trace of the undercurrent of bitterness Truman had earlier shown toward Eisenhower when he described as demagoguery the latter's campaign announcement he would go to Korea—a pledge he carried out.

Truman said he is resuming "most gladly" his place as a private citizen and he spoke of the "friendly and understanding collaboration" he has had from Eisenhower and his associates in working for an orderly change-over of administrations.

"The President-elect," Truman declared, "is about to take up the greatest burdens, the most compelling responsibilities, given to any man. And I, with you and all Americans, wish for him all possible success in undertaking the tasks that will so soon be his."

Eisenhower, he said, must take over a "bundle of burdens" that make up a tremendous job in the easiest of times, but must now, in addition, "lead the whole free world in overcoming the Communist menace—and all this under the shadow of the atomic bomb."

Says Total War Averted

As for his administration, Truman said:

"At the very least, a total war has been averted, each day up to this hour. And at the most, we may already have succeeded in establishing conditions which can keep that kind of war from happening, for as far ahead as man can see."

The President reviewed the steps taken in the last eight years to resist Russian aggression and build the strength of the free world climaxed by "the supreme test" when the United Nations, under U. S. leadership, moved into South Korea when the Reds invaded.

He said the stand there made it plain that "the free nations will fight side by side, that they will not succumb to aggression or intimidation, one by one."

Vessel Reports Trouble

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 7 (AP)—The freighter S. L. Vassiliadis, a 417-foot vessel out of Chios, Greece, radioed today it was sinking 60 miles southwest of Ushant, France, Norfolk coast guard authorities said. The coast guard said the freighter flashed a distress signal at 8:04 a. m. (EST) today, and announced the crew was abandoning ship.

Papers Are Studied

Boston, Jan. 7 (AP)—A federal grand jury today studied the bulky dossiers of 12 men the FBI is reported as saying participated in the record $1,219,000 cash robbery of Brinks Boston headquarters nearly three years ago.

Bridges Asks . . .

combat divisions are classified as deserters or AWOL." This would mean about 36,000.

The army said about 46,000 enlisted men have deserted since the start of the Korean war, but all except 11,000 have returned to duty or have been picked up. The air force reported 851 deserters unreturned as of Oct. 31, the navy 1,242 as of the end of December and the marine corps 697 for the same date.

Lt. Gen. Anthony J. McAuliffe, army assistant chief of staff for personnel, said that for the last complete fiscal year of World War 2 the desertion rate in the army was about 4½ per month for each 1,000 men, and that the comparable figure for the Korean conflict was less than two.

Denies Major Increase

The general said desertion had not shown a major increase and was not "an alarming problem," but that short-term absences were averaging about 17,000 a month. Army area commanders, he said, had been authorized to speed up court martial action on men AWOL and hurry them to ports of embarkation.

MacAuliffe explained that the peak of absences come after men get overseas duty orders.

Cats Get Competition

Tipton, Eng., Jan. 7 (AP)—Watch out, cats, you've got competition. A young crab has got itself a job here as a mouse-catcher. The crab, due for the boiling pot in a Tipton fishmongers, escaped from its crate last Saturday. When found, it had a mouse in its pincers. Since then, except for rest periods in a bowl of salt water, the crab has been allowed to roam the shop mouse-hunting. Bag thus far: Five mice.

Property Reclassified for Market

Joseph Avis, chairman of the zoning board, were referred to the laws and rules committee for study.

The amendments, it was stated, would provide for a residential district to be known as "A," would deal with trailers or trailer camps in residential areas, would avoid spot zoning and provide for other zoning changes.

Of the Roosevelt Park sector the proposed amendment states specifically: "In order to preserve the realty values of residential property in the Roosevelt Park area, the zoning board hereby petitions the Common Council to create a Grade A residential area which shall take in the boundaries of Manor avenue, and along Albany avenue to the city line. This area to be preserved as a single dwelling district."

Avoids Spot Zoning

And in order to avoid spot zoning, it said, it was the board's opinion that Albany avenue from Roosevelt avenue to the city line should be declared a business district "with limitations that property abutting the residential streets shall preserve its residential character by limiting the use of entrance to any business on a residential street, unless the structure is two stories or more requiring entrance to the building."

A section pertaining to certificates of occupancy and dealing with "junk yards, bag cleaning industry, etc.," would propose that permission from the zoning board be required before operation is allowed.

Avis stated that the proposed amendments would require a public hearing and that he would be willing to attend such a hearing to express his views.

1,500 Trees Burn;

the George Washington School, and last night firemen were called to quench a fire in a pile of leaves at St. Mary's playground, off Foxhall avenue at 5:21 p. m.

Firemen were called for the Christmas tree fire at 6:42 p. m., yesterday. Engine No. 1 from Central Station responded, and a hydrant stream was used to quench the raging fire.

A spokesman for the Junior Chamber of Commerce said its Twelfth Night committee had learned of the fire after returning from Poughkeepsie where the group assisted and observed a similar program in which an estimated 5,000 were burned in ceremony.

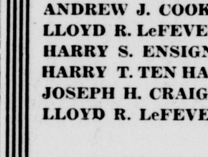

Contributions Asked

The local committee asks residents to continue contributing Christmas trees for the Friday night program, and Alfred E. Smith, publicity director, said: "We will have the ceremony even if we have only one tree to burn." The local public works department will continue collecting them.

Wayne Archibald, Twelfth Night committee chairman, said the program will be held as planned, and Stanley Dempsey, who is in charge of collecting the trees, said local residents may still bring them to the Athletic Field until the night of the ceremony. Hundreds in Poughkeepsie, he said, came to the ceremony there, bringing trees with them.

The local program is scheduled for 9:30 p. m., Friday. It will include Christmas carols by the King's Chorus and a torch light procession. The Rev. Robert T. Shellenberger will narrate the program.

Charge Butcher Stripped Wife in Car With Knife

Police reported John Bowman, 25, beat his bride of four months, Helen, slashed off her clothes during a quarrel in their parked car, then forced her to walk into a cafe.

Officers said that when the embarrassed proprietor offered the 25-year-old wife an overcoat, Bowman snatched it away, saying:

"She came in here naked and she's leaving naked."

Bowman was ordered held yesterday in lieu of $5,000 bond on formal charges of assault with a deadly weapon and wife beating.

Dewey Predicts

financing plan would kill the formula under which localities now pay only 20 per cent for four types of welfare—home relief, old-age assistance, aid to dependent children and assistance to the blind. The state, now pays the difference between federal aid and 80 per cent of the cost of these categories.

Dewey urged a new system under which the state and each locality would pay one-half of the costs after federal aid. He also suggested the state might divide equally with the localities the cost of four additional programs now borne by the localities. These are foster home-care for children, county homes for the aged, institutional care for the homeless and hospitalization of the needy.

Says Changes Needed

The governor said the changes were needed to combat continued local pressures for more and more state aid, mis-use of various welfare programs by localities and recent charges of "laxity and irresponsibility in the local administration of relief."

Calling for a "complete re-evaluation" of the state's court system, Dewey recommendation creation of a special commission by the Legislature to study methods to set up a "truly Twentieth Century court system."

"Calendar delays, costly litigation, more costly appeals, procedural complexity, and clumsy detailed practice statutes provoke dissatisfaction with the processes of the courts," Dewey added.

The governor also proposed that the commission study a proposed constitutional amendment to change the method of selecting state Supreme Court justices. He suggested that a non-partisan group select three candidates for each court vacancy. The governor then would appoint one of the three, who would serve at least a year and then stand for election or rejection by the voters in his judicial district.

Techniques Seen Necessary

Calling for reshuffling of the State's Civil Service Commission, Dewey said it was needed to "permit fullest utilization of modern techniques in personnel administration and recruitment."

"It seems to be almost universally agreed that this can best be accomplished if the administrative functions of the department are under one person," he asserted.

The one-man system was advocated last year by a temporary state commission, but the legislation died in Senate and Assembly committees.

Suggests Appropriation

He suggested that 1½ million dollars be appropriated to convert Great Meadow prison in Washington county to house inmates from 16 to 25 or 30 years of age, who can not be handled properly in the state's reformatories or in its maximum-security prisons. Great Meadow now is a maximum-security institution, for older, hardened criminals.

Dewey also urged legislation to permit two or more counties to combine to share the costs and services of a full-time probation officer. He noted that 14 counties did not have such services now.

The governor called for permanent establishment of a state institute on crime and delinquency at St. Lawrence University to train personnel from state prisons and other institutions in modern penal practices. This would cost $100,000 annually, he said.

Other Recommendations

Other recommendations submitted to the lawmakers included:

Reduction of truck registration fees for farmers; an increase in parking fees in state parks from 35 to 50 cents; continuation of the state's programs for rent control, civil defense, veterans of the armed forces and public health; and reapportionment of Senate and Assembly districts.

Dewey said 1952 had been a good year for business, labor and agriculture in New York state.

Dewey said, however, that the "business outlook for 1953 has elements of uncertainty."

He noted that "much of our present business activity and employment is artificially sustained by defense expenditures."

"When defense contracts begin to taper off, as they may before the end of the year, we must be prepared to shift promptly from war production to peaceful purposes," the governor asserted.

Vehicles Wrecked, No Injuries

A 1949 sedan operated by Marcy Carmen of 248 Smith avenue, Poughkeepsie, and a truck, owned by Theobald Industries of Glasco and operated by George Frederick Valk of Route 1, Saugerties, were in collision about 9 p. m. yesterday near the junction of Route 212 and the Zena road, state police reported. State Troopers R. I. Ryan and R. B. Chaffee of the Kingston station, who investigated, reported that the sedan was travelling west on Route 212 and the truck east on the same route when the left front of each vehicle was in collision. Each driver claimed to have been blinded by the other's headlights, police said. No injuries were reported.

'Godspeed' to Ike

he would not infringe upon Eisenhower's right to chart the country's course after his inauguration Jan. 20. He reviewed the progress of his "Fair Deal" and said it has served the nation well.

Truman spoke confidently of the future. While the nation has its resources, its industry, its skills, its vigor and its democratic faith, he said, "the ultimate advantage" in the struggle with the Soviet "lies with us, not with the Communists."

Says Fear Our Enemy

"But there are some things that could shift the advantage to their side," the retiring chief executive said. "One of the things that could defeat us is fear—fear of the task we face, fear of adjusting to it, fear that breeds more fear, sapping our faith, corroding our liberties, turning citizen against citizen, ally against ally."

Beamed by radio throughout the world, Truman's message told all mankind that this country—because of Russia's refusal to agree to a formula guaranteeing the outlawing of atomic weapons—is being hurried forward in atomic discoveries toward "yet unforeseeable peaks of destructive power."

"We have developed atomic weapons with many times the explosive force of the early models," Truman said, "and we have produced them in substantial quantities."

Could Extinguish Millions

"The war of the future would be one in which man could extinguish millions of lives at one blow, demolish the great cities of the world, wipe out the cultural achievements of the past—and destroy the very structure of a civilization that has been slowly and painfully built up through hundreds of generations.

"Such a war is not a possible policy for rational men. We know this, but we dare not assume that others would not yield to the temptation science is now placing in their hands.

"With that in mind, there is something I would say, to Stalin: You claim belief in Lenin's prophecy that one stage in the development of Communist society would be war between your world and ours. But Lenin was a pre-atomic man, who viewed society and history with pre-atomic eyes. Something profound has happened since he wrote. War has changed its shape and its dimension. It can not now be a 'stage' in the development of anything save ruin for your regime and your homeland."

No Trace of Bitterness

The message carried no trace of the undercurrent of bitterness Truman had earlier shown toward Eisenhower when he described as demagoguery the latter's campaign announcement he would go to Korea—a pledge he carried out.

Truman said he is resuming "most gladly" his place as a private citizen and he spoke of the "friendly and understanding collaboration" he has had from Eisenhower and his associates in working for an orderly change-over of administrations.

"The President-elect," Truman declared, "is about to take up the greatest burdens, the most compelling responsibilities, given to any man. And I, with you and all Americans, wish for him all possible success in undertaking the tasks that will so soon be his."

Eisenhower, he said, must take over a "bundle of burdens" that make up a tremendous job in the easiest of times, but must now, in addition, "lead the whole free world in overcoming the Communist menace—and all this under the shadow of the atomic bomb."

Says Total War Averted

As for his administration, Truman said:

"At the very least, a total war has been averted, each day up to this hour. And at the most, we may already have succeeded in establishing conditions which can keep that kind of war from happening, for as far ahead as man can see."

The President reviewed the steps taken in the last eight years to resist Russian aggression and build the strength of the free world climaxed by "the supreme test" when the United Nations, under U. S. leadership, moved into South Korea when the Reds invaded.

He said the stand there made it plain that "the free nations will fight side by side, that they will not succumb to aggression or intimidation, one by one."

Vessel Reports Trouble

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 7 (AP)—The freighter S. L. Vassiliadis, a 417-foot vessel out of Chios, Greece, radioed today it was sinking 60 miles southwest of Ushant, France, Norfolk coast guard authorities said. The coast guard said the freighter flashed a distress signal at 8:04 a. m. (EST) today, and announced the crew was abandoning ship.

Papers Are Studied

Boston, Jan. 7 (AP)—A federal grand jury today studied the bulky dossiers of 12 men the FBI is reported as saying participated in the record $1,219,000 cash robbery of Brinks Boston headquarters nearly three years ago.

Bridges Asks . . .

combat divisions are classified as deserters or AWOL." This would mean about 36,000.

The army said about 46,000 enlisted men have deserted since the start of the Korean war, but all except 11,000 have returned to duty or have been picked up. The air force reported 851 deserters unreturned as of Oct. 31, the navy 1,242 as of the end of December and the marine corps 697 for the same date.

Lt. Gen. Anthony J. McAuliffe, army assistant chief of staff for personnel, said that for the last complete fiscal year of World War 2 the desertion rate in the army was about 4½ per month for each 1,000 men, and that the comparable figure for the Korean conflict was less than two.

Denies Major Increase

The general said desertion had not shown a major increase and was not "an alarming problem," but that short-term absences were averaging about 17,000 a month. Army area commanders, he said, had been authorized to speed up court martial action on men AWOL and hurry them to ports of embarkation.

MacAuliffe explained that the peak of absences come after men get overseas duty orders.

Cats Get Competition

Tipton, Eng., Jan. 7 (AP)—Watch out, cats, you've got competition. A young crab has got itself a job here as a mouse-catcher. The crab, due for the boiling pot in a Tipton fishmongers, escaped from its crate last Saturday. When found, it had a mouse in its pincers. Since then, except for rest periods in a bowl of salt water, the crab has been allowed to roam the shop mouse-hunting. Bag thus far: Five mice.

Property Reclassified for Market

Joseph Avis, chairman of the zoning board, were referred to the laws and rules committee for study.

The amendments, it was stated, would provide for a residential district to be known as "A," would deal with trailers or trailer camps in residential areas, would avoid spot zoning and provide for other zoning changes.

Of the Roosevelt Park sector the proposed amendment states specifically: "In order to preserve the realty values of residential property in the Roosevelt Park area, the zoning board hereby petitions the Common Council to create a Grade A residential area which shall take in the boundaries of Manor avenue, and along Albany avenue to the city line. This area to be preserved as a single dwelling district."

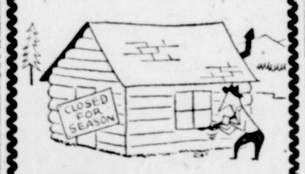

Avoids Spot Zoning

And in order to avoid spot zoning, it said, it was the board's opinion that Albany avenue from Roosevelt avenue to the city line should be declared a business district "with limitations that property abutting the residential streets shall preserve its residential character by limiting the use of entrance to any business on a residential street, unless the structure is two stories or more requiring entrance to the building."

A section pertaining to certificates of occupancy and dealing with "junk yards, bag cleaning industry, etc.," would propose that permission from the zoning board be required before operation is allowed.

Avis stated that the proposed amendments would require a public hearing and that he would be willing to attend such a hearing to express his views.

1,500 Trees Burn;

the George Washington School, and last night firemen were called to quench a fire in a pile of leaves at St. Mary's playground, off Foxhall avenue at 5:21 p. m.

Firemen were called for the Christmas tree fire at 6:42 p. m., yesterday. Engine No. 1 from Central Station responded, and a hydrant stream was used to quench the raging fire.

A spokesman for the Junior Chamber of Commerce said its Twelfth Night committee had learned of the fire after returning from Poughkeepsie where the group assisted and observed a similar program in which an estimated 5,000 were burned in ceremony.

Contributions Asked

The local committee asks residents to continue contributing Christmas trees for the Friday night program, and Alfred E. Smith, publicity director, said: "We will have the ceremony even if we have only one tree to burn." The local public works department will continue collecting them.

Wayne Archibald, Twelfth Night committee chairman, said the program will be held as planned, and Stanley Dempsey, who is in charge of collecting the trees, said local residents may still bring them to the Athletic Field until the night of the ceremony. Hundreds in Poughkeepsie, he said, came to the ceremony there, bringing trees with them.

The local program is scheduled for 9:30 p. m., Friday. It will include Christmas carols by the King's Chorus and a torch light procession. The Rev. Robert T. Shellenberger will narrate the program.

Charge Butcher Stripped Wife in Car With Knife

Palm Springs, Calif., Jan. 7 (AP)—A 180-pound butcher has been arraigned on a charge of stripping his 110-pound bride with a butcher knife and forcing her to walk nude into a swank restaurant.

Police reported John Bowman, 25, beat his bride of four months, Helen, slashed off her clothes during a quarrel in their parked car, then forced her to walk into a cafe.

Officers said that when the embarrassed proprietor offered the 25-year-old wife an overcoat, Bowman snatched it away, saying:

"She came in here naked and she's leaving naked."

Bowman was ordered held yesterday in lieu of $5,000 bond on formal charges of assault with a deadly weapon and wife beating.
